WEIGHT REDUCTION— THE NEW METHOD.

Ladies in particular are attracted to the new method of weight-reducing by foam baths as administered under medical supervision at the National Spa and Hydro, Lucan. As much as 3lb. can be reduced by one bath without the distress, discomfort or danger that Turkish Baths mean to many people. You lie in comfort, breathing pure, cool air while covered by snowy white foam. Spend a little holiday now at this beauty spot, which is bedecked in Autumn's lovely colours, and reduce while you build health and vitality in genial air and helped by the powerful tonic properties of the famous Sulphur Spa Water. Send for tariff now. Charges moderate.

YESTERDAY IN THE LAW COURTS

INJURED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

£3,500 DAMAGES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

An action in which Miss Margaretta Hill, 22 Lower Mount street, Dublin, claimed damages for personal injuries against Lady Olivia Mary Greer, Curragh Grange, The Curragh, was listed for the assessment of damages, negligence on the part of Lady Greer being admitted. In her statement of claim, the plaintiff, who is a qualified nurse at the Nursing Home, 22 Lower Mount street, Dublin, said that she had been engaged to nurse the late Sir Henry Greer. On 30th May last she was a passenger in a motor car driven by Lady Greer when it came into collision with another motor car at Buckley's Cross, near Newbridge.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., Mr. C. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. C. F. Casey (instructed by Messrs. McKeever and Son) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Cawley (instructed by Messrs. O'Hanlon and Robinson) for the defendant.

For the plaintiff, Mr. Wood said that the plaintiff was now incapacitated from carrying on her profession.

Dr. James Cosgrave, who attended the plaintiff in the Drogheda Memorial Hospital after the accident, said that she was then in a deplorable condition and in imminent danger of death.

Dr. John Gannon, Surgeon Macaulay and Dr. E. T. Freeman expressed the opinion that the plaintiff would be unable to continue her practice as a nurse.

Dr. H. S. Laird and Dr. Henry Stokes, who were called for the defence, gave evidence to the effect that the plaintiff was not permanently disabled, and would be able to resume her work as a nurse after a time.

The jury assessed damages at £3,500, and judgment was entered accordingly.

On the application of Mr. Costello, Mr. Justice Sullivan granted a stay of execution for ten days, but directed that of the sum of £1,500, which had been lodged in court by the defendant, £500 should be paid out to the plaintiff.

'BUS PASSENGER INJURED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE AND A JURY.)

Mrs. Anne Craven, a widow, residing at 3 Patrick street, Drogheda, claimed damages for personal injuries against James J. Walsh, trading as the Dublin 'Bus Co., of 5 New street, Dublin. Plaintiff alleged that on 2nd November, 1933, she was a passenger in a 'bus from Dublin. Before she could alight at Terenure, the 'bus, which had been stationary, started with a sudden jerk, and she was thrown violently to the ground, fracturing her wrist and jawbone. She was now permanently disabled, and had lost her employment in a Drogheda factory, where she had been earning 19s. to 22s. per week. For the defence, it was contended that plaintiff left her seat while the 'bus was in motion, did not indicate to the conductor that she wished to alight, and stepped from the platform at the exit door while the 'bus was in motion.

Mr. M. Comyn, K.C., and Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by Mr. John S. O'Connor) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C.; Mr. C. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. D. Fawsitt (instructed by Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud) for the defendant.

The jury found that the defendants were guilty of negligence in the management of the 'bus, and assessed damages at £250.

Judgment was entered for that amount, with costs.

BOTH DRIVERS TO BLAME

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

The hearing of the action and cross-action for personal injuries in which the parties were Mrs. Margaret Doyle, Suncroft, Curragh, a widow, and Mrs. Bridget O'Brien, a widow, of Maddenstown, Curragh Camp, was concluded. On 6th April last, on the way to a local race meeting, the motor cars in which the respective parties were travelling came into collision, and each party sought damages against the other on the ground of alleged negligence.

Mr. Denning, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. R. Brereton Barry (instructed by Messrs. Brown and McCann in one case, and by Messrs. Hoey and Denning in another) appeared for Mrs. Doyle; and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., Mr. D. Fawsitt and Mr. M. J. Lennon (instructed by Mr. James F. Lalor) for Mrs. O'Brien.

The jury found that the drivers of both cars were to blame, and that neither could have avoided the consequences of the other's negligence.

Mr. Justice Hanna, on this finding, dismissed the action and the cross-action.

To-morrow never comes. Write to-day for Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society rates for Property Owners' Indemnity Policy. J. G. Aston, Mgr., 63 Dawson St., Dublin. (Advt.)

GALWAY TOWN CLERKSHIP

ACTION AGAINST MINISTER DISMISSED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

An action was mentioned in which the Galway Urban Council sought a declaration that the Minister for Local Government and Public Health had acted illegally and ultra vires in refusing sanction to the appointment as Town Clerk of Galway of Mr. John G. Browne. It appeared that Mr. Browne was appointed by the Council as Acting Town Clerk in June, 1933, in succession to the late Mr. T. N. Redington, and shortly afterwards the Council proposed to appoint him to the permanent position at a salary of £400 a year, rising to £450, together with franchise fees. The Minister refused to accede to the proposal on the ground that at the time Mr. Browne had not a competent knowledge of Irish. On 17th August, 1933, however, the Council, who claimed that Mr. Browne had a competent knowledge of Irish, appointed him to the permanent office. The Minister declined to sanction the appointment, and said it was invalid. The Council then instituted proceedings with the view of obtaining a declaration that the Minister was precluded from refusing sanction to the appointment on the ground alleged.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., who, with Mr. T. C. Kingsmill Moore (instructed by Messrs. Blake and Kenny), appeared for the Galway Urban Council, now said that the plaintiffs had served a notice on the Attorney-General and on the Minister of discontinuance of the action.

Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., who, with Mr. William Black (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), appeared for the Attorney-General and the Minister, asked that the action be dismissed, with costs.

Mr. Justice Johnston dismissed the action with costs.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

A settlement was announced in an action in which Edward Wynne Alston Johnson, electrician, of "The Haven," Wicklow, claimed damages for personal injuries against Thomas Joseph O'Reilly and Doyle's Auto Services. The plaintiff, it was stated, was driving a motor cycle, with a side-car attached, from Wicklow to Dublin, when he came into collision with a motor car driven by T. J. O'Reilly and sustained serious injuries. The settlement, which was made a rule of Court, provided for the payment by the defendant to the plaintiff of £2,000, with £200 in respect of hospital and medical expenses and taxed costs.

Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., Mr. W. H. Carson, K.C., and Mr. R. R. Cherry (instructed by Messrs. A. and L. Goodbody) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. K. Dockrell, K.C., Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. R. Brereton Barry (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning) for the defendants.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Although the number of cattle at yesterday's sale was similar to last week, the general quality was better. Buyers were numerous, and included several from across Channel. Some extremely nice lots of Aberdeen Angus and Hereford cross bullocks and heifers with flesh and quality were shown, for which the bidding was good, and for these a shade more money than last week was realised. Trade for thin and secondary sorts was slow, and to effect a clearance less money had to be accepted. Quotations:—Aberdeen Angus and Hereford crosses from 17/- to 19/- per cwt.; horned and polly bullocks, 14/- to 18/- per cwt.; shorthorn heifers, 15/- to 18/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The number of cattle forward for yesterday's sale was on a par with last week, but the quality all-round was hardly so good. Some choice lots suitable for shipping made around last week's rates, but prices of thin and secondary sorts were erratic, and some of these remained unsold. Quotations:—Aberdeen Angus and Hereford crosses made from 15/- to 19/- per cwt., and horned and polled bullocks and heifers from 12/- to 17/-.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS

Dublin—Cattle unsaleable for secondary qualities, slower sale for Sheep and Lambs on larger numbers. Dairy Cattle £1 per head cheaper. Pigs in demand and dearer. Bristol—Trade poor for Irish Stores. York—Fall of 5s. to 10s. per head in high quality Irish Stores. Tin easier. Copper active. Rubber quiet. Wheat dull.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (METROPOLITAN).

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1932.	1933.
Beasts	3,278—decrease	10	3,585	4,329
Sheep and lambs	7,440—increase	2,829	6,251	7,194
Veal calves...	9—increase	2	4	3

Supplies here this week showed a slight decrease, without any improvement in quality, the bulk of arrivals being of secondary class. There was a fair attendance of local and export buyers, and trade showed some slight improvement when dealing with the small number of choice beasts on offer, for which the minimum price of 25s. per cwt. was paid. However, in dealing with the secondary and otherwise unsuitable entrants trade was as bad as previously, there being practically no offers, and until prices are rearranged for secondary beasts owners have poor prospects of disposing of stocks. When we mention that more than half the market was still unnegotiated coming up to eleven o'clock, with practically no prospects of making any further progress in sales, the shrinkage in business may be tolerably well measured. Local victuallers were more in evidence, but their support was confined to strictly prime quality handy-weight bullocks and heifers up to 10 cwt.; anything heavier in the former class was neglected, and large numbers were again turned out unsold. In the beef cow department sales were just a shade better, there being more inquiry for Belfast and local requirements, and last week's prices were paid for the real choice beasts of the heifer type, after which business was practically nil, and many useful cows were turned out unsold. There was a fair inquiry for bulls, Belgium taking the nicer young sorts around previous values. Prices over the day's proceeding worked out around 25s. per cwt. for the plums of bullocks and heifers; other classes unsaleable. Best beef cows 10s. to 12s., secondary and aged 6s. to 9s., and bulls around 10s. to 12s.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The substantial increase in the number of sheep and lambs to handle here this week reflected a somewhat slower aspect in business, but matters were apparently following a fairly steady routine all the same when dealing with prime classes, which, however, formed a small proportion of the general gathering. Opening sales proved steady for butchers' sheep, choice wethers and ewes being fairly well placed, especially those showing good weight for money. At midstages of business there was some easing off in biddings when buyers found supplies much larger, and sellers were obliged to accept lower terms for useful classes, but rough and half-meated sheep proved in excess of requirements and failed to sell up. Lambs, on the whole, were more difficult to place, shippers being in less want, and closing prices were tending lower at 18s. to 28s., extra 30s. to 38s. per head, and other classes of mutton 5d. to 7½d. per lb.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Just 430 head of milch cows on market, being an increase of 52 on last week's gathering. Trade was somewhat disappointing even for tip-top English and Scotch milchers of outstanding merit. In fact, for the general run of cows prices were fully £1 per head worse than previously. Choice heifer milchers are not too plentiful just now, and for the pick of things late rates were repeated, after which matters took a very slow turn, with the bulk of small or otherwise unsuitable beasts without buyers' marks. Best cows £13 to £14, extra £15 to £17; heifers £12 to £14, outstanding £15, others £6 to £11 per head.

PIGS.

Larger gathering of swine on market this week—viz., 1,233 head, or 57 more than last week. There was a good attendance of pork butchers and men in shipping interests. The show in point of quality was fairly useful, and business opened brisk for choice porkers, which in keen competition advanced about 2s. per cwt. Best medium-weight bacon pigs came in for good support, and market sold up well at the higher prices ruling. Sows still scarce and making satisfactory prices. Slips and bonhams a fair sale, without any material change in values. Prime lightweight porkers 58s to 62s. per cwt., medium bacon 50s. to 52s., heavier 46s. to 48s., sows 32s. to 35s., slips and bonhams 16s. to 28s. and 30s. per head.

BRISTOL.—About 350 fresh Irish cattle and 50 English on offer. Good supply of beef. Trade extremely quiet. Best made up to 6¾d. per lb. Very poor inquiry for the large number of store cattle, and sales very difficult. Best three-year-olds fetched up to £16 each, two-year-olds £12 to £13, yearlings £9 to £11. Very few inquiries for milch cattle, and prices still depressed. Best, £14 to £16 apiece.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Fair supply, and trade still on moderate lines. Bacons a steady trade at schedule rates. Cutters firmer for smaller quantities at 11/- to 11/6, sows at the recent easement 7/6 per score, dead-weight.

YORK.—Large offer of Irish stores, including a big proportion of excellent cattle of both sexes. Slight fall in price of best steers, which fell 5/- to 10/- per head; highest price, £18 10/-. Good entry of English stirks, up to £12. Light show of dairy cows; highest price, £23 10/-. Sheep a slow trade at late rates.

DONNELLY, DUBLIN, LTD.

No cut on fat pigs or pigs of Ulster Breed.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC)—WHEAT—The cargo section presented dull features and values further eased following weakness of primary markets and lack of demand. Canadian descriptions marked a decline of 1½d. per quarter, and Australian also Plate No. 3, No. 1 Northern Manitoba, Atlantic shipment, ready to load sellers 30/7½, November 30/7½, No. 2 do. November 20/1½; Argentine up river 63½lb. November 20/3; West Australian afloat 25/3, South do. afloat near 24/3, New South Wales bags, bulk afloat near 23/-. Parcels quiet, with offers freely made at lower prices. Manitoba kinds ruled 3d. per quarter lower, and Plate 3d. to 6d.; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, Vancouver, afloat sellers 29/4½, 1st-15th December 30/6, No. 2 do. afloat 26/-, 1st-15th December 28/3, No. 3 do. 1st-15th December 27/6; No. 4 Manitoba, Vancouver 1st-15th December 26/6, No. 5 do. 1st-15th December 24/6; Argentine 64lb. afloat 20/3, do. 63½lb. December 20/3 per quarter of 480lb. c.i.f. terms; Rosafe 64lb. afloat sold 20/1½. MAIZE cargo market fairly steady on reports of American purchases in Argentina. European shipments, however, were on a larger scale, and which imparted a quiet tone. Plate shipping-shipped sellers 22/-, December 22/-, January 22/4½, February 22/9. Parcels steady, but demand of a restricted character. Plate afloat sellers 20/3 to 20/6, as to position; November 20/1½, December 20/9, January 21/3 per quarter of 480lb. c.i.f. BARLEY inactive, but sellers adhered to steady asking prices. Parcels of Plate 64-65 kilos new crop January-February sellers 18/9; No. 3 Canadian Western, Atlantic, November 22/3; Persian November 20/3, December 20/3 per quarter of 400lb. c.i.f.; Californian superior quality No. 1 standard November-December nominally 35/6 per quarter of 448lb. c.i.f. OATS dull, and Canadian qualities 3d. per quarter easier, but Plate unchanged. Parcels of Plate 34-35lb. new crop f.a.q. quality January-February sellers 12/3; No. 2 Canadian Western, Vancouver, November 20/6; No. 1 Canadian feed, Vancouver, November 18/9; Canadian mixed feed, Atlantic, November 15/3 per quarter of 320lb. c.i.f.

LIVERPOOL.—Unfavourable weather in the Argentine and a natural reaction from the recent severe decline caused forward deliveries of wheat here to improve to a liberal extent during early trading, but afterwards gave way sharply on continued liquidations of December, until a fair decline from previous night had been registered. Then a good rally took place on better Argentine opening cables, finishing at a moderate gain on previous night, with "shorts" covering. C.i.f. parcels unchanged to 3d. lower, but no business reported. C.i.f. parcels River Plate maize January sold at 21/7½, Galatz Foxanian December 20/3, January 20/6 per quarter. WHEAT on the spot quietly steady. MAIZE—Spot parcels steady at 4/6 to 4/6½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at late rates. Graded wheat futures fluctuated frequently, wide early trading showing ¾d. per cental advance, then giving way to ⅛d. under previous night, but finished firm and ⅛d. to ⅜d. over Wednesday's final rates. Values—December 4/9⅞, March 5/2⅜, May 5/4¼ per cental. Sales—450 loads.

PROVISIONS.

LONDON CENTRAL MEAT.—Supplies to market 2,023 tons, being 602 tons British and Irish produce and 1,421 tons imported. Quiet trade for all descriptions. BEEF (national mark prices)—English long sides, prime, 3/8 to 4/2; ditto good, 3/4 to 3/8. General price (including national mark)—English long sides, 3/4 to 4/2; ditto hind quarters, forerib and flank, 3/8 to 4/4; Irish, Birkenhead killed sides, 3/4 to 3/8. PORK—English under 10st., 5/8 to 6/6; ditto, 10st. to 15st., 4/10 to 5/8; ditto 15st. to 20st., 4/4 to 4/10; Irish suckers, 5/8 to 6/6; ditto small, 5/4 to 6/-; ditto medium, 4/8 to 5/4; ditto heavy, 4/2 to 4/8.

BRISTOL.—BACON was in steady demand, and with supplies only moderate prices were fully upheld, but no change was made in official quotations. HAMS—Short cut had a fair trade at steady prices. LARD was firm, with American about 1/6 per cwt. up on the week. CHEESE—Canadian was in fair request, and both old and new sold at about previous rates. New Zealand had a firmer interval, but the demand became quieter towards the close, and prices were the turn easier. BUTTER—Values have tended easier during the past few days, the demand being much quieter, but Danish held the full recent improvement.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON — Continental supplies here exhausted, and prices more or less nominal, London making no change in the prices of Danish and Swedish, and traders here await the result of to-morrow's revision in Manchester. Irish and Canadian firmly held. HAMS steady and in moderate demand at late rates. Shoulders scarce and nominal. LARD on the spot steady, with a fair inquiry at late rates for both prime steam and American refined. CHEESE quiet, and New Zealand white reduced a further sixpence to 54/- to 58/- per cwt. BUTTER quiet, and Danish, 2/- lower, now offered at 125/- to 129/- per cwt. EGGS irregular. Irish Free State lower at 19/9 for extra selected, 19/3 selected, 16/- mediums, but Northern dearer at 22/6 for specials, 21/6 standard, 19/- selected, and English new laid 21/6 per 120.

CARDIFF.—Although the demand in most sections has shown no improvement, a firm tone has been maintained owing to shortness of supplies. With this scarcity receiving no relief still firmer values are likely in the near future. Wholesale quotations delivered in Cardiff district. BACON—A steady market, with Irish quoted at 86/- to 90/-, and Danish 88/- to 92/- per cwt. HAMS—American steady at 84/- to 96/- per cwt. BUTTER firm and unaltered, with Irish creameries at 78/- to 82/ Danish 129/- to 133/-, and New Zealand 79/- to 83/- per cwt. EGGS—Irish hen best firm, and 2/- dearer at 20/- to 20/6 per 120. POULTRY—Chickens 9d. to 1/1, hens 6d. to 8d. per lb.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE.—Cabbage in good supply, with trade steady for York, but Savoy neglected. Other arrivals just sufficient to maintain late rates, except swedes and white turnips, the latter failing to clear. York 10/- to 18/- large load, small 5/- to 10/-; Savoy, large 5/- to 7/-, small 4/- to 4/6; swedes 1/- to 1/1 per cwt., mangolds 10d. to 1/-, cauliflowers 1/- to 1/9, seconds 3d. to 8d. per dozen; thyme and sage 1d. to 2d. per bunch, celery 1/- to 3/6, turnips 2d. to 4d., parsley 4d. to 6d. per tray, 1/- to 2/- per bag; carrots 10d. to 1/6 per dozen, 2/3 to 3/6 per bag; parsnips 1/- to 1/6 per dozen, and 2/3 to 3/6 per bag.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Trade quietly steady, with supplies ample at 4/- to 4/9 per cwt.

DUBLIN FISH.—On offer 129 boxes mixed catch from two steam trawlers, 4 chests lobster, 50 boxes herrings, 90 boxes mackerel, and a large amount from country and local senders. Demand fair, except for small whiting, which cleared with difficulty at low prices. Lobsters 15/- to 20/- per 13 large, medium 10/- to 12/6, small 5/- to 8/-; soles 25/- to 35/- per nine pairs large, medium 15/- to 20/-; slips 5/- to 8/-, turbot 1/- to 10/- each, brill 6d. to 3/-, herrings 10/- to 20/- per box, mackerel 6/- to 8/-, plaice 20/- to 50/- per half box, cod 20/- to 60/-, whiting 4/- to 20/-, white soles 20/- to 40/-, conger eels 5/- to 15/-, gurnard 3/- to 5/-, ray 12/- to 20/-, pollock 15/- to 25/-, hake 30/- to 70/-, and ling 12/- to 25/-.

BILLINGSGATE FISH.—Soles 12d. to 17d., slips 12d. to 15d., red mullet 8d. to 16d. per lb.; live eels 12/- to 22/-, dead 8/- to 14/- draught; turbot 6/- to 10/-, brill 6/- to 9/-, plaice 7/- to 12/-, halibut 8/- to 14/-, lemon soles 9/- to 15/, hake 9/- to 13/-, haddocks 1/6 to 5/-, skate wings 4/- to 5/6 per stone.

PRODUCE.

LONDON.—SUGAR—British makes slow, unchanged. Parcels of Peruvian 96 per cent. raws December to U.K. sold 3/10½ c.i.f. Terminal quiet. December sold 3/9¼, May 4/3¼, August 4/5¼, to 4/5½, December 4/7¼ per cwt. COCOA quieter. Accra G/F January-March 20/- per 50 kilos c.i.f., A clause to London 21/6 per cwt. ex wharf. Terminal sales, 190 tons. November sold 20/9, December 20/9, March 21/1¼, May 21/6, July 22/- per cwt. RUBBER dealt in quietly. Sheet spot and December sold 6⅛d. to 6⅛d., January-March 6⅛d. to 6⁷⁄₁₆d., April-June 6¼d. to 6⅜d., July-September 6⅜d. to 6½d. and 6⅝d. per lb. TEA—6,332 packages Java and Sumatra were catalogued in auction. Quite a strong market was experienced, with low brokens occasionally dearer. Tippy teas were wanted. Pekoe sold 9½d. to 10d., broken do. 9d. to 11½d., orange 10½d. to 3/5½d., broken orange 9d. to 2/6, Fannings 8¼d. to 8½d. per lb. JUTE market dearer during early hours, but after a moderate business closed quieter. PHILIPS LAMPS, LTD., 3 LOWER ABBEY STREET, DUBLIN

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

CHARGE OF LIBEL

(BEFORE MR. E. J. LITTLE.)

Mrs. Caroline Sinclair (53), 150 Harold's Cross road, laundry worker, was charged, on remand, with having, on 14th September, at Harold's Cross road, Dublin, sent through the post a letter containing a defamatory libel on John Donovan, 38 Cherryfield avenue, Dublin.

Mr. Alec Lynn (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) defended.

A deposition previously made by John Donovan as to receipt of the letter was read. He stated that the defendant worked in the same laundry as he did.

Captain R. J. Quirke, handwriting expert, stated that he received three specimens of handwriting, stated to be the defendant's, and compared them with the writing on the postcard and letters complained of, and he was of opinion that they were written by the same person.

The Justice said that he would return the defendant for trial on bail of £10 and one surety of £10.

Mr. Lynn said that there was no charge on which his client could be returned for trial.

The Justice said that there was the charge of defamatory libel.

Subsequently the defendant was remanded for a week on bail to enable the State legal authorities to look into the law on the case.

"AIMED HIGH WITH THE POKER"

Charles Lynch (47), Charleston road, Ranelagh, pawnbroker's assistant, was charged with assaulting James Walsh, clerk, Woodstock Gardens, Ranelagh, by hitting him on the head with a poker, and also with assaulting Anthony Walsh, Rathmines road, Dublin, advertising agent.

James Walsh stated that he was going down the stairs in the defendant's house, after seeing his mother, who lived there, when the defendant struck him on the head with a poker. Witness's brother, Anthony, was coming downstairs after him. Witness was taken to hospital.

Cross-examined by Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, who defended, he admitted that he had an argument with defendant's wife.

Anthony Walsh stated that the defendant also assaulted him.

The defendant stated that he was struck four blows on the nose. He told the two Walshes to get out of the house. He aimed high with the poker.

All three parties were bound to the peace.

A WICKED DOG

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

James Woods, 25 St. Anne's road, Drumcondra, was summoned for allowing a wicked Alsatian dog to be at large.

Mrs. B. Curtis stated that she found her daughter, Nellie, aged 7, in the arms of Mr. Woods' brother. The girl had been knocked down by the dog, and was suffering from concussion and shock. She was treated at the Children's Hospital, Temple street.

Nellie Curtis stated that the dog rushed out and knocked her over.

Edward Woods, brother of the defendant, said the dog was kept in the stable. The door was closed, but not locked. He heard a scream and saw the girl going out. He called back the dog.

Guard John J. Fahy said that when he went to the stable he was very much afraid of the dog. It was a large animal. He was of opinion that the defendant had the dog there to frighten the children.

Dr. Grady, Children's Hospital, said that the child was swollen on the right side of the head, and there was an abrasion above the knee. There was no mark of a dog bite.

The girl's mother produced the child's coat which, she said, had been torn.

The defendant said the dog was about six years old and was very quiet. When he took it anywhere he had it on a lead, for if children were playing with a ball the dog might snap it. He had never previously had any complaint about the dog.

The Justice fined the defendant 10s., and ordered him to pay £2 compensation. He said he was of opinion that the dog's teeth had torn the coat.

Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, defended.

POLITICS AT A COUNCIL MEETING

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BALLYBAY, Thursday.

At Ballybay Town Council meeting the four Fianna Fail members left the chamber in protest against Fine Gael co-opting Mr. P. Conlon, Fine Gael, in room of Mr. Corrie, of Protestant Association, who retired. When they left there was no quorum to proceed with the business. Later they returned, however, and Mr. Reilly and other Fianna Fail member charged Mr. William Rutledge, of the Protestant Association, with coming to the meeting to vote with the U.I.P., though they of Fianna Fail could have co-opted a member at the previous meeting. Only in honour they left it over to allow the Protestant Association to fill the seat, as they were entitled to do.

Mr. Rutledge stoutly denied complicity.

The King has sent a message to Sir Isaac Isaacs, Governor-General of Australia, expressing regret at news of the illness of the Prime Minister, Mr. Lyons.

ARCHITECTURE OF TO-DAY

CAUSE OF UNIFORMITY

Mr. T. J. Byrne, A.R.I.B.A., vice-president of the Academy of Christian Art, in the course of a lecture at the Academy's meeting last night in Dublin, spoke of machinery as the root cause of the uniformity apparent in modern architecture. This uniformity, he said, made modern housing schemes in many of the cities of the Continent almost inter-changeable.

The machine afforded nothing to pay the real craftsman and the artist, and the lecturer suggested that, with modern transport facilities, it tended towards an undesirable monotony. Both, however, made the treasures of nature available in a wider sphere.

Speaking of the ubiquity of concrete, he said that many would regret the abandonment of the brick and stone of other days. In the Free State a disposition was noticeable to revert to the older commodities, and it was to be hoped that the tendency to use common concrete in this country would soon die. On the Continent such a reversion had already taken place, and in some cases concrete had been sheathed in brick or stone or marble.

In his illustrations Mr. Byrne pointed out the similarity of treatment of widely differing subjects and the absence of ornament, which, he said, was a modern craze, probably evanescent. The sooner this country returned to artistry and guilds of craftsmen the better; for nothing could be worse than uniformity of work and wage rates and the dominance of the machine.

The illustrations were pictures of buildings in the British Isles, Europe and the United States.

Count Plunkett, in a short address, referred to the scheme for building a new Cathedral in Dublin, and said that they should accept it with alacrity. In order to share in the merit of the work, they must make themselves familiar with the nobility of such works already accomplished, without merely being mindful of an imitation of their styles. They might yet see in Dublin a majestic church which could be claimed to be thoroughly Irish in design and spirit.

The Rev. S. Brown, S.J. (hon. librarian) gave a short talk on current art literature and studies.

A vote of thanks to the lecturer was passed on the motion of Mr. J. Robertson, seconded by Mr. Liam Gogan. Mr. Gogan said that it would be interesting if the Academy could set on foot a competition with the object of creating designs that would be individual and distinctive enough to be recognised ultimately as an Irish mode. He paid a tribute to Mr. Byrne's work for the Academy.

Resolutions of sympathy with the Oblate Fathers on the death of the Rev. Father Daly, O.M.I., and with the relatives of the late Mr. Gerard Crofts were passed.

The following were elected members:—Mr. R. de Brun, Mr. Ben Hickey, Mr. C. P. Sheridan, Mr. T. Raftery, the Very Rev. J. P. Robinson, P.P.; Miss J. O'Donnell, Miss D. Drennon and Miss P. Hilliard. Associate members—Dr. Alice Barry, Mr. V. B. Grogan, Mr. M. Le Roux, Mr. G. Nolan and Miss M. Nolan.

DUBLIN MENTAL HOMES

CASE AGAINST EXTENSION

At the monthly meeting of the Joint Committee of the Grangegorman Mental Hospital yesterday, the Resident Medical Superintendent (Dr. O'C. Donelan) reported that there were in residence in the Committee's hospitals 3,608 patients: 851 men and 1,201 women in Grangegorman Hospital, and 938 men and 618 women in Portrane. These numbers showed an increase of thirty-three (twenty-two men and eleven women) compared with the same date last year, excluding County Louth patients.

Mr. Vincent, who had made several inspections of the Grangegorman and Portrane mental homes, in a letter to the Committee, stated that the lands at Grangegorman fell short by over three times of the area of grounds adequate for the proper treatment of the number of patients at present there.

The proposal to erect buildings on the Grangegorman lands was not only undesirable, but negatived the possibility of ameliorating the present condition. The successful operation of this institute of recent years could only have been achieved by an unusual high standard of efficiency on the part of the management of the institution.

In regard to Portrane, the water supply and drainage difficulties, and its inaccessability to the city, were some of the features which rendered further development there undesirable.

At the present stage he could not visualise a better solution than the retention of Portrane and Grangegorman, and the building of a third institution. There could be little doubt, however, that it would be more advantageous, from the point of view of administration and organisation and medical treatment, to provide new accommodation for 2,000 patients on a virgin site than to provide new accommodation for 800 patients, together with a number of further large auxiliary buildings, which would be necessary on a site which already was overcrowded.

The Clerk said that the new building would cost £1,500,000, but it would be cheaper to work.

A deputation was appointed to wait on the Minister for Local Government and Public Health in regard to the matter.

THE MILITARY TRIBUNAL

AN I.R.A. MAN'S ARSENAL

TREE FELLING IN CORK

DECISIONS of the Military Tribunal were announced yesterday in the case of four Co. Cork men tried on the previous day for unlawful association, obstructing the highway at Castlemary, Mallymaloe, and Sculleen, by cutting trees, cutting telegraph wires, unlawful assembly, and conspiracy.

David Barry, Castlemary, Cloyne, was found guilty on all charges and sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment.

Michael Cullinane, Loughnane, Ladysbridge, was sent to prison for nine months, being convicted on all charges also.

Thomas Shaw, Ballinacurra, Midleton, was found guilty of conspiracy to obstruct the highway and cut telegraph wires, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, not to be enforced if he enters into recognisances in £10 to keep the peace for two years.

Michael O'Driscoll, Church street, Cloyne, was discharged, being found not guilty on all charges.

Daniel Ryan (34), St. Patrick's avenue, Tipperary town, was arraigned on charges of unlawful possession of one .45 long Webley revolver, and one .45 Parabellum revolver, on February 17th last, without lawful authority, and with possession of three sticks of gelignite, three detonators, two electric dry-batteries, and an electric switch, "in such circumstances as give rise to reasonable suspicion that he had not got those explosive substances for a lawful purpose." He was further charged with failing or refusing on October 18th to account for his movements and actions on February 10th upon interrogation by a member of the Civic Guard.

The prisoner, upon being indicted, said, "As a soldier of the Irish Republic, I refuse to recognise the Court." Subsequently he sat in complete silence throughout the proceedings, and ignored the President's questions.

ELUDED CAPTURE

Mr. P. J. McEnery, who prosecuted for the State (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor, solicitor to the Attorney-General), said that when Ryan's house was searched in his absence on the 17th of February, the articles were found. The Guards subsequently saw Ryan, but he eluded capture, and continued to elude the Guards until the 18th of October last, when he was arrested in Tipperary town. "He is his own worst enemy in refusing to recognise the Court, or give evidence on his own behalf," observed Mr. McEnery.

Police evidence having been given of the finding of the articles mentioned in the charge,

Superintendent O'Sullivan, Tipperary, gave evidence of interrogating Ryan, who said that he was a member of the I.R.A. and refused to answer any further questions. Witness asked him the following questions, which were unanswered:—

Were you in Dublin on the 10th February, 1934, in connection with the work of your organisation?

Did you travel to Dublin on the 10th February, 1934, in company with John McCarthy, O'Brien street, Tipperary?

Did you attend a demonstration of engineering whilst in Dublin between the 10th and 13th of February?

The Tribunal found the prisoner guilty on the three charges stated.

Evidence of character given by Superintendent O'Sullivan showed that Ryan had a "very good national record." He had been associated with the I.R.A. since 1917 in East Limerick. He was very respectable, married, with four young children, and there was no previous offence recorded.

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, not to be enforced if he enters into recognisances in the sum of £10 to keep the peace for two years.

CHARGES WITHDRAWN

Nine men from the Cloyne district, Co. Cork, were charged with unlawful association; obstructing the highway at Scullen demesne, Castlemary, and Rostellan by cutting trees; cutting telegraph wires; unlawful assembly and conspiracy. The prisoners were:—James Gleeson, Castlemary; Laurence Quirk, Crocane, Maurice Quirk, Crocane; John O'Connor, Aughane; Daniel Cahill, Spittal Cottage; Christopher Daly, Chapel street, Cloyne; Patrick Murphy, Castlemary; James Farmer, Castlemary, and Robert O'Neill, Kilva.

Daly and Cahill were charged, in addition to the above counts, with cutting telegraph and telephone wires at Cloyne on the night of October 16th, between 7.15 and 8 o'clock.

Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor), who appeared for the prosecution, entered a nolle prosequi in the cases of Murphy, Farmer, O'Neill, Gleeson, O'Connor, and Laurence and Maurice Quirk.

He said that the evidence against these prisoners was based on a statement made by David Barry, who had just been sentenced by the Court. During Wednesday's hearing of the case against him, Barry said that his statement to the Guards was false.

The Tribunal ordered the seven prisoners concerned to be at once discharged.

The case of Christopher Daly and Daniel Cahill was proceeded with, as the wire-cutting charge remained against them. The prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Haugh again prosecuted, and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. R. O'Doherty, LL.B.) defended.

The defence was an alibi. Evidence showed that the prisoners were both members of the League of Youth. One was just 18 years old. In the course of a statement of his movements on the night of the offences, Cahill had told the Guards how he discussed the "East Cork round-up" and a tree-cutting case in which the prisoners were "let off."

CAUSE OF SUSPICION

Sergeant M. Donohue, Cloyne, gave evidence of interrogating Daly under the special powers.

Mr. Cawley (cross-examining)—Why did you ask this young man was he a member of the League of Youth?

The Sergeant—I was looking for a reason for the cutting of the trees.

Is not there a Fianna Fail organisation down there?—Yes.

Is it moribund?—It is fairly active.

As a result of your inquiries you were ready to give Fianna Fail a certificate of good character?—I had no information to incriminate them.

I put it to you that the League of Youth in Cloyne is just as harmless as the Fianna Fail organisation?—I have nothing against them except the wire-cutting.

Your whole case is grounded on suspicion, I suggest. Where a tree is felled, or a telephone wire interrupted, or a telegraph pulled down, you immediately say to yourself, "The League of Youth is at it again"?—I come to my own conclusions.

The President (to the witness)—In other words, you use your own intelligence.

Mr. Haugh—At the time of your investigation was the captain of the Cloyne company under detention?—Yes

And a number of other members detained in Midleton Barracks?—Yes.

And had a great number been arrested, interrogated, and some released all over the county?—Yes.

There had been an epidemic of tree-cutting as well as wire-cutting?—Yes.

Did the wire-cutting in this case interrupt conversation between the Midleton and Cloyne Guard stations?—Yes.

Mr. Cawley said that he did not propose to call either of the prisoners, as he felt there was no case against them. There was a good deal of suspicion, which arose mainly because the two men were members of the League of Youth.

The Tribunal found the prisoners not guilty, and ordered their immediate release.

LAW STUDENTS' DEBATE

A legal debate was held at the King's Inns, Dublin, last night, with Mr. Ignatius Kelly, barrister-at-law, in the chair.

Following the making of two exparte applications, the House heard an appeal from the decision of the House of Lords in Lake v. Simmons. The Auditor (Mr. D. B. W. Goodall) for the appellants, and was followed by Mr. S. V. Kirkpatrick and Mr. H. R. McWilliam. For the respondents, Mr. E. Fahy was senior, and was followed by Messrs. B. J. Jennings, P. Tynan and J. J. Durcan.

AIR MAIL PLANS SUSPENDED

SEQUEL TO CRASH

FOUR KILLED IN AUSTRALIA

LONDON CREW ON MAIDEN TRIP

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SYDNEY, Thursday.

PLANS for the inauguration of the England to Australia air mail service have been suspended pending the outcome of an inquiry into the crashing of a machine sent out from England for the service.

(This crash was reported in the Irish Times of yesterday.)

Three Imperial Airways flyers and an Australian passenger lost their lives when the machine crashed mysteriously in the heart of the Queensland plain.

The crew, all three of whom had been loaned by Imperial Airways, were:

Chief pilot, Lieutenant R. A. Prendergast, lately engaged on the East African air route;

Co-pilot and wireless operator, Mr. W. V. Creates, of Wellington;

Engineer, Mr. F. R. Charlton, of Croydon.

All three were killed instantly.

The passenger, Mr. E. Broadfoot, an Australian officer of the Shell Oil Company, was very severely injured and died within a few minutes.

This is the second air disaster in Australia recently.

The cause of the disaster is a mystery. The machine belonged to the Qantas Company—the Queensland and Northern Territory Air Service—in which Imperial Airways have an interest, and arrived at Darwin three days ago, after a successful flight from England.

The crash occurred about a quarter of an hour after the machine had left Longreach, Queensland.

A station rider declared that he saw the machine make a sudden nose dive. She appeared to be turning back to Longreach when the disaster occurred.

The air mail service between Singapore and Australia, to connect with the Imperial Airways mail from England, was to have been opened next month.

The Department did not think it advisable to make a temporary appointment, in view of the fact that a permanent one would be made soon.

A Bottle of Milk.—When, at Lucan District Court yesterday, Wolfgang Hahn, Fitzwilliam square, Dublin, was charged with having driven a motor car in a reckless manner, he said that he was stopped at Chapelizod by a Guard, who said that he had received a telephone message from Lucan about witness. He asked witness if he was sober, and witness produced a bottle of milk, and said that that was the only drink he had. The case was dismissed.

PRINTING TRADE GROUP

It was announced at a meeting of the Printing Trade Group in the Dublin Trades Union Council, yesterday, that the first meeting of the Conciliation Board for the Newspaper section of the trade would be held on Tuesday of next week. The Ministry of Industry and Commerce are calling the Board together at the request of the workers, who have a number of cases to bring before it. Other questions which have arisen since publication was resumed are being settled by direct negotiations.

The Dublin Typographical Provident Society informed the Group that at present their members are balloting upon proposals for the betterment of conditions in the various sections of the trade.

Mr. W. A. Scott, D.T.P.S., presided at the meeting.

KILKENNY PRISONERS

SENT TO MOUNTJOY AND WATERFORD

Civic Guards made a further round-up in the Kells (Co. Kilkenny) area during the last week-end. The following eight young men were taken into custody in connection, it is stated, with the felling of trees, and were later removed to Mountjoy Prison:—Patrick Mullins, Kells; Patrick Lanigan, ditto; Anthony Marnell, ditto; Thomas Condon, ditto; Philip Comerford, ditto; James O'Neill, ditto; James Peters, Dunnamaggin, and Thomas Quinn, Templeorum, Knocktopher. A further batch of prisoners were sent to Waterford Jail, where they are detained. Their names are:—Michael Costello, Goodwinsgardens; Kieran Holden, Vinesgrove; William Brownrigg, ditto; John Walsh, Ballintee; James Kearney, Thomas Kearney and John Fitzgerald, Oldtown.

"THE CHURCH OF IRELAND GAZETTE"

The current issue of of the Church of Ireland Gazette contains the farewell address of the Bishop of Down to the last Synod over which he presided. Another contribution from the North is the text of Mr. J. Barker Wells' address to the same Synod on missionary responsibility, and some detailed news for the North appears in the Belfast Notes. Archæologists will be interested in the Rev. W. E. Kenny's short paper on "The Witness of the Primitive Churches of the Church of Ireland," and people who like a provocative sermon will find one in the abridged Cambridge University sermon of the Bishop of Birmingham. Parish and diocesan news and correspondence, together with the other usual features, complete an excellent number.

BEET FOR MALLOW FACTORY

A large crowd was at Mallow Railway Station, County Cork, last night, to see the arrival of the first train load of beet for the new Mallow sugar factory. There were about twenty waggons containing beet, which had been loaded at Dungarvan, Cappagh and Lismore.

The train was met by Mr. R. C. Dawson, stationmaster, and Mr. J. Roche, chairman of Mallow Urban Council, and was quickly dealt with. Three other trains were expected to arrive early this morning.

For about another week some nineteen waggons of beet will be dealt with, and after that, when the sugar manufacturing period begins, there will be a greatly increased traffic to the factory. Three trains carrying beet are expected soon from the South of Wexford, where the crop has been good this year.

FARMER GETS £500 DAMAGES

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

In the High Court, Belfast, to-day, before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury, James McCullagh, farmer, Moneyrea, claimed damages for injuries sustained through the negligence of Robert M'Giffert, Rathcunningham, Toye, Co. Down, in the control of a motor car.

When the case was called Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., announced that a settlement had been reached. Mr. William Lowry, K.C., subsequently announced that the case had been settled on the terms that the plaintiff was to have judgment for £500, with costs. The Lord Chief Justice ruled accordingly.

RAILWAY CLERKS' ASSOCIATION

Senator J. T. O'Farrell (Irish Secretary), speaking at the annual meeting of Dublin No. 1 Branch of the Railway Clerks' Association in Dublin last night, said that, largely as a result of the transport legislation of last year, the railways in the Saorstát were showing increased traffic receipts, and with the slow, but sure, elimination of wasteful competition seemed to be definitely on the upgrade.

He appealed to all, in celebration of the Railway Centenary, to put forth their best efforts with a view to making the railways and their road transport subsidiaries a great public service and a national asset.

Mr. E. O'Sullivan presided.

The following officers, committee and delegations were elected:—Chairman, Mr. M. C. O'Donoghue; Vice-Chairman, Mr. J. R. Crawford; Financial Secretary, Mr. K. Bunyan; Correspondence Secretary, Mr. M. MacMahon; Organising Secretary, Mr. C. Courtney (unopposed). Committee—Messrs. E. Flanagan, Cullen, J. J. Kelly, C. Lenihan, J. Mangan, P. McCabe, C. McCarthy. Dublin Trades' Council Delegation — Messrs. M. O'Sullivan, M. C. O'Donoghue, W. P. Greene, P. H. Greene, J. R. Crawford. Auditors, Messrs. C. Barry and C. Meneghan. Journal Agent, Mr. W. P. Greene (unopposed).

CHESS

IRISH CHAMPIONSHIP FINAL MATCH

The first of the series of games in the final match for the Irish Chess Championship, was played at the Dublin Chess Club yesterday evening between Mr. J. Creevey, who is defending the title, and Mr. J. J. O'Hanlon, challenger, who qualified by his recent success in the preliminary tourney. Mr. Creevey, winning the toss, selected the white pieces, and played Reti's opening, which black defended with Rubenstein's variation, advancing P to Q5 on his second move. His opponent was ready with the correct reply of P—Q Kt4. Black might have played P—QB4 early in the game. In not doing so, it allowed Black to work his pawns on the Queen's side into a strong position. At move 17, White, by sacrificing his QB pawn, succeeded, by a Queen check, in winning his opponent's White Bishop. Although playing excellent chess, Black was never able to recover, and was compelled to capitulate to his opponent at the 45th move.

The next game will be played this evening at 6 o'clock, when Mr. O'Hanlon, with the white pieces, will, no doubt, fight hard to make the score level.

A STOMACH SUFFERER REGAINS HEALTH

Eats normally after months on milk and fish

It's no joke to be six months on a diet of milk and fish and then to have to go into hospital for stomach disorder. But luckily for Mr. G. H. G——, of Tennison road, Ipswich, in hospital they gave him Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, and he felt relief from the very first dose. No wonder he regrets he did not know of this marvellous remedy before wasting time and money on other things. Here is his letter:

"It is with much pleasure that I inform you of the great relief and help your Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has been to me. Before entering hospital for Stomach Disorder I was on milk and fish diet for six months and lost weight rapidly. I was given your Powder in hospital, and felt relief from the first, and since my discharge from hospital in June, with the help of your Powder, have been able to get back to my normal diet with no ill after-effects. My only regret is that I did not know of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder before wasting time and money in other useless medicines and drugs."

Get a bottle of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder to-day. It will do the same for you, but ask your chemist for the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder with the signature "ALEX C. MACLEAN." It is not sold loose, but only in 1/6, 2/3 and 5/3 bottles, in cartons, of Powder or Tablets.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Switzerland and the Saorstat : Safety Razors : Stone Walls : A Glasgow Playwright : Ireland's Cardinal

Swiss Consul-General

Dr. Benziger, the first Swiss Consul-General to the Irish Free State, has arrived in Dublin. He will present his credentials to President de Valera next week at Government Buildings. Dr. Benziger, who is accompanied by his secretary, only returned to Switzerland last month from Danzig. There he acted for the past three years on behalf of the Swiss Government as President of the Port Council in connection with the League of Nations. Seen last evening in Dublin, the Swiss Consul-General, who is a tall, scholarly-looking man, said that he found Dublin more or less about the same size and of equal population with Danzig. Although he does not speak English very fluently, he is well acquainted with Irish history. Before he went to Danzig he was Director of the Consular Service at the Department of Foreign Affairs in Berne.

Dr. Benziger's wife and family, who have been in Berne since their return from Danzig, will rejoin him in Dublin later. His circle consists of Madame Benziger, two daughters and a son. His family will be very popular in Ireland; for his two girls are now accomplished horsewomen, although they are still engaged with their studies. In Danzig they rode a great deal, the Consul-General said, because there were a great many horses there.

It was only last winter that the Swiss Government decided to send a Consul-General to Dublin. The decision was taken on the recommendation of an officer in a high position in the Swiss Army who is devoted to Ireland.

Stone Walls

It is difficult to regard with enthusiasm many of the building extensions which are growing up like mushrooms around the City of Dublin. There is little that is original or artistic about them, and the planning, such as it is, seems to have been done on the haphazard system which has already led to the condemnation of these "bungaloid growths" in other countries. One aspect, however, of the new building schemes in country districts deserves to be commended. The erection of new houses, particularly in South Dublin, has been responsible for the breaking down of many formidable stone walls, which have for so long shut out from the humble pedestrian all views of the surrounding country. To some slight extent the demands of modern transport had already compelled the construction of certain openings in these boundary walls, but the new development in housing has led to their wholesale destruction. Most of these high walls were built during the eighteenth century, when landed proprietors were able to obtain cheap labour, and some of them were constructed as relief works during times of great privation. It is not to be regretted that they should now have to give way to other methods of protecting property, which have not the disadvantages of excluding many pleasant vistas from the public view.

Clouts

I suppose there is some wisdom behind the saying, of which we are all reminded at the beginning of summer: "Ne'er cast a clout till May be out." If this is really good advice, based on experience, why should we not be provided with some proverbial counsel as to when we should resume the discarded garments? A good deal of evidence might be produced to show that the transition from autumn to winter is usually more rapid and treacherous than the change from winter to spring. The common cold is probably more frequent about the beginning of November than at any other time, because people neglect to assume winter clothing until the damage is already done. Medical opinion is always prepared to assert that colds are due to microbic activities, and not to any sudden change of temperature. If that is so, there must be countless millions of "cold germs" waiting for victims everywhere, since the ordinary individual who is exposed for some time to a violent draught of chilly air will soon find that he has acquired the preliminary symptoms of the common cold. Consequently, it would appear that the only method of prevention is to maintain the general resistance. A friend of mine, who assures me that he never suffers from a cold, attributes his immunity to the fact that he wears two light-weight summer garments in winter instead of one heavy one. I do not know whether this expedient would suit everybody, but there may be something in the theory that the wearing of two super-imposed garments tends to the formation of a protective zone of warm air between them.

Safety Razors

I sometimes wonder how far certain modern labour-saving—and alleged money-saving—devices really fulfil the objects for which they were intended. The other day, for instance, I found it necessary to get shaved in a hair-dresser's. Not having had this experience for a good many years, I thought it curious that the attendant should set to work with an old hollow-ground weapon, instead of some shining chromium-plated gadget worked by electricity. On mentioning the matter, I gathered that the barber's views were very conservative. According to him, the use of a safety razor indicated that the owner was of a lazy disposition, and he began to lament the fact that there were very few people nowadays who knew how to put an edge on any steel implement. Of the millions of safety razor blades manufactured every year, he suggested that, while a small percentage might be good, the rest were probably bad or indifferent. On an average, one blade at fourpence might give three shaves, so that the maintenance of a safety razor in working order would be out of all proportion to the cost of an ordinary hollow-ground. As for immunity from blood-letting, I had to admit having experienced the wicked cuts which the safety razor is capable of inflicting, not only on the face, but on the fingers, and when the barber wished to know what was my solution of the used blades problem, and at the same time finished my shave, it became obvious that his old "hollow-ground" was winning all along the line.

A Glasgow Playwright

Judging by the reports of his new play at Manchester this week, Mr. James Bridie, the Glasgow dramatist, seems destined to play a big part in the history of the British theatre. In his three plays—"The Sleeping Clergyman," "The Anatomist," and now "Mary Read"—he has set himself the difficult task of making drama out of actual events spread over a long number of years. There has, I think, been a kind of unwritten law that the picaresque is unsuited to dramatic treatment; but Mr. Bridie, by using time itself as the villain of his pieces, has proved this to be very insecurely founded. Apart from Mr. Denis Johnston, I can think of no comparatively new playwright who deserves watching more than Mr. Bridie. The performance of Mr. W. G. Fay as Sergeant Casey, an old Irish soldier, appears to have been one of the outstanding acting merits in a play which has fifty characters, including Miss Flora Robson. The production was in the hands of another Irishman, Mr. Tyrone Guthrie, better known to some as Tyrone Powers, whose reputation as a producer has grown with each new achievement since he left Belfast four years ago for London.

Cardinal MacRory

The name of Joseph Cardinal MacRory, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, will, one may safely assert, find a permanently prominent place in the works of future historians when the events of this period in Ireland come to be recorded; not alone for his many admirable personal qualities, but also because His Eminence was the first Irishman to be honoured with the appointment of Papal Legate, a distinction which has twice been bestowed on him. The first occasion was when Cardinal Bourne, Cardinal-Archbishop of Westminster, who had been designated Papal Legate to the foundation-stone laying of Liverpool's new Cathedral during Whitsuntide of last year, became indisposed, and his place was taken by Cardinal MacRory. The second is, of course, his naming as Legate to the Melbourne Centenary celebrations, a duty which he is at present fulfilling.

This reminds me that His Eminence next year will celebrate the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood and the twentieth anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Down and Connor. His Eminence, during a long and busy ecclesiastical life, has filled many important professorial positions in Saint Patrick's College, Maynooth. He is a gifted writer, and is the author of standard works on "The Gospel of Saint John" and "The First and Second Epistles to the Corinthians." He was co-founder and, for a time, chief editor of The Irish Theological Quarterly, in which many valuable contributions from his pen appeared.

Meteors from the Sickle

It is probable that the Leonids will appear in unusual numbers in the present month, and so compensate in some measure for their paucity in recent years. There will be little or no moonlight to impede observations, especially during the early morning hours. The main Leonid display falls on the night of the 16th, or, rather, during the morning hours of the 17th, the chief maxima occurring at 7.50 p.m. on the 16th, and on the 17th at 2.40 and 4.5 a.m. The first of those occurs nearly three hours before the radiant in the Sickle in the upper part of Leo rises, but sporadic meteors—that is, those from diffuse radiants, as in Ursa Major and Gemini—are sometimes much in evidence in the early hours of the night on which a Leonid shower takes place later. The other two maxima, the one near three o'clock in the morning and the other after four, fall under more favourable conditions, and are likely to furnish brilliant Leonids in considerable numbers. The showers give promise of being most active between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. on the 17th, and will thus be visible over the British Isles and Western Europe generally.

The Andromedids, which rank next in importance to the Leonids, will be chiefly in evidence on the 19th, and maxima may be looked for at about 8.30 and 10 p.m. Their radiant is centred near Gamma Andromedæ. These meteors are pre-eminently an evening shower, whereas the Leonids are just as much a morning one. The Andromedids present also another curious difference in that they occur earlier and earlier in the month, while the Leonids fall later and later, having been originally an October shower. Among other displays of the month are those of November 22-23 and 28-30. On the 27th there is also a large maximum at 5 a.m., and on the night of the 29th and 30th maxima occurs at 11 and 8.40 respectively.

QUIDNUNC.

PEACE SETTLEMENT GOING INTO LIQUIDATION

THE POSITION OF GERMANY

SENSITIVENESS OF UNDER-DOG

PROBLEM OF FUTURE POLICY

In the third of his lectures dealing with the post-war problem of international relations, which Professor A. J. Toynbee, Research Professor of International History at the University of London, is delivering, under the auspices of the Lady Ardilaun Lectures, at Alexandra College, Dublin, the lecturer dealt yesterday with "Problems in the Foreground."

Between the coming into force of the Versailles Treaty in 1920 and the present moment, the peace settlement, he said, had been going into liquidation, chapter by chapter—first the war guilt chapter (though the psychological effect of the one-sided attribution of all the guilt to Germany had brought forth some very poisonous fruit in Hitlerism), then the reparations chapter, then the disarmament chapter. This was not surprising, but the question was how far this liquidation was going to go?

Was the rearmament of Germany, he asked, going to prevent a general reduction of armaments? And if there was a general increase in the armaments of all countries could the rather frail and rudimentary peace organisation of the League of Nations stand the strain?

It was invidious to name rebels, and before doing so he wanted to make three points:—

(a) The peace settlement had brought forth both wheat and tares, and it was extraordinarily difficult to root up the tares without making a clean sweep of the whole crop.

(b) The arch-rebels to-day were countries on whom the injustice of the peace settlement had borne in certain respects particularly hard.

(c) The bad behaviour of the rebels, though flagrant, was only an extreme example of behaviour of which every country in the world was guilty in some degree.

THE UNDER-DOG

Germany, said Professor Toynbee, was suffering from the morbid sensitiveness of the under-dog. When kept forcibly in a position of inferiority, or inequality, or injustice, one tended to become a monomaniac. That state of mind was easier to understand for Irishmen than for Englishmen, because in England they had not had the experience of being under-dog within living memory, whereas that was an experience which all Irish people in the present generation had gone through, whichever party or religion they belonged to. Representatives of the Irish Free State and of the Union of South Africa were more sensitive than those of the United Kingdom or Australia about their position in the British Commonwealth. Rather in a similar way Germany was more sensitive than France or the United States about her position in the general comity of nations. The sensitiveness of the under-dog was at its greatest when the under-dog happens to be somebody who had his position suddenly and violently reversed from domination to subordination, without ever having experienced what it was like to be in the neutral position of equality with his neighbours. That experience of an extreme reversal of fortune was familiar to a section of the people of Ireland. Any Irishman who belonged by tradition to the Protestant "garrison" of the old régime of the ascendancy would be able to enter, with sympathetic imagination, into the feelings of the Germans to-day. The German Empire was the dominant Continental military power before the war, and the German people were top-dogs, not only in Germany, but also in Austria, the Baltic Provinces, and wherever they were intermixed with other peoples. To-day Germany was militarily the weakest of the Great Powers of Europe—still by far the weakest, in spite of her rearmament. And the scattered German minorities were everywhere under foreign rule.

That extreme reversal of fortune was the superficial and immediate cause of Germany's present revolt against the peace settlement.

GERMAN POLICY

The question for them, then, was what was Germany's policy to be? It was obvious that she was determined to get out of her present position of inferiority, but would she be content with an equality that had never yet been offered to her, or would she attempt to recapture by force a position of domination over non-German peoples and territories which she possessed before the War and which was forcibly taken away by the peace settlement?

It looked as if on this all-important question the people in power in Germany did not yet know their own minds. The written word, not only of Herr Rosenberg, but of Herr Hitler himself, before he came into power, was frankly Imperialistic, but Hitler's spoken word, since coming into power, was something quite different. It was that Germany had no thought of depriving other nations of the national rights which she demanded for herself. He had spoken that language to France and Poland, and in Poland, at any rate, he had found some response. Herr Hitler's accession to power had been followed by a notable improvement in relations between Poland and Germany—the Poles have taken him at his word.

The question was which policy was Germany going to pursue—the policy of Imperial expansion or that of reconciliation with her neighbours? In finding an answer the trouble was, first, that the delimination of one nation's just rights was extraordinarily complicated and difficult, as they knew by experience in Ireland; and, secondly, that the Germans themselves did not know what their final mood would be.

JAPAN'S STATUS

Japan, said Professor Toynbee, was in a more ironical position than Germany. She was an official victor—one of the five principal Allied and Associated Powers, but was bitterly conscious of having been thrust into a position of a humiliatingly inferior status. The Japanese were just as childishly race-proud as Nordicmen, but the white people treated the Japanese as an inferior race. President Wilson refused to write racial equality into the Covenant of the League. In 1924 "The Gentleman's Agreement" in respect of the emigration of Japanese to the United States was abrogated, and the Japanese were included in the Oriental exclusion clause of the Immigration Restriction Act of the United States of America, while the European countries were restricted to a quota.

Since Japan had entered into the great society of the modern Western world, some sixty years ago, her population had been increasing enormously. The net increase is nine hundred thousand per annum, but only fifteen per cent. of the area of Japan was cultivable, and she had virtually no minerals. The line of least resistance would be colonisation, but the empty countries of the Pacific coast of Asia already had been colonised. Therefore to-day Japan could not solve her population problem by colonisation. She was trying to solve it by the alternative method of industrialisation, selling Japanese manufactures on the world markets, and paying with the proceeds for imports of food and raw materials.

THE STRANGLEHOLD

That policy, however, was being defeated by the world-wide economic nationalism that was strangling trade. Hence the Japanese had turned in despair to a policy of Imperialism—to use their naval and military power in order to seize political dominion over as much of the Far East as they could lay hands on, in order to secure monopoly for their own manufactures in a closed and controlled market.

This policy was launched in 1931, and her action already had made a possibly fatal breach in their post-war system of international law and order, and it might lead easily to another world war, with its main theatre in the Far East, though Europe would not escape its explosions.

Italy, Hungary and Poland also were in rebellion, though less dangerously, partly because they were less deeply aggrieved. Italy was in rather the same position as Japan, and Hungary similar to that of Germany. The Polish rebellion was the oddest, because Poland had gained more from the peace settlement than any other post-war country. She owed to it not only her existence, her re-appearance on the political map, but also a domination over a number of subject non-Polish nationalities, which in the aggregate amount to one-third of her population. Poland was prepared to risk her political existence, which she lost before, for the sake of her status as a Great Power. In order not to be a satellite of France she was throwing over an alliance which was her chief present security against a German revanche: in order to be fully sovereign she was repudiating the minorities protection treaty with the principal Allied Powers, which was an integral part of the peace settlement on which Poland's whole position depended. The effect may be a reconciliation between Germany and Poland, but if that reconciliation were followed up by a joint aggression against Russia and Czechoslovakia, then the fat was in the fire."

BALANCE OF POWER

Professor Toynbee said that after any general war ending in a knock-out there was always a tendency for the balance of power to re-assert itself through a break-up of the victorious coalition. On the eve of the National-Socialist revolution in Germany it looked as though there would be a re-division of Europe into two camps, with France, Poland and the little Entente in one camp, and Italy, Germany and Russia in the other. Since Herr Hitler came into power Russia and Italy had sheered off from Germany and made a rapprochement with France; but, on the other hand, Poland and perhaps Jugo-Slavia, had moved away from France towards Germany. If France now re-acquired Italy and Russia and her allies, but lost her Central European satellites to Germany, they should have a new alignment which would be ominously like that on which the war of 1914-1918 was fought—the Central Powers on one side and the Western Powers and Russia on the other.

The attitudes and relations of the Powers to-day were dangerous, and the danger was increased by the apparent inability to keep armaments or economic nationalism within bounds. The Japanese case showed how economic nationalism, by strangling international trade, closed down one of the great safety valves through which a nation with increasing energies and increasing demands could give vent to its energies, and find satisfaction for its demands without resort to war. If that safety valve was closed and the danger of war so increased, then the prospect obviously became much more serious if armaments were being increased competitively instead of being maintained by agreement on a low level.

Dr. T. Gillman Moorhead presided.

THE PRODUCTION CENSUS

FIGURES FOR FOUR INDUSTRIES

INCREASE IN TOTAL VALUE OF GOODS

The preliminary figures of the Census of Production, issued by the Department of Industry and Commerce in connection with the grain-milling industry; the printing, publishing and bookbinding industry; and the hosiery and the metal trade industries, which are published to-day, reveal that there was an increase in the total value of the goods made and work done of £600,188 in 1932, as compared with the previous year.

In the grain milling industry the net selling value of goods produced and work done in 1931 was £5,401,416, which increased to £5,839,359 on the following year. The figures for the publishing industry increased from £1,883,867 in 1931 to £2,025,445 in 1932. There was an increase from £237,814 to £275,207 in the hosiery industry, but there was a marked decline in the metal trade figures from £493,596 to £476,870 in 1932.

EMPLOYEES AND WAGES

It is shown that in the same industries the numbers of persons employed in mid-October in 1932 had increased by 317, while the wages paid to both the male and female employés was greater by £63,020. The number of persons employed in the grain-milling industry in 1931 was 3,221, the wages earned amounting to £298,301, while in 1932 the figures had increased to 3,357, the sum of £296,879 having been paid in wages. In the hosiery industry there were employed in 1931, 2,033 persons, wage earners receiving £52,282. These figures had increased to 2,132 persons receiving £59,520 in the following year. There was an increase from 5,743 to 5,867 persons engaged in the printing and kindred industries, the amounts of wages paid showing an increase from £622,467 to £657,104. Although the number of persons engaged in the metal trades declined from 1,727 in 1931 to 1,687 in 1932, there was an increase in the wages paid, the figures being £150,569 and £171,136.

MORE WHEAT HANDLED

The grain milling industries included the preparation of products from wheat, maize, oats and barley. Millers dealt with more wheat in 1932, the net selling value being £2,723,108, compared with £2,501,835 in the preceding year. The quantity of self-raising flour manufactured was 7,465 cwts., which realised £7,497. These figures showed little increase from the preceding year. The maize products disposed of realised £2,821,820 in 1932, as against £2,644,169 in 1931. The products manufactured included whole maize meal, maize meal and mixed maize meal. The oat products, which included oatmeal, groats, crushed oats and offals were value for £167,698 in 1932. In the preceding year the gross value of the products was somewhat higher at £178,642.

The net selling value of the gross output of barley done on commission showed an increase of £1,943. The value of the total products from barley was £115,572, as compared with £63,428 in the previous year. The total cost of the ingredients used in the grain-milling industry amounted to £4,791,274 in 1932, as against £4,266,599 in 1931.

METAL BUSINESS

The net output in the metal trades after deducting the cost of the materials used in manufacture was £266,848 in 1932, which was a decline from 1931, when the figure was £286,135. Castings and manufactured iron and steel had a net selling value of £87,088 in 1932, compared with £88,483 in 1931. The value of tinplate and Japanned goods manufactured showed little difference in the two years, the figures being £53,744 in 1931 and £53,250 in the following year. There was a decline from £68,109 to £56,253 in the value of girders, beams and joists, but the manufacture of metallic bedsteads jumped from £34,638 to £38,662. There were more articles manufactured from precious metals in 1931, the net selling value being £33,371, as compared with £26,210 in the following year. The manufacture of galvanised tanks, however, increased, as shown from the fact that, while in 1931 the selling value was £12,651, in 1932 it was value for £34,802.

The cost of the materials used in hosiery manufacture amounted to £138,488 in 1932—an increase from £113,608 in the preceding year. The gross output figures showed that the net selling value of woollen stockings was £112,471 in 1932, and £116,331 in the year before. Cotton stockings were valued at £23,676 in 1932, and £10,732 in 1931. Other articles manufactured included cotton and wool underwear, the value of which were £39,384 in 1932 and £21,345 in 1931. Woollen cardigans and shawls had a net selling value of £84,290 in 1932, and £77,993 in the previous year. There was an increase in the manufacture of woollen gloves, the value being fixed at £7,213 in 1932, as against £6,642 in 1931.

PRINTING TRADE

In the printing, publishing, bookbinding, and engraving industries the highest sum realised for the two years was in the newspaper business. The returns for 1932 showed that the sum of £1,032,820 had been obtained, as against £945,370 in 1931. The amount of job-printing also showed an increase from £489,256 to £520,069. There was an increase of almost £4,000 in respect of the printing of magazines, while the value of manuscript books increased from £56,773 to £63,128. The value of the work done in connection with bookbinding for trade and private customers was £56,269 in 1932, whereas it had been put at £53,325 in the previous year.

The printing of books, which was valued at £121,646 in 1931, had declined to £111,227 in the following year. The cost of the materials used in the different branches of the industry amounted to £475,629 in 1932, the figure for the previous year being £462,485.

DUBLIN: Symphony Concert. Conductor, E. Godfrey Brown, 7.30.

BELFAST: "Morning Heroes" (Arthur Bliss). Conducted by the Composer, 8.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Dvorak Programme. Conductor, Adrian Boult, 10.15.

ALL REGIONALS: The Kolisch String Quartet, 8.50.

KONIGSBERG: Concert Version of "Don Carlos" (Verdi), 7.50.

BEROMUNSTER: Opera, "Undine" (Lortzing), 7.

Elgar's "Enigma" variations will be heard to-night as read by Mr. E. Godfrey Brown, B.B.C. Director of Music at Belfast, when, as guest conductor, he will be in charge of the Symphony Concert in the Dublin Studio, which commences with this work. The 2RN Symphony Orchestra, under the able leadership of Terry O'Connor, who very recently was heard as soloist from the Belfast Station, also will play scherzo for strings on the tune, "Follow me down to Carlow," by Redmond Friel, and Stanford's Irish Rhapsody No. 1 in D minor, in addition to other interesting works. On this occasion Betty Byrne (contralto) has been chosen as soloist, who will sing, first, a group of Elgar songs, and later a group by Stanford and Hardebeck's "Ballaghaderreen."

The Belfast Wireless Symphony Orchestra and Chorus are giving a studio performance of "Morning Heroes," the symphony by Arthur Bliss for orator, chorus and orchestra. Basil Maine, as orator, will declaim the words against the music. They are taken from the Iliad, Walt Whitman, Wilfred Owen, Robert Nichols and Li-Tai-Po. Dedicated by the composer to the memory of his brother and all other comrades killed in battle, the work takes its title from Robert Nichols's "Dawn on the Somme." The performance to-night will be conducted by Arthur Bliss in person.

In the portion of the B.B.C. Chamber Concert for broadcasting, the Kolisch String Quartet will play Schubert's Quartet movement in C minor, and Quartet in B flat, Op. 130, with Grosse Fuga, Op. 133, as finale, by Beethoven. The playing of the two quartets will be separated by three love songs of Schubert, sung by Margot Hinnenberg-Lefèbre (soprano).

Continuing to note the programmes of a more serious character, we find that "The Microphone at Large" this week will visit Tewkesbury Abbey, whence a programme arranged and presented by Walter Pitchford and Owen Reed will be relayed. Changes will be rung on the Abbey bells by the Diocesan Guild of Ringers. The singing to be broadcast should be judged, Mr. Pitchford points out, by the standard of an ordinary country parish church, since Tewkesbury Abbey has no endowment for the maintenance of choral service. On the other hand, the Abbey has two organs, both of which will be heard. The smaller one, built in 1637, was played upon by the poet Milton. (Midland Regional, 7.45).

IRISH INSURANCE COMPANIES' MERGER?

Reports were current in insurance circles in Dublin yesterday that consideration is being given to a plan to merge two of the leading Irish insurance companies. This, it was stated, would be one move in the campaign to retain all Irish insurance within the Free State.

No confirmation could be obtained regarding the report, which stated that £500,000 would be the capital of the new venture. As far as can be ascertained, however, the matter is receiving some preliminary discussion; but it was pointed out to an Irish Times representative that very big interests would be involved and any amalgamation of insurance companies would be difficult.

10,000 SEE "JULIUS CÆSAR"

GATE THEATRE'S GREAT SUCCESS

FROM OUR THEATRE CORRESPONDENT.

By running for four weeks at the Gate Theatre "Julius Cæsar" has made theatrical history in Dublin; for never before has a production run so long in this city. "Julius Cæsar," as a matter of fact, might easily have improved on its record by running for a fifth week, as the attendances have shown no slackening off at all, and the house has been full every night since the play opened. Its last performance, however, will take place to-morrow; for the Gate's programme for this season would be badly disorganised if it were kept on any longer.

The play's remarkable success is still rather a mystery. It is calculated that when the final curtain goes down to-morrow night ten thousand people will have seen the production. How is it that so many people in Dublin will come to a Shakespeare performance, especially when the play is not really one of the great plays? "Julius Cæsar" has some splendid moments, but there is no doubt that one's interest in it is liable to slacken after the Forum scene, and usually it needs an effort to keep one's attention on the last few scenes.

Still the answer probably lies in the production itself, which must be one of the best ever seen in Dublin. When I saw Mr. Hilton Edwards and Mr. Micheal MacLiammoir yesterday, both, oddly enough, seemed inclined to question this. They said that the production of "Julius Cæsar" was no better than that of several other Gate plays, and certainly not so good as the production of "Peer Gynt" two years ago. I do not think that the audiences will agree with them. "Julius Cæsar" seemed to many of us to be Mr. Hilton Edwards's best effort so far, and the masterly way in which he managed the cast would have been worth seeing in any play. To have put so large a crowd on so small a stage would have been foolhardy in any other producer, but he kept them rushing about here and there, shouting, gesticulating, and swirling round the figure of Antony, as if they had all the space in Drury Lane at their disposal. It was an extraordinary sight, and this, combined with fine acting, is probably one of the main reasons for the play's success. At all events, it is very encouraging to know that, at a time when Hollywood has so firm a hold on us, there are still ten thousand people in Dublin who will go to see Shakespeare.

"Julius Cæsar" will be succeeded on Tuesday night by "The Provok'd Wife," a comedy, by Sir John Vanbrugh.

WHERE DIAMONDS DIFFER

TWO TYPES FOUND

Two distinct types of diamonds were described in a lecture by Sir Robert Robertson, K.B.E., D.Sc., F.R.S., before the Royal Dublin Society at Ballsbridge yesterday.

The first examination applied was by the spectrum, and it was discovered that two distinct types—one transparent—existed. The transparent type was characterised by laminations, and was, in reality, a mosaic diamond. This was confirmed on X-ray examination. "While the X-ray gives the static position of the atoms, we learned," said Sir Robert, "that there is a definite vibration of the atoms in a diamond."

Intense light had no electrical effect on the ordinary diamond, but there was a very strong response in the transparent diamond, which was also found to produce its own voltage. Enquiries showed that the existence of the transparent diamond was not confined to the Cape Province, but a specimen had also been obtained from Brazil.

ELECTRIC HEATING OF BUILDINGS

ENGINEERS DISCUSS PROBLEM

The engineering practice relating to the electrical warming and air conditioning of large buildings was discussed in a paper read by Mr. R. Grierson before the Institute of Electrical Engineers (Irish Centre) at Trinity College, Dublin, last night. The lecturer, who was joint author of the paper with Mr. D. Betts, also discussed the supply of hot water to such buildings.

Mr. Grierson commented that the application of the principle of heat insulation in relation to the maintenance of buildings at a normal temperature did not appear to have been properly considered. The paper was mainly devoted to a discussion of the engineering problems affecting the matter, and how the electrical heating could be supplied and the types of apparatus used. The lecturer predicted that eventually the transport of fuel and ashes, with the resulting dislocation of traffic, through the streets will be prohibited, and that the combustion of liquid and solid fuel will be centralised in licensed premises, zoned under town-planning schemes, and operated under the strict supervision of combustion engineers.

IRISH WEDDING IN LONDON

MR. D. W. MOERAN AND MISS M. L. C. STEWART

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Thursday.

The marriage took place this afternoon at the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields of Mr. Dermot Warner Moeran, son of Mr. A. E. Moeran and the late Mrs. Moeran, of Kylenoe Wood, Borrisokane, Co. Tipperary, and Miss Margaret Leila Campbell Stewart, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel A. C. Stewart, D.S.O., of Knocke, Belgium, and Mrs. Stewart, of Bradbourne Dene, Sevenoaks, Kent.

The Rev. George F. Saywell, Rector of Holy Trinity Church, Marylebone, officiated with the Vicar of St. Martin's (the Rev. W. P. G. McCormick).

The bride was escorted and given away by her father. She wore a handsome gown of deep parchment-tinted velvet, with a short train, spreading from the skirt itself. The long, full sleeves were embroidered with pearls and crystal beads. Her veil of matching parchment tulle was held by a narrow wreath of pearls, and she carried a sheaf of flame-hued lilies and foliage.

There were no bridesmaids.

Mr. Cyril Hogg acted as best man.

Mrs. Stewart held a reception afterwards at 21 Devonshire place (lent by Dr. Margaret Lowenfeld).

The honeymoon will be spent in Scotland.

Among those at the wedding were:—Mr. A. E. Moeran, Miss Moeran, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Campbell, Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mr. Oliver Campbell and Dr. Margaret Lowenfeld.

PEAMOUNT DANCE

The Peamount Care Committee are holding their annual dance in aid of their funds on Friday, 30th November, at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin. For the past eleven years this dance has been one of the big social events of the year. It is worthy of support, as the entire receipts go to the funds of the Care Committee, whose chief work is the "after-care" of patients who have returned to their homes in the city from Peamount Sanatorium.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE LATE A. R. ORAGE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Surely Mr. T. Kennedy, the Hon. Secretary of the F.F.F., misses the point of the New Statesman and Nation's reference to the late A. R. Orage, the Douglas formula, and Socialism. Admitting that some such scheme of credit reform, but not the Douglas formula, would have to be adopted by a Socialist community, the Statesman and Nation diarist wrote: "My trouble was that it was dangerous to let people think you could transform capitalism by an attack on bankers and financiers alone, and that I feared that the Douglasites might be lured into support of the Fascists. Orage cordially agreed." But what did he agree with? Not simply in the generalisation given in Mr. Kennedy's words as "making the financial system an accurate reflection of our wonderful productive system—but this is not Socialism." No; but as "Critic" put it in the Statesman and Nation, Orage "did believe in the Douglas formula, and believed he ought to propagate it, but he was a Socialist as well, and never thought that Douglasism could be applied except by Socialists." There is, I think, a world of difference between that and Mr. Kennedy's apparent belief that all that needs to be done is to apply the Douglas system. Orage was too clear a thinker and too thorough a searcher to permit himself to imagine, as some credit reformers even in Ireland do, that all the evils of capitalism could be got rid of by the most drastic reform of banking and finance.—Yours, etc.,

C. O'S.

Dublin, November 14, 1934.

THE BERWICK HOME

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In response to many suggestions, the Governors of the Berwick Holiday Home, Rathfarnham, have decided to enlarge the work of the Home by accepting a limited number of permanent residents, ladies of reduced income, to whom the specially designed terms, combined with the advantages offered, would be of particular benefit.

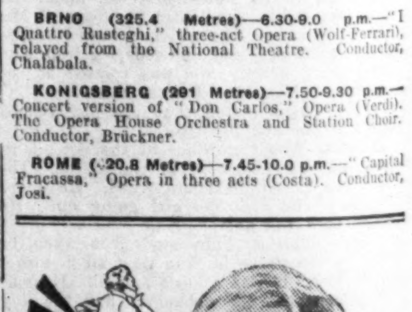

The Home, originally an old country seat, has large and sunny sittingrooms; there is Vartry water and a regular 'bus service. Cubicles have each their own window, with a wide view of the Dublin Mountains, and space for personal possessions. There are no rules.

It is felt by the Governors that there may be many lonely women, to a few of whom we could extend this opportunity of sheltered comfort, difficult otherwise for limited means to secure, the inclusive terms being less than 20s. weekly.

There is no distinction of creed, and may I add that the help of the clergy would be of very special value in bringing us into touch wherever possible.

The summer holiday and week-end work, which, since 1895, have brought enjoyment and benefit to young professional and business women, will continue as heretofore, and, with the provision of extra accommodation, be fully maintained.—Yours, etc.,

EMILY BERWICK, President,
The Berwick Home, Rathfarnham,
Co. Dublin, November 15th, 1934.

Backache

Gone! "It was my lucky day when I started Kruschen!"

"Some six weeks ago I started with awful pains in my back, lumbago or something. Sometimes I could not straighten myself, and I got quite depressed and felt worn out. I spotted your advert. in the press, and decided to get a bottle of Kruschen (in fact I had to send some one, I could not get to the town myself, I was in such awful misery). I started with a small teaspoonful in hot water every morning, and in three weeks' time, my word what an improvement. The pains gradually disappeared, and as I write this letter I feel ten years younger (although I am only 46 years old), and have just returned from a game of hockey with my daughter."

Mrs. H—M—, Manchester.

The six salts in Kruschen coax your kidneys back to healthy, normal action, so that not a particle of poisonous waste matter remains unexpelled. You experience joyous relief from those old dragging pains.

Tasteless in Tea.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

We have distributed to Chemists 10,000 special "GIANT" 1/9 packages. These consist of our regular 1/9 bottle together with a separate trial bottle—sufficient for about one week. Open the trial bottle first. Put it to the test. And then, if not entirely satisfied, the regular bottle is still as good as new; take it back. The chemist is authorised to return your 1/9 immediately and without question. You have tried Kruschen free at our expense. What could be fairer?

DAIL VOTES £150,000 FOR RELIEF WORKS

MR. LEMASS'S STATEMENT ON UNEMPLOYMENT

IT HAS DECREASED IN THE LAST TWO YEARS

A MOTION by the Minister for Finance, in the Dail yesterday, to make available the sum of £150,000 for the relief of unemployment and distress, drew from the leader of Labour in the House the remark that the amount would make little impression on the unemployment problem, where the number of persons now out of work was in the neighbourhood of 100,000.

Mr. Lemass, the Minister for Industry and Commerce, who expressed disagreement with some of Mr. Norton's statements, asserted that, "not only had unemployment not increased in the Free State during the past two years, but it had decreased. "I make that statement," said the Minister, "despite the change in the unemployment registration figures, which are frequently referred to when this matter is under discussion."

The debate occupied the greater part of the sitting, and Mr. Flinn, in replying, announced that of the vote £100,000 would be spent on public health schemes, and the remainder on minerals, peat schemes and minor relief schemes.

The vote was agreed to.

DEPUTY AND RELIEF SCHEMES

Mr. S. MacENTEE, Minister for Finance, moved that the sum of £150,000 be granted to complete the sum necessary for the purposes of relieving unemployment and distress. He said that in his Budget last May he had provided for the expenditure of £350,000 for relief work, but he had said also that he proposed to add to that figure £150,000 to bring the sum up to £500,000.

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) said that from his experience of the distribution of relief schemes at present he could say that they were never better. He had put forward a number of schemes himself, and, to the best of his knowledge, they had been all considered on their merits. Any representation that he had had occasion to make to the responsible Minister had received fair and reasonable consideration. It was also his experience, however, that gangers charged with the carrying out of schemes practically had placed an embargo on any individual who was not prepared to join a Fianna Fail cumann. In his opinion that abuse had grown in the last few months. He had heard from a number of districts that men had been told, not officially but effectively, that if they joined a Fianna Fail club and paid their shilling they would get work.

He would not draw the Parliamentary Secretary's attention to this evil if he did not think that the Parliamentary Secretary would exercise himself to end it.

Mr. HUGO FLINN (Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance) said that if the deputy submitted to him any case he would investigate it.

UNEMPLOYED IN THE TOWNS

Mr. NORTON (Labour, Kildare) said that a relief scheme of £150,000 would make very little impression on the unemployed problem—the number of the unemployed at present being in the vicinity of 100,000. What were the Government doing for the unemployed in cities and large towns? There was no prospect of industries started in rural areas competing with highly organised industries in cities with plenty of capital.

He mentioned a case where, he said, builders' labourers worked for a week of eight and a half hours per day at 18s. 11d. per week.

Mr. F. MacDERMOT (U.I., Roscommon) said that the deputy ought to give the name of the firm to the House.

Mr. NORTON said that he had already supplied the name to the Minister.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

THE MINISTER FOR INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE said that he intervened to give information which he thought deputies should have in discussing these proposals. He did so more particularly because quite recently certain wild statements had been made by representatives in that House, and in the columns of a certain newspaper, which were doing definite damage to the credit of the country.

"On that occasion," said the Minister, "I published in the form of an interview, information that came to me officially concerning employment and unemployment. One particular newspaper—the Irish Independent—only published that statement in garbled form, and, in a leading article, on Sunday last, an associated newspaper actually misquoted the statement, in order to maintain the campaign against the credit of the country."

He took the present occasion to give deputies information, in order that they might not be misled by the reckless misrepresentation that that particular newspaper indulged in concerning the position in respect of employment here. That paper represented him as having endeavoured to excuse the increase in unemployment on the ground that the population had also increased, whereas, in fact, he had proved by figures that there had been, despite the increase in population, a decrease in unemployment.

In dealing with the unemployment figures, it should be remembered that there was a complete change made in the system of registration by the present Government, and also owing to the operation of the Unemployment Assistance Act. They had now registered at the employment exchanges—they were compelled to register—not merely those persons unemployed, but also persons who were owners of farms or owners of businesses, the annual income from which calculated in accordance with the Unemployment Assistance Act was less than £39 a year.

"I may state," said the Minister, "that not only has unemployment not increased in the Free State during the past two years, but it has decreased, and I make that assertion despite the change in the unemployment registration figures, which are frequently referred to when this matter is under discussion."

THE 1926 CENSUS

There were no statistics at all relating to unemployment available in the years between 1926 and 1931, and the only comparison they could make was with the figures in the Census taken in 1926, which gave fairly extensive information concerning unemployment and employment. That Census showed that 78,000 people were described as "out of work," but that figure was probably inflated by various reasons, and the same causes operated to inflate the live-register figure. An examination of the live-register figures showed that 10 per cent. of those on it admitted they were land-holders, and it was estimated in the Census of 1926 that 10 per cent. of the persons out of work were either farmers or farmers' sons. If the same process were operated in 1926 as in 1934, and they had the same administrative requirements in respect of employment of labour through exchanges, and if the Unemployment Assistance Act were then in operation, the number of persons qualified for unemployment assistance, and on the live register, would have been something between 154,000 and 155,000 in 1926.

At the present time, when unemployment was normally greater than in April, the number on the live register was 118,000 persons, and the number of those claiming unemployment assistance or insurance benefit was 108,000, but the number receiving actual benefit was 78,000. In arriving at these figures of actual benefit they had to calculate the number of persons who passed from one job to another, and about 16 per cent. of those registered would be unemployed for less than a week, and a little over 20 per cent. for less than two weeks. There were in these figures an indication that the unemployment situation was less serious now than in 1926, and it was commonly admitted, and all available information substantiated the fact, that in the years 1930 and 1931 the situation was much more serious than in 1926. The world depression had begun then; there was a slump in prices, and these conditions affected the situation here. If the situation was less serious in 1926 than in 1931 it was much less serious to-day.

Mr. DILLON—More power to your elbow!

THE NEED OF RELIEF SCHEMES

The MINISTER, continuing, said it was not necessary to rely on these figures in order to prove the preposterousness of Mr. Dillon's statement that relief schemes were never more urgently needed than now.

"There are indications," said the Minister, "to show that they are less urgently needed."

The best means of sizing up the employment and unemployment situations was through the Unemployment Insurance Act and the National Health Insurance Act. The contribution income of the Unemployment Insurance Fund in 1931 was £497,000, and that represented on an average 178,000 stamps per week. In 1933 the income contribution was £553,000, representing an average weekly contribution in stamps of 198,000. That showed there were 20,000 more persons in employment in 1933 than in 1931, and 43,000 more than in 1926. The income from National Health Insurance stamps in 1926 was £485,000, representing an average weekly contribution in stamps of 279,000. In 1931 the figures were £534,000, representing 320,000 in weekly stamps, and in 1933 the figures were £605,000, representing 349,000 stamps each week. These figures showed that there were 29,000 more persons in employment in these insurable occupations in 1933 than in 1931, and 70,000 more than in 1926. They had that increase in employment, despite the fact that there was an increase in population, "but the funny leader writer of the Irish Independent assumed that the increase in population was represented by the number of additional babies born." That was the type of argument one expected in the leading articles of the Irish Independent. The birth-rate had declined, and the increase in population was due entirely to the stoppage of overseas emigration.

He had shown that the increase in population was less than the increase in employment, and on that calculation, unless people came from outside to take up employment here there must have been a decrease in unemployment as compared with 1931. The figures for 1934 were not yet available, but there were already indications that there was even a greater increase in employment this year than in 1933 or previous years. It was estimated that the number of persons engaged in housing construction last August was 11,000 greater than in August, 1933.

MISLEADING FIGURES

The unemployment situation was under continuous review by experts of the Statistics Employment and Trade Branches of his Department, and their periodical reports indicated that unemployment was decreasing and that employment was increasing sufficiently not only to absorb the increase in population, but also to effect the decrease referred to in unemployment.

The figures relating to the live register were entirely misleading, for between October, 1933, and October, 1934, there had come on the register for the first time all the small land holders of the Western and Southern counties, while the number of persons registered in the cities and certain of the Eastern counties hardly increased at all, despite the operation of the Unemployment Assistance Act. The Act had brought into contact with the Exchanges for the first time a large number of persons who ordinarily did not regard themselves, and were not registered as, unemployed persons, such as persons with small holdings. That was indicated by the startling fact that from the 98 branch employment offices situated away from the larger towns, over 60 per cent of the payments of assistance were made by postal order to persons living outside the six mile radius from such offices. Of 225,000 applications for qualification certificates under the Act, 91 per cent. had been disposed of, and the nine per cent. outstanding were being disposed of at the rate of 2,000 per week. Of the 20,000 appeals, 4,000 had already been disposed of, and the remainder were being dealt with as expeditiously as possible.

LABOUR LEADER CRITICISED

Mr. LEMASS went on to say that he resented the statement of Deputy Norton that Irish factories were centres of juvenile employment under bad conditions, or that they were "child farms."

"That statement," said Mr. Lemass, "in relation to Irish industry as a whole is grotesquely untrue. It may be that here and there there is a factory owner who is operating in an unsatisfactory way, but such owners are the exception and not the rule." It was true, he continued, that there were certain industries where employment was given in the main to juveniles and others where employment in the main was given to women, but that position was not peculiar to this country, and juveniles and women were similarly employed all over the world. In every one of these industries, particularly in those subject to Trade Board regulations, there prevailed standard rates of wages higher than the rates prevailing in Great Britain. He would not like it to be thought that conditions in any industry were substantially worse when, in fact, they were better than elsewhere, even if deputies did not think them good enough.

Referring to the suggestion of reduced working hours, Mr. Lemass said that persons not unfriendly to the Labour movement had expressed the opinion that the reduction of hours in industry would not merely increase unemployment, but would introduce the tendency to adopt labour-saving devices. He was inclined to think that, on the whole, reduction in hours was something they should strive to secure, not because they believed, as Deputy Norton suggested, that it would bring about an immediate and effective improvement in the unemployment situation, but because the benefits of technical improvement in equipment and machinery would be reflected in increased leisure for workers without increased employment. They could not afford to embark on changes of that kind on their own without taking a risk and adverse consequences. The majority of the countries represented at the Geneva conference this year were prepared to agree to legislation on the subject conditional on other countries doing the same thing. Unless there was international action it was impossible for any country to move alone.

It was better in present circumstances that rates of wages in industry as a whole should be regulated by agreement between the trades unions and organisations representing the employers. If Deputy Norton really meant what he said in that connection the Department of Industry and Commerce would consider taking over such functions on condition that they were left alone to do the job, and that there would not be some other organisation claiming to do the same thing in a different manner.

PROTEST FROM THE GALLERY

INTERRUPTER REMOVED

When Mr. FRANK MacDERMOT (U.I., Roscommon) rose in his seat to address the House there was some commotion in the public gallery. A man was seen standing up at the wire netting on the Government side of the House. He shouted: "As a soldier and a citizen of the Irish Republic I protest against the imprisonment of Republican prisoners. I demand the release of Republican prisoners." Civic Guards rushed over and escorted the man out of the gallery.

Mr. MacDERMOT, who had listened in some surprise to the outburst, said that the ordinary man up and down the country had not the impression that the Minister had—that the Government had been successful in dealing with unemployment. They had a right to expect an improvement in that situation, and if it were visible to the naked eye or to the average citizen it did not have to be proved by a mass of doubtful and highly contested statistics. It seemed to him almost miraculous that, with the expenditure that had taken place since Fianna Fail came into office, no impression had been made on the unemployment question. It was not true to state that people were backward in investing money in Irish undertakings. They would do so if there were promising industries in which to invest, and in view of that it was necessary that the Government should not encourage men of straw, not properly equipped with experience or intelligence to start new industries and bring about the results as described.

Mr. M. CORRY (F.F., Cork, E.) said that from his experience it was only necessary for it to be proved that a man was a member of Fianna Fail to be kicked out of his job. He urged that some adequate provision in the way of a substantial relief grant during the coming winter should be provided for the towns of Midleton and Cove, which were badly hit.

"CONSCIENCE MONEY"

Mr. BELTON (Ind., Dublin, N.) said that they had in office a Government which in and out of office promised to provide employment or maintenance for the unemployed. They had failed to provide full maintenance for such people. He looked upon the £150.000 as retribution or "conscience money" by the Government; a little conscience money to relieve unemployment which their policy had created in rural Ireland.

Any increased employment in the building trade was due to the administration by the local authorities, and especially the Dublin Corporation, of the Small Dwellings' Acquisition Act; it was not a Government achievement.

Mr. E. KENT (Independent, Cork, E.) spoke of the need for employing the moneys in productive work. He said that a lot of those receiving assistance could be well employed in agricultural work.

A deputy interrupted with a remark about tree-felling and telegraph-cutting.

Mr. KENT—The misguided youths and men and the responsible people who have done such work are more to be pitied than blamed.

FAILURE DENIED

Mr. E. DONNELLY (F.F., Leix-Offaly) said that the Government did not admit failure on the question of unemployment, nor on the questions of housing, peat development, afforestation, land division, and the provision of industries, great and small. Unemployment would never be solved until they had the co-operation of every party in that House.

Mr. MURPHY (Labour, Cork, W.) said that there was growing up in Cork City a practice of employing juveniles until they reached insurable age, and then employing fresh juveniles for the work. A very responsible clergyman, who was certainly not unfriendly to the Government, had told him that this was one of the greatest evils arising out of the new industrial position in the city. The deputy thought that the provision of fair wages and conditions ought to be a condition of the obtaining of Government assistance for an industry. "There is no condition of slavery worse than the condition of agricultural labourers in many parts of this country at the present time," he added. "Now they are coerced to go out and do destruction at night by people who would not keep them in employment if the instructions were not obeyed."

PRODUCTIVITY AND EMPLOYMENT

FIANNA FAIL PROMISES

Mr. P. McGILLIGAN (U.I., National University) said that it had been stated by Mr. Flinn that in his (Mr. McGilligan) period of office people had to walk fifteen or sixteen miles in some instances in order to have their names included on the unemployment register. There was no word in parliamentary language strong enough to deny that statement. It was absolutely wrong. During the time he was in office it was only necessary for the person to send particulars to the nearest post office.

There were nearly 120,000 people unemployed, and the productivity of the country as far as farmers were concerned had been lowered by about £20,000,000. Had the two no relation to one another? Fianna Fail had promised to put 86,000 people into permanent industrial occupations, and the outflow from that was to be enormous. They were reduced now to being told by deputies of the number of people being placed in employment through beet and wheat growing, land drainage, forestry and house building, with factories thrown in. They should be able to get from the Minister accurate figures of the amounts paid into the Unemployment Insurance Fund; but at various times he had given varying figures. On the Minister's latest figures, Fianna Fail had placed 18,000 people in employment over two years, while in the last year of his (Mr. McGilligan's) administration 11,000 were placed in employment. In view of the changes in the figures was it a debating point to say that one was entitled to look with the gravest suspicion on the latest figures, produced as they were for the relief scheme debate.

A SENSE OF REALITY

The best that the Minister could do, after receiving an expert's report, was to tell them that there was a substantial increase in employment, and went on to talk about house construction and relief schemes. He thought that what the Government promised was not subsidies and relief, but that the aim which every Fianna Fail deputy believed in his heart to be was the development of manufacturing industries, and not reclamation, drainage schemes, or forestry. These were the points used with great effect on the mob, and which got votes, and not all the nonsense about a Republic.

"We have come to some sense of reality at last," said Mr. McGilligan. "The President says at Limerick, 'Even if this country were industrially developed, there has to be a fringe of unemployment.'"

Mr. McGILLIGAN referred to the arguments advanced as to increased employment through the figures of insurance contributions paid in the years 1929-30, 1930-31, 1931-32, 1932-1933. He said the relative figures had already been given three times, and each time it was an improvement. (Laughter.) That, of course, was creditable to the Minister. There should, however, be some reason given for this "improvement" other than manipulation of the figures.

"At least let us have the figures accurately 'cooked,' so that they will not have to be changed from time to time," said Mr. McGilligan. "What was the draw on the fund in these years? The draw increased in this Government's first year by over £100,000. You may have a fictitious increase—more people going—and more going out, irregularly than ever before—the employment only intermittent. I think the Minister should get away from this test of the sale of unemployment insurance stamps and get down to a proper test—what is the surplus income of the fund year by year since 1929? In my time—1929-1930—the surplus was so big that I found I was clearing off a debt which had accumulated, mainly in the British days, on that fund of £1,000,000. I was wiping it off at £500,000 a year—which was not a good thing in the condition in which industry then was. But the debt had come down to under £300,000. I arranged to fund it over a period of years, and reduced the contribution from 1-7 to 1-1. This year we went back to the 1-7 rate. The Government took a quarter-million from the fund and gave it to unemployment assistance. That is not showing improvement in economic and industrial conditions in this country."

CONDITIONS IN MEATH

Mr. J. P. KELLY (F.F., Meath) said that when land division was speeded up there would be no more unemployment in the rural areas. Conditions in Meath had improved and were improving, and they realised that in the very near future relief schemes would not be required.

Mr. COBURN (U.I., Louth) asked was any portion of the present vote earmarked for works undertaken or in contemplation. It had been his experience that most of the money given by way of grants was already spent. He asked what procedure would be adopted in apportioning the schemes. He suggested that the Parliamentary Secretary should consult with the County Surveyors and get advice as to works which would give the largest amount of employment and the best return. He asked were persons to be in receipt of unemployment assistance before they would get a job.

The PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY—No. A person in receipt of such will get preference.

Mr. COBURN said that he absolutely objected to any Government fixing rates of wages. He would object equally strongly if the Government fixed wages at £10 a week instead of at 24s. a week.

Mr. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) said that the Parliamentary Secretary seemed to be eager to have productive schemes put forward for relief purposes. He considered that mining was a work of that nature.

Mr. EVERETT (Lab., Wicklow) said that it was the duty of any Government to provide employment or maintenance. The present Government was making an effort to do so.

SECRETARY'S REPLY.

Mr. FLINN, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, replying, said that while bouquets were thrown, sometimes the flower pots were thrown with them. (Laughter.) There was the question raised of victimisation, and when a deputy was asked if he had made any complaint to the Department about the alleged victimisation, he said "No." In every case put forward when deputies were asked if they had brought the facts beforer the Department, they failed to bring forward a single case. If they had the cases would be investigated. If they had a repetition on another occasion of the conduct which they had that day—the reckless insinuations by those who ought to have the facts—they would not treat them with patience.

Three or four of the most valuable scenic roads in Ireland had already been constructed; farm reclamation was being continued to the extent of ten or fifteen thousand pounds a year. Up to the present £70,000 had been allocated for public health schemes, which were virtually all in the towns; another £30,000 would be similarly allocated this year to benefit the cities and towns.

As to another suggestion, the reduction of working hours did not increase the wealth of a community. "What it does is to redistribute to some extent the country's wealth," said Mr. Flinn. "I am perfectly satisfied that what this country wants more than the redistribution of wealth is creation of wealth. I cannot see that reduction of hours will ameliorate conditions. You are going only to divide the labour up amoug more people. It obviously is not a case in which all the arguments are on one side."

Continuing, he said that Deputy Corry had suggested there should be a preference for victimised farmers who had been thrown out of work as a result of political pressure. That would be a perfectly legitimate thing for a Government to do by a vote ad hoc. Machinery could not be included in the ordinary regulations for recruiting labour on a purely distress basis.

MEN WHO WILL NOT WORK

Deputy Kent, continued Mr. Flinn, had suggested that "workshies" should not "get away with it." There was going to be a certain small proportion of people who would prefer to have their 7, 8, or 10 shillings a week, and do nothing for it, than work for a higher wage. "It will be our business as far as possible to see that people who are prepared to misuse the Unemployment Assistance Fund in that way will not get away with it. I am not clear to what degree we will succeed."

Referring to Mr. McGilligan's remarks, Mr. FLINN said a proof of his (Mr. Flinn's) contentions about the causes of the increase in the registration figures was that the vast majority of the new registration did not take place at the central, but at the local offices, which had been brought to the people's very doors. Any honest inquirer who studied the graph showing the rise of the registration figures would find there was no connection between this rise and the gradual development of the economic war. After the initial rise, when the new conditions in 1932 came into force, the figures resumed their seasonal characteristics until January, 1934. A rise then took place from the time at which it was announced when the new Act would come into operation and when benefit would accrue. The first rush of new registration actually stopped on the date on which the Act had been scheduled to come into force. "In other words, there was direct connection between the rise and the rate and place of the rise and the new artificial stimulus that were introduced."

GOVERNMENT'S INTENTION

Probably about 30,000 or 40,000 persons would be taken into temporary employment, and out of the 180,000 people on the register who would be entitled to unemployment assistance would come most of the people who were going to be employed on the relief works.

Mr. FLINN said that, broadly speaking, the intention was to distribute the voted money between public health, minerals, peat schemes, minor relief schemes, and the rest. Public health would get about £100,000. On minerals seven to ten thousand a year was spent. It was being spent not so much on mines as in the discovery of places where mining could be carried on, in investigation of deposits, etc., and certain amounts had been, and would be, spent on roads into mineral works. The peat schemes depended on what could be done, and would get anything from £50,000 to £100,000. Minor relief schemes would get about £100,000. The amount that had been allocated already was not within £150,000 of the total, and this was being allocated approximately on the basis shown.

As to Deputy O'Leary's suggestion that subsidies should be given for the purchase of feeding stuffs in his part of Cork County, this proposal would be passed to the Minister for Agriculture for consideration. Local schemes would always be considered, but it should be remembered that the Government had not a bottomless sack of money; the mere desirability of a scheme was not the only consideration—its desirability relative to others had to be considered.

The vote was agreed to.

£1,000 FOR CUT WIRES

JUDGE'S STRONG COMMENT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Thursday.

Judge McElligott to-day heard claims by the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs for the malicious cutting of wires and telegraph poles in various parts of the County Limerick. The claims were not contested by the County Council.

Having heard the evidence, the Judge, in giving his decision in the 110 claims listed, said that he was indemnifying the State against the series of dastardly outrages. He had never made anything in the nature of a political pronouncement, and he never intended doing so, and he thought that any member of the judiciary should not indulge in political allusion. When he said that this appalling series of outrages was a disgrace to any country he was only expressing the truth, and in any other country the perpetrators would have been lynched, and deservedly so. As far as he could make out the awards would come to a total of £720, and with costs and expenses reach over £1,000. The people who carried out these outrages were merely the tools of the instigators, who would never be brought to justice.

IRISH AT GALWAY COUNCIL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Thursday.

At Galway Urban Council to-day, Mr. J Redington, speaking in Irish, moved that an address of congratulation be presented to the Galway G.A.A. team on their return from the United States. Messrs. Thornton, Corbett and Lee, also speaking in Irish, supported the motion. Mr. Healy said that it was only fair that the resolution should be translated for those who never got a chance to learn Irish. The Chairman (Mr. M. Cooke) said that, if the Irish-speaking rule was carried out, half the members might as well leave.

"Dear Mr. Murphy, now tell us the one about the three bears"

YOU will perhaps remember that in an advertisement three weeks ago I told you of the difficulties we had in finding the right dealers to sell Murphy sets. Next day I received this letter:—

"I have seen the Murphy advertisement this morning and I've never heard such a lot of 'eyewash' in my life. Fancy saying you can't find the right dealers. Why, I know a dealer who told me himself that as soon as you reduced your retailers' discounts he gave up his Murphy dealership and wouldn't have it as a gift now. And, what is more, Murphy dealers aren't so good either. In some places the local draper is the Murphy dealer. What do you think about that?"

Well, let's see if this gentleman's criticisms are as sound as he thinks they are.

First of all, I will repeat that we know we haven't yet achieved perfect distribution; that is why we put that particular advertisement in. But if somebody tries to persuade you that the Murphy dealership is of little value, or that Murphy dealers are not much good anyway, here are my answers:—

1. We restrict the output of Murphy sets to about 850 dealers. No other set with national sales is distributed through less than about 2,000 dealers, and most of them are handled by over 8,000 retailers. So, although the Murphy dealer makes less on each individual Murphy set, he handles a much bigger share of the total Murphy output, and consequently his earnings are higher. It's the old story of "small profits, quick returns."
2. As I have explained before, we select Murphy dealers after they have convinced us that they can and will give you a "square deal." It isn't always the palatial shops that give you the best service. I know that it would be nice for us if all Murphy dealers were in the finest premises now. They will be as time goes on, but in the meantime they are in all kinds of places—some good and some bad. I don't personally know of a Murphy dealer who is a draper, but I do know of a few isolated Murphy dealers who are also opticians, music dealers, chemists and even ironmongers. But it doesn't alter the fact that they have all convinced us that they run first-class wireless shops.

P.S.—Murphy dealers are not the only good dealers, but we believe that by restricting our distribution as we do, we ensure that you get the best possible service.

PUBLIC HEALTH (IRELAND) ACTS, 1878 to 1919, and LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1925.

DUBLIN COUNTY BOROUGH (GRATTAN CRESCENT AND LITTLE GREEN STREET WIDENING) ORDER, 1932.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, the Reference Committee, upon the application of the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of Dublin (hereinafter called "the Corporation"), have appointed George Hewson, Esquire, of Dromohaire, County Leitrim, Official Arbitrator between the Corporation and the persons interested in the lands and premises affected by the Grattan Crescent Widening, or lands and premises injuriously affected by said widening, so far as compensation for the same has not been made the subject of agreement. Also that copies of the maps and schedules of the said lands and premises have been deposited at the office of the City Manager and Town Clerk, City Hall, Dublin, where they may be inspected by any person interested at all reasonable times. Also that persons interested in any of the said lands and premises are requested to send particulars of their claims on or before Wednesday, the fourteenth day of November, 1934, to the said George Hewson, Esquire.

And further notice is hereby given that the said George Hewson, Esquire, will sit in the City Hall, Dublin, on Wednesday, the 21st day of November, 1934, at 11.30 a.m., to ascertain the amount of compensation demanded by the several claimants in disputed cases, and the amount which the Corporation may be willing to pay, and to hear all parties interested in each disputed case as may appear before him at the time and place aforesaid.

Dated this 2nd day of November, 1934.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

There were lively scenes in the Ulster Hall, Belfast, last night at a meeting of the Ulster Protestant League.—(Page 7.)

The annual reunion dinner of past pupils of the Christian Brothers' Schools, Synge street, Dublin, took place in the Dolphin Hotel last night. Among the speakers was Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce.—(Page 8.)

In the Dail yesterday a vote for £150,000 was passed for the relief of unemployment and distress throughout the country.—(Page 5.)

At a special Court in Strabane yesterday further evidence was given in the case in which John J. McKenna, post office overseer, is charged with the murder of his wife.—(Page 13.)

Seventy-five thousand pounds abnormal expenditure owing to the drought in 1933 reduced what would have been a substantial surplus for the Electricity Supply Board to the sum of £10,287, which compares favourably with the £5,815 surplus of the previous year. Many additional consumers are taking supplies.—(Page 7.)

The question of the proposed extension of the Grangegorman and Portrane Mental Hospitals was under review at the monthly meeting of the Joint Committee.—(Page 13.)

GREAT BRITAIN

The House of Commons last night approved a series of amendments on Standing Orders designed to expedite the business of the House.—(Page 8.)

The House of Lords yesterday agreed to the Commons amendments to the Betting and Lotteries Bill. Referring to the impression that the Irish Hospitals' Trust could "flood" Great Britain with tickets sent through the post, Lord Londonderry said that the Government would take such steps as they considered necessary to give effect to the intention of Parliament to check the export of money to lotteries promoted outside Great Britain.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD

Following a crash in which four lives were lost, the inauguration of an air mail service between England and Australia has been suspended.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Derby yesterday Blank won the Derby Cup.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were again active. The general trend of Gilt-edged Stocks was upward. Bass Ordinary rose sharply on the increased dividend.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was very firm. Bank Stock rose 5 points, and Guinness units were 9d. better.—(Page 12.)

Electricity Supply

Students of the several hydro-electric development schemes, which have been before the Free State public of recent years, will find much to interest them in the accounts of the Electricity Supply Board for 1933-34, of which we print a summary to-day. Last year was the driest that Ireland has known for a very long time. There was an almost continuous drought for nearly nine months, with the result that the Shannon's water supplies ran out, and much difficulty was experienced at the generating station at Ardnacrusha. In the circumstances, the Electricity Supply Board was forced to make extensive use of the well-equipped station at the Dublin Pigeon House, as well as of the station in Cork. Of the total generation of 185,383,327 units, 103,223,750 units were produced at Ardnacrusha, 74,045,660 at the Pigeon House, and 6,671,143 at Cork. The supplementing of the Ardnacrusha supplies by current from Dublin and Cork was expensive. No less than £85,000 of abnormal expenditure was incurred by the Board as a direct result of the drought, and the report points out that, had the weather been normal, there would have been a surplus of £75,000 on the year's working, instead of the actual surplus of £10,287. In fact, the Board seems to have had a fairly successful year. Sales have increased by £105,206; there has been a rise in the number of units sold of 18,404,607; nearly 7,500 new consumers have been enrolled, bringing the total number of customers of the Electricity Supply Board to the substantial figure of 89,890. The total capital of the undertaking now amounts to £10,115,354, on which the Board has paid interest to the Minister for Finance at an average rate of 5¼ per cent.

The Electricity Supply Board is determined to make the Shannon Scheme a "paying proposition," and, although this fact must entail high prices to the consumer, in order that a capital of more than £10,000,000 may be served, there is no doubt that the Board is doing its work conscientiously and well. From the very beginning, however, we have been critics of the basic economics of the Scheme, and at a time when Mr. P. J. McGilligan was assuring the Dáil that the hydro-electric development of the Shannon had vast advantages over all rival schemes, we ventured to express our doubts. It seems that the economics of the first stage of the Shannon Scheme have been based on a constant yearly sale of 153,000,000 units, measured at the switch-board in a very dry year. Before last year the record for drought was held by 1905; but the experiences of 1933 have upset all previous calculations. Last year Ardnacrusha produced only 103,223,750 units, instead of the "very dry year's" quota of 153,000,000 units. Demand and sales increased in a normal way; but as output was checked by the drought, the Board was forced to have recourse to the much-despised coal generating stations. We admit freely that 1933 was an exceptionally dry year; but what guarantee has anybody that future years will not be equally dry? Certainly the original calculation of 153,000,000 units at the switch-board no longer can be sustained, and even if there should not be another drought for the next five years, the Board must safeguard itself against a failure of supply. Demand is increasing steadily. All the new industries are taking current; public lighting is being developed extensively; there is a marked expanse in the use of electricity for domestic cooking, water-heating, and the like, and the fact that the Board has installed a 23,000 k.w. steam turbo-generator and two boilers in the Pigeon House indicates that it is fully alive to the need for an alternative source of supply.

We hope sincerely that the Board will think twice before it proceeds with the costly project of the further development of the Shannon. In its report it announces that the Griffith-Moynihan Liffey scheme now has been examined "in detail," and that a further statement on the subject will be made in the near future. We do not pretend to have expert knowledge of hydro-electric schemes; but it seems to us that the Griffith-Moynihan plan has much to recommend it. In the first place, the fact that Dublin is, and must continue to be, by far the biggest consumer of electric current is in itself an argument against the principle of "all eggs in one basket"—in other words, the system of high tension transmission over a distance of more than one hundred miles is expensive and wasteful. In the next place, interference with the level of the Shannon lakes would do much to spoil the amenities of some of the most beautiful districts in Ireland. Sufficient damage has been done already from this point of view, and we suggest that the doctrine of pure utilitarianism ought not to be applied to a problem which has definitely æsthetic aspects. Even from the most baldly practical standpoint, however, the Griffith-Moynihan scheme, in our opinion, is hors concours. Whatever happens about its electric light, Dublin must supplement the Vartry water supply very soon. The demand for potable water is increasing daily, and this problem cannot possibly be put on the long finger. The Liffey plan of hydro-development has the immense advantage that it also provides for a substantial increase in water supplies for the capital. For this reason alone, it deserves the most careful scrutiny by the Government and Dáil Eireann before any further steps are taken to develop the Shannon. The fact that it is advocated by some of our most brilliant and highly experienced engineers also entitles it to sympathetic consideration.

Shakespeare in Dublin

It is through no mere desire to advertise the Dublin Gate Theatre that we call attention to the remarkable success of its production of "Julius Cæsar." The production, indeed, is superb, and marks, in the view of most critics, the peak point which stagecraft has reached thus far in Ireland. "Julius Cæsar" is not normally among the most popular plays of Shakespeare. Its closing scenes are something of an anti-climax; it lacks the love motives which endear "Othello" and "Romeo and Juliet" to young people of every generation; except for a few great moments, it is an austere, almost a chilly, play. Yet it has achieved a run of four weeks at the Gate Theatre, during which, at a low calculation, ten thousand citizens of Dublin have seen it; and there is good reason to believe that it would run for another week, if the directors should see fit to retain it. One may talk about the undying charm of Shakespeare, but something more is needed to explain this success; for, though Shakespeare has been produced many times previously in Dublin, such a phenomenon as a four-weeks' run for a single tragedy is unprecedented. The explanation, of course, lies in the manner of production, and herein lurks a lesson for the country. If a company of Dublin actors, many of whom hardly had placed a foot on the boards until a month ago, can be disciplined so perfectly as to make such a success of a difficult play, there is no need to set a limit to our ambition. Dramatic instinct abounds in Ireland, as is witnessed by the number and reputation of our playwrights; that acting talent exists in plenty is clear from the Gate Theatre's new success. Given producers of the genius of Mr. Hilton Edwards, what can we not accomplish? Hitherto Dublin has been too ready to depend on third-rate imported shows for her entertainment. Admittedly, she receives a number of good companies, providing good fare, from across the Channel; but that number is small in comparison with the host of poor troupes that comes, or used to come, to this capital city after short runs at Stockport, Wigan or Swansea. Not so long ago the alternatives to these imported shows were the Abbey Theatre's productions, varying in quality and appeal, an occasional good rendering of a light opera or a musical comedy by an excellent local company, a certain amount of half-produced and rather shabby work by small dramatic soceties—and the films. Now that the Gate Theatre has set a headline to all purveyors of entertainment, professional and amateur, in Ireland, we hope to see a considerably greater part of the country's amusement supplied by "local talent" in the near future. When a Shakespeare play, through excellence of production, can compete in length of run with the most popular film, Ireland cannot profess to lack resources.

Britain and Sweepstakes

Many people in the Free State have been watching the progress of the British Betting and Lotteries Bill with interest, and some, we may guess, have been watching it with apprehension. The bill, which passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Wednesday, deals with many aspects of gambling—it restricts betting to a certain number of days in the year, makes rules for the use of the totalisator on racecourses or greyhound tracks, and, in general, adds strength to the existing regulations. Its chief interest for us, however, is that it makes large lotteries illegal. The Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes have been allowed to take a very important place in our national economy, and, besides the hospitals, the Free State Government, and many hundreds of employés, have come to look on them as a steady source of revenue. They are, however, a precarious source; for the Sweepstakes would collapse at once if the money from English subscribers ceased to arrive. The Betting Bill, by its declaration that lotteries are illegal, seems to be a real and intentional threat to the Irish Sweepstakes. Sellers and agents will be prosecuted, and newspapers will be forbidden to publish the names of the winners, or any information about the Sweepstakes that might induce people to take part in them. If the bill intended to stop English participation in the Sweepstakes it has, however, left one remarkable loophole. It was revealed in the course of debate that, although the sale of tickets is forbidden in England, there is nothing whatever to stop an individual from sending his ten shillings to Dublin to buy a ticket for himself. In the circumstances, the bill will not affect the Hospitals' Trust to the extent that had been supposed. It still is quite easy for Englishmen to take part in the Sweepstakes, and, although they will be unable to read about them in the newspapers, they can get the information that they want in other ways.

The Velvet Hand

On Monday last the jewellers and silversmiths of Birmingham gave a ball, and, whether out of professional pride or to encourage customers, they laid out some £100,000 worth of jewels for all the guests to see. In order to prevent over-enthusiastic guests from handling the exhibits, the organisers had installed a number of detectives throughout the ballroom, so that any irregularity might be checked at its source. These detectives numbered sixteen, and consisted of four men and twelve women, all of whom were dressed in a fashion becoming so brilliant an occasion. So far the story contains but little interest for those who were not present, but everyone immediately will feel a quickening of the pulse when it is disclosed that none of the guests was at all conscious of any alien presence: for that anyone could remain oblivious to the fact that twelve policewomen were dancing in his vicinity seems beyond the bounds of possibility. If legend is true, the excessive vibration of the floor ought to have convinced even the most festive that all was not well, and the constant reappearance of twelve inordinately muscled ladies ought to have supplied incontrovertible proof that the guests virtually were surrounded. Either the cherished conception of the policewoman must go by the board or the investigator is compelled to believe that the jewellers' guests were so well developed that even policewomen were unnoticeable beside them. The only other tenable theory is that the twelve policewomen were chosen for their ability to make even the most hardened criminal forego a £100,000 fortune in favour of an evening's dalliance.

COURT AND PERSONAL

Next Wednesday the King and Queen, with the Duke of Kent, the Prince of Wales, and several other members of the Royal Family, will drive to Victoria station to greet Princess Marina on her arrival, with her parents, from Paris. It is understood that the return to Buckingham Palace will be at a slow pace, in order to let the crowds in the streets have a view of the Princess.

Last night the Prince of Wales presided at the annual dinner of the Stationers' and Newspaper Makers' Company, which was held in the Stationers' Hall. His Royal Highness was welcomed very cordially.

Yesterday the Princess Royal accompanied the Earl of Harewood to the Derby races, where they witnessed the success of Blank, Lord Harewood's candidate in the race for the Derby Cup.

News comes from the Riviera that the Duke of Connaught has decided to sell his residence, Les Bruyéres, near Cap Ferrat, which is known as possessing one of the most beautiful gardens on the Riviera. His Royal Highness has been settled at Sidmouth lately, and finds that the climate suits him excellently.

The dinner party given in Paris, at the Ritz Hotel, by Prince and Princess Alexis Mdivani on Wednesday night was in celebration of the twenty-second birthday of the Princess, who was the daughter of Mr. Hutton, and heiress to the Woolworth millions. The floral decorations were most original. No two of the ten tables were alike, and the ballroom, where a dance took place later, represented a street in Casablanca.

The Earl of Altamont arrived in Dublin yesterday from England. Priscilla Countess Annesley will leave Cox Green, Maidenhead, next week for London, and will spend the rest of the autumn at 80 Eccleston square, London, S.W. The Hon. Thomas and Mrs. Morgan-Grenville-Gavin arrived at Southampton yesterday from New York. Sir Charles and Lady Smith have returned from Durban, and are staying at Grosvenor House, Park lane.

The Duchess of Northumberland, the Hon. Mrs. E. F. Lawson, Miss Dimsdale, the Earl of March, Mr. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, and Mr. T. S. Hankey were the sponsors at the baptism of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Gordon Lennox, which took place at St. Peter's, Eaton square, London, on Wednesday. The Rev. Austin Thompson officiated, and the child received the names Henry George Charles. The latter name is borne by all male members of the family in memory of King Charles II., from whom they are descended.

The Governors and medical staff of Mercer's Hospital have issued invitations for Tuesday, December 4th, when the bi-centenary of the institution will be celebrated at a meeting in the hospital, at which the Archbishop of Dublin will preside.

Many people who have had to forego summer holidays owing to pressure of business or private difficulties are now wisely spending a week or two at the National Spa and Hydro, Lucan. To face a hard winter without such a building-up process is to invite trouble. The mild climate of Lucan, the excellent food and comfort of the Hotel, a rest amid lovely surroundings, the tonic of the far-famed waters, a little special treatment if necessary, free golf at the Lucan links, and at Hermitage, the finest inland 18-hole course in Ireland—these are the things to build resistance to face the onslaughts of winter.

IRISH SWEEP TICKETS

QUESTION OF SALE IN ENGLAND

LORD LONDONDERRY'S STATEMENT

The House of Lords yesterday agreed to the Commons' amendments the Betting and Lotteries Bill.

The Marquess of Londonderry, who was in charge of the bill, said that he wished to correct statements which had appeared in the Press as to the effect of what the Home Secretary (Sir John Gilmour) said in the House of Commons when dealing with the question of new criminal offences.

The Home Secretary, continued Lord Londonderry, stated that it would not be an offence under the bill, any more than it is under the existing law, for a person to purchase a ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes.

That is the position, and no one who purchases a ticket for his personal use, and does not sell or distribute tickets, will himself be exposed to criminal penalties.

This appears to have been interpreted by the Irish Hospitals' Trust as giving them full freedom to flood this country with tickets sent through the post. But it must not be overlooked that in passing this bill Parliament intended to put restrictions on the flow of money from this country to the Irish Sweepstakes, and, without going into details of the methods which the Government will adopt, I think I ought to inform the House that the Government will take such steps as they consider necessary to give effect to the intention of Parliament to check the export of money from this country to lotteries promoted outside this country.

TICKETS BY MAIL

POSTAL REGULATIONS TO BE REVISED

In order to bring the position regarding the passage of sweepstake tickets through the post into conformity with the new position created by the Lotteries Bill, which becomes law to-day, the British Post Office Regulations are being revised.

The Home Secretary has announced that under the new Lotteries Bill it is not an offence for a person to send ten shillings to Dublin for a ticket in the Irish Sweep for himself.

An official of the Post Office yesterday stated: "In so far as the old Lotteries Act is changed by the new Act, the Regulations will be modified." He added that at present the General Post Office stops letters in transit only when instructed by the Home Secretary.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY

NOVEMBER 16, 1914

East and South-East of Ypres bodies of German troops again attacked in great force, but were repulsed, as also were their attempts to cross the Aisne near Vailly and in the region of Rheims, which town was again shelled. Between Armentieres and La Bassee they, however, made some progress.

WEATHER FORECAST

General Inference.—A ridge of high pressure extending from the Atlantic across the Shetlands to Russia is spreading south. Weather will be mainly fair in Ireland and most of Scotland, but local rain will occur in England.

Ireland, all Districts.—Light or moderate north or north-east wind; fair, average day temperature, after local frost early.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Moderate or fresh north or north-east wind; mainly fair; perhaps local showers; sea moderate.

DUBLIN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Henry O'Connor (18), of 150a North Strand road, Dublin, was knocked down by a motor car and injured at Newcomen Bridge last night, at about 10.45. He was taken in the Corporation Ambulance to Jervis Street Hospital, where it was found that he had received severe head injuries. His condition is said to be serious.

LONDON LETTER

THE IRISH SITUATION

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

Speeches at the Irish Unionist meeting at the Caxton Hall yesterday were responsible for a slight breeze in political quarters last night, but to-day all is calm again, and Mr. Morgan's prognostications regarding the future events in the Irish Free State are dismissed as somewhat hypothetical. In the Lobby of the House of Commons remarks on the subject were non-committal. It has long been appreciated that it is the expressed intention of Mr. de Valera to declare the Irish Free State a republic when occasion serves; but it is apparent that the British Government can take no definite steps to prevent such a development. It is recognised that the Treaty has been broken on more than one occasion, and may be broken again. Public feeling on the subject of Ireland, however, is indifferent, and it seems improbable that the Government will be greatly influenced by the possibility of other changes. Mr. J. H. Thomas is to deliver a political speech at Newport to-morrow afternoon, and this will provide him with an opportunity of referring once again to the "open door," if he deals with Ireland at all.

Traffic in Arms

Sir John Simon, during the closing hours of the session to-morrow, intends to make a statement regarding the attitude of the Government to the arms traffic question. It is still hoped that the Disarmament Conference may be saved from utter failure. The Foreign Secretary may have something to say about it, particularly as Mr. Anthony Eden is going to Geneva this month with a proposal for a system of international licensing of exports of arms. On this point Mr. Baldwin gave notice last week that the British Government intended at Geneva to call for ratification of the treaty for the supervision and control of arms traffic.

Herr Ribbentrop's Visit

The visit to London of Herr von Ribbentrop, the special emissary of Herr Hitler, has greatly exercised our French neighbours, but it is now agreed in Paris that the visit lacked importance of any kind. Official circles in London considered the interviews sought by Herr von Ribbentrop to be merely calls of a friendly character, and quite devoid of diplomatic interest. The real purpose behind the visit is unknown, and is likely to remain so; but possibly it was the idea of Herr Hitler that Herr von Ribbentrop might be able to pave the way for a return to the League of Nations. In other quarters it is suggested that the coming plebiscite in the Saar had something to do with the visit.

Sweep Tickets

There is much speculation as to why members of the public are permitted to apply for a sweep ticket in Dublin, since many have had the experience of having their letters to the Hospitals' Trust returned on former occasions. The reason for the Government's decision is uncertain, but it is said to be due in some measure to the fact that, if all applications for tickets were suppressed, the loss to the British Post Office would be very heavy. Possibly the stamps and postal orders sold in connection with the Sweep on this side amount in value to many thousands of pounds—a sum not to be easily spared by the Post Office. It is probable, therefore, that in the new year letters addressed to the headquarters of the Sweepstake will no longer be subjected to interference so long as they are confined to applications for individual requirements.

Royal Wedding Preparations

Before the breakfast hour this morning there was what might be described as an "undress rehearsal" of the Royal wedding procession. Londoners on their way to work were surprised by squadrons of Household Cavalry escorting a number of horse brakes along the Mall to Whitehall and Westminster Abbey. To-day the troops were in undress uniform, but in a fortnight's time the brakes will become State coaches, while the khaki uniforms will be replaced by full-dress breastplates and helmets. It was quite a serious affair, however, as all the roads leading to the route taken by the procession were closed, and Colonel Sir Arthur Erskine, the Crown Equerry, was in charge of the rehearsal. A few minutes before eight o'clock the procession was re-formed at the Abbey for the journey back to Buckingham Palace, but on this occasion the procession was headed by a brake representing the coach in which the Duke of Kent and his bride will drive.

Fuel Research in France

Experiments on an extensive scale are to be carried out in France for the purpose of manufacturing motor spirit from coal. A site of twenty acres has been set apart for this purpose, and an expenditure of over £500,000 authorised. France is entirely dependent upon foreign sources of supply for petrol, which is not obtainable in any of the French Colonies with the exception of Morocco, where there are a few small wells. The work is being undertaken with the two-fold object of reducing the degree to which France is dependent upon foreign petrol and of providing employment for many workers in the construction of the plant for treating the coal.

Postage Stamps

The purchase of postage stamps at post offices in London and the provinces is to be made easier, as it will no longer be necessary to wait in a queue. The Postmaster-General has introduced a small, but important, change, and in future all officials, including those at sections labelled "postal orders," "money orders," etc., are to have a supply of stamps ready at hand in order to serve applicants without delay, so that it will be permissible to go to any official who is disengaged. Much inconvenience should be avoided by this little change, which is to be put into operation throughout the country in the next few days.

International Football

The extraordinary methods employed in the England v. Italy football match at Highbury yesterday has led to the question as to whether these international football matches are worth while. There is little doubt that the whole question will be reviewed shortly by the Football Association. The Italians regard the result as honourable defeat, but the Arsenal team, with a big match to play on Saturday, have half their men suffering from injuries. A suggestion is that the visitors are influenced by the position ruling in their own country, where, on occasion, the players are promised so much money if they win and so much if the game is a draw. It is genuinely admitted, however, that the game was a good-humoured one, and that the courage and dash of the Italians was remarkable.

AMERICAN DEBT INTEREST

Mr. Neville Chamberlain (Chancellor of the Exchequer), in the House of Commons yesterday, informed Mr. Shaw (Conservative) that no communication had been received from the Government of the United States of America in respect of the payment of interest on December 15 next.

Mr. Shaw—Is the attitude of the Government towards this question the same as in June last?

Mr. Chamberlain—Before any communication has been received, yes.

DAIL ADJOURNS FOR TWELVE DAYS

LABOUR LEADER ATTACKS GOVERNMENT

DEBATE INTERRUPTED FROM PUBLIC GALLERY

MR. DE VALERA'S TEMPORARY HALO

THE Dail, after two days' sittings, has been adjourned for a fortnight. When it rose last night the debate on the second reading of the Citizenship Bill had only been an hour and a half in progress.

It will be resumed on the 28th of November.

The reason for the adjournment appears to be that bills which had been expected are not yet ready.

One of these is the Courts of Justice Bill, which appears to be giving some trouble to the Government.

CHRISTMAS RELIEF WORK

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

There was a time in the Dail yesterday when a man, sitting in Mr. de Valera's seat, turned a sorrowful eye upon the benches adjoining his own. Had he spoken his thoughts aloud, he might have said, as Cæsar said 'ong ago, "Et tu, Brute."

He was Mr. Hugo Flinn, Parliamentary Secretary in charge of the Board of Works, and his eyes rested upon the figure of the leader of the Labour Party in the Dail.

The session had opened with a fairly full house, but in the absence of both the President of the Executive Council and the Leader of the Opposition Mr. Flinn took Mr. de Valera's seat, while Mr. MacDermot occupied that of Mr. Cosgrave. Both were soon to be involved in a debate that lasted well into the night.

It started when Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Finance, moved a Supplementary Estimate for £150,000 for relief work, explaining that the Government proposed to bring the sum of £350,000 already voted up to the £500,000 mark.

This was the cue for Mr. Dillon to rise, and, while praising the good done by grants of this kind, to launch a slashing attack upon the administration of them. Favouritism in the choosing of men for work was, he suggested, rampant. John Murphy, a member of a Fianna Fail club, but otherwise equal in all things to Pat Murphy, in the opposite camp, might, he said, be an applicant for relief work. Pat Murphy could apply also, but it was always the John Murphys up and down the country who got the job.

This contention he proceeded to buttress with other instances reported to him, till Mr. Flinn, shaking his head in lamentation, remarked sadly and slowly: "A woman told me a woman told her," and rose to refute the attack.

Suave and quiet, he maintained that relief work was given impartially where it was needed, and proceeded to outline the work that his department and the Government generally had done for unemployment.

MR. NORTON AS CRITIC

Then came Brutus with his steel. With a disarming smile Mr. Norton said that he welcomed the proposed grant; and, without further ado, struck deep and hard. In a scathing denunciation of conditions in the country he included not only the Government, but the grant and Mr. Flinn himself.

Nothing, he said, could minimise the fact that unemployment was rife; the contribution was inadequate, and, in his view, unlikely to have any effect on unemployment. It could not do anything for the people in the towns, where—even in his own constituency—destitution stalked naked and unheeded.

Turning to new industries he instanced a case where men employed to reconstruct an old building for new uses were paid at the rate of 18s. 11d. a week, each working day of which was of eight and a-half hours. The Government, he averred, was a party to that rate by granting trade loans to individuals without first ensuring that a living wage would be paid to the workers.

Mr. Norton wound up by asking the Government to eliminate child and female labour in factories, and the Speaker called upon Mr. MacDermott, but before he could speak the House was astonished to hear a voice say: "As a soldier of the Irish Republic, I demand the release of the prisoners."

It was not, however, the deputy leader of the Opposition, but a man in the public gallery. In a few moments Civic Guards had accorded him the fresh air and the liberty which he craved on behalf of others.

Mr. MacDermot charged the Labour Party with being equally blameworthy with the Government for the continuance of the economic war, and said that, in spite of grants, tariffs, bounties innumerable and other expense, the situation was as bad as ever.

Mr. Corry, who followed, treated the House to a recital of the woes of East Cork, and interspersed his remarks with a certain amount of Belton-baiting. To this Mr. Belton in turn replied, and with only fourteen deputies to listen to him told the Government that, in spite of their election promises and after nearly three years in office, they had failed to provide maintenance for men who could not get work.

Though called to order twice by the Speaker for wandering from the path, he got from Mr. Flinn an assurance that the Government would help in relief schemes which had as their object the giving of work at Christmas time.

Then the Minister for Industry and Commerce swept away all the contention that had gone before, and, producing a series of figures going back over several years, proved to his own satisfaction, if not to that of the deputies opposite, that actually employment had increased, even though ten per cent. of the persons registered as out of work were of the farming class.

Then came Mr. McGilligan, a rapier among scythes, to cut away, one by one, the arguments that the Government had advanced. Opening his attack with a backhand stroke, he said that the Minister should be complimented on putting 13,000 people into employment in two years, adding that in 1931, his own last year of office, industry had absorbed 17,000 persons.

When the debate had been in progress seven hours Mr. Flinn replied, and in a speech that reiterated all he had said before, thanked Mr. Dillon for presenting him with a bouquet at the outset of the debate. "Unfortunately," he added naïvely, "he threw the pot as well as the flowers."

THE AMBER GLOW

At 9.5 p.m. Mr. de Valera entered, and one effect of a lamp, newly erected behind his chair, was seen. Suddenly an amber glow spread around his shoulders, and the Opposition deputies saw, probably for the first time in their lives, a halo round his head. Either by accident or design somebody turned a switch and the halo disappeared, just as he rose to speak on the long-awaited Citizenship Bill.

Many anomalies, the President explained, had occurred, and among other things they wanted a definition of the ownership of aircraft. He then went on to recite the functions of diplomatic officials, and to explain the provision of the measure, clearly and in detail.

As the President sat down Mr. McGilligan sprang up to welcome (so he said) the measure.

In the space of a very few minutes, however, he had pointed out that while at present the Constitution gave citizenship rights to all people born in Ireland, the new bill gave it only to those whose fathers were Irish. From there he went on to refer to people born on registered ships, and might have queried the position of a child born on the ss. Muirchu had not, by a strange coincidence, the syren of a steamer interrupted his remarks.

Instead, he tackled the question of passports, and, mentioning that his name had been removed from Free State passports which demanded protection from the King, lamented that the name of a civil servant and not of a Minister had been substituted.

Holding up to our imagination the protection afforded to Free State citizens by British gunboats in many parts of the world, he drew a sad picture of one of our nationals under the new bill being captured by Chinese bandits.

ARMED RAIDS IN COUNTY CORK

SHOP AND FARM ATTACKED

WANTON WRECKAGE OF CONTENTS

SUPPOSED POLITICAL MOTIVE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Thursday.

TO-NIGHT two armed raids were carried out, under cover of darkness, on premises owned by Mr. John F. Woods, of Woodville Dairy Farm, Ballinhassig, six miles from Cork.

Mr. Woods's dairy and provision shop at Highfield West, a residential suburb on the outskirts of Cork City, was visited just before it was due to close at 6 p.m. by a dozen men, two at least of whom were armed with revolvers.

Mr. Woods's daughter and a woman customer, the only occupants of the shop, were held up, while the raiders broke everything in it. The stock was almost entirely destroyed, and the shop windows were broken.

The raiding party then disappeared.

Meanwhile, a similar raid was in progress at Mr. Woods's farm at Ballinhassig. About fifteen or twenty men, most of them masked and armed, forced open the front door, held up the occupants, cut the telephone wires, and proceeded to destroy everythisg connected with Mr. Woods's extensive dairy business.

Hundreds of milk bottles were taken from a shed and smashed, milk cans were upset, and a lorry and a motor car were put out of action.

After a stay of barely ten minutes the raiders disappeared as quickly as they had come. They are believed to have driven off in motor cars.

Intense police activities followed both raids, but as yet no arrests have taken place. It is understood that the motive for the affair is political.

ATTACK ON SAAR COMMISSION

NEWSPAPERS MUST PUBLISH REPLY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SAARBRUECKEN, Thursday.

THE Saar Governing Commission has to-night issued a reply to the aide-mémoire addressed to the League by the German Front in the Saar yesterday, in which Mr. Knox was strongly attacked.

All German papers in the Saar must by law publish this reply on their front pages to-morrow.

"It is untrue," the statement says, "that Government officials have communicated to the anti-Hitlerite papers information about documents seized in the German Front offices.

"The Government," it is added, "has asked the Supreme Tribunal of the Plebiscite to open proceedings against the signatories of the aide-mémoire for insult to, and libel of, Herr Heimburger, Mr. Knox's chef de cabinet; Herr Ritzel, adviser to the Government, and two police commissioners mentioned."

Referring to a former stenographer to Herr Heimburger, the statement says that she was dismissed in October because she was already then suspected of having violated professional secrecy.

A complaint against her has now been lodged before the Supreme Tribunal of the Saar. The statement says that for some time past she has been in Neustadt, Germany.

Yesterday's German aide-mémoire was itself a reply to Mr. Knox's recent report to the League, in which he made serious allegations against the German Front accusing it of exerting all kinds of illegal pressure on the inhabitants of the Saar to induce them to vote for Germany in the plebiscite.

The aide-mémoire said that documents seized at the German Front offices were examined by German émigrés—in particular, Herren Heimburger and Ritzel—who conferred with anti-Nazi journalists with a view to exploiting these documents in the Press.

MAYOR SENT TO JAIL

The Supreme Court of the Saar to-day sentenced Herr Ruppersberg, the Mayor of Homburg, to imprisonment for six weeks and four days and to a fine of two thousand francs for various violations of neutrality in the exercise of his duties.

Herr Ruppersberg, who was represented in court by counsel, left his home by car immediately the sentence was pronounced.

The Mayor later in the afternoon arrived at the State prison at Saarbruecken, where he was locked up. It is believed here that he actually reached German territory, but was requested to return to the Saar by the German authorities, who desired to demonstrate in this way that Germany was adhering to the assurances given by Baron Neurath, the Foreign Minister, in his letter of June 1st to Baron Aloisi, head of the Saar Committee of Three.

ECONOMIC COMPLAINT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Thursday.

The petition from a number of economic organisations in the Saar territory complaining of the economic situation there is published this evening, with a covering letter from Mr. G. G. Knox, President of the Saar Governing Commission.

The petitioners allege that French purchases in the Saar have dwindled to nothing, while at the same time Saar importers are refused even the shortest credits by French banks. This, they say, is leading to a lack of even the first necessaries of life.

The petitioners suggest that the Saar frontiers with Germany should be thrown open for the introduction of German goods to a sufficient extent to ensure equilibrium between the Saar territory and the rest of Germany.

German exporters, they say, are prepared to grant credits.

Mr. Knox, without discussing the desirability or otherwise of this proposal, suggests that the League should guarantee to foreign creditors all debts incurred before the plebiscite, without restriction and in the currency in which they are contracted.

NO BRITISH TROOPS

In the House of Commons, Westminster, yesterday, Mr. Mander (Liberal) asked the Foreign Secretary whether he would consider the advisability of offering to associate a small number of British troops with the main body of the French to go to the assistance of the Saar Governing Commission for the suppression of any invasion of the territory in order to emphasise that the action taken was on behalf of the League of Nations, and in fulfilment of a collective obligation.

Mr. Eden, Lord Privy Seal, replied that there had never been any question of introducing British troops to assist in maintaining order on the occasion of the Saar plebiscite. A situation in which the Saar Commission found itself unable to maintain order should not occur.

TRADE WITH GERMANY

FREE STATE TREATY REPORTED

NO OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

A REPORT was in circulation at Leinster House last night to the effect that the Free State mission now in Berlin had succeeded in concluding a trade treaty with the Reich Government. While official quarters admitted that the Free State is at present negotiating a treaty with Germany, it was definitely denied that any treaty has yet been concluded or signed.

According to the report, it had been arranged that in consideration of Germany admitting certain agricultural products, including cattle and butter from the Free State, the Free State would take from Germany coal, iron, steel, electrical equipment, boilers and machinery, and other things. No details were available as to the quantities of cattle and butter which Germany proposed to take, or the amount of goods which the Free State would take in return.

The representatives of the Free State Government who are at present in Berlin are Mr. R. C. Ferguson, of the Department of Industry and Commerce; Mr. J. V. Fahy, Department of External Affairs, and Mr. J. M. Adams, Department of Agriculture.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

It is of interest to note that in the nine months of the present year there has been a slight increase in the value of Free State exports to Germany as compared with the corresponding period in 1933—£81,837 to £100,094; the Free State's imports from that country are very much larger. In the first nine months of last year the figure was £1,275,167, which in the present year rose to £1,831,644.

NEW NAVAL TREATY?

LONDON TALKS HOPE

Negotiations which, it is hoped, will end in a new treaty to replace the Washington Treaty are now well on the way, Reuter learns.

Great Britain's "questions" to the Japanese and United States delegations have elicited enough response to indicate that the first positive step in the solution of the naval problem has been taken.

The Japanese Government replied to the "questions" yesterday by cabling instructions to Mr. Matsudaira and Vice-Admiral Yamamoto to ask for further explanations of the thoughts behind the "British questions."

This move of the Japanese Government is understood to mean that Japan is expressing her willingness to negotiate on the compromise lines suggested by Great Britain.

The American delegation appear optimistic about the British method of overcoming the naval dilemma, but will wait to hear from Washington before pressing an official view.

The British idea, which is now the basis for the talks, provides that a unilateral declaration be made by each Power as to its intended naval construction programme. "A gentleman's agreement" would be made by each nation, and it would maintain the present basis of naval strength—the 5-5-3 ratio.

If the talks progress in the direction they have now taken it is probable that a new naval treaty will be signed which would give Japan equality in principle.

SKERRIES DROWNING ACCIDENT

MAN FALLS FROM FISHING SMACK

While the fishing smack Maid of Mourne, from Balbriggan, was off the coast of Skerries, near the Rockabill Lighthouse, yesterday morning, a member of the crew, Thomas Richardson, Chapel street, Balbriggan, was drowned.

The smack left Balbriggan Harbour at about 7 a.m. with a crew of three men and the skipper, Joseph McKenna. When near the Rockabill the propeller was fouled by a rope, and on leaning over to disentangle it Thomas Richardson fell overboard. A rope was immediately thrown to him, but he failed to catch it. The smack was moving fairly quickly at the time, though the engine had been stopped, and the man sank about sixty yards away. The Maid of Mourne circled round in search of the body, in company with another boat, but failed to recover it up to a late hour last night.

The Maid of Mourne was towed into Skerries by another fishing boat at about 4.30 yesterday afternoon.

Mr. George Richardson, Balbriggan, a member of the crew, and Mr. John Richardson, Skerries, a member of the Dublin County Council, are brothers of the man who was drowned.

KINSALE DOUBLE DROWNING

INQUEST ON ONE OF THE VICTIMS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Thursday.

The inquest in connection with the double drowning accident at Kinsale yesterday was held to-day on the body of the elder victim, Frederick Crean (21), who, with his brother, Thomas (17), lost his life while attempting to attach a rope to an incoming vessel.

The father of the boys, who witnessed the tragedy from another boat, gave evidence of identification. "I saw his hand up, and then he sank," the witness said, and broke down.

Other eye-witnesses gave evidence that the two boys attempted to attach a rope to the schooner Kathleen and May, and their boat capsized in the attempt. It was stated that the idea was to get a job loading the vessel. Two of the witnesses said that it was risky to approach the schooner as she was going too fast at the time.

The Coroner, Mr. J. J. Horgan, solicitor, urged the necessity of training in swimming, and suggested that some steps should be taken to put a stop to the dangerous practice of boarding vessels under way. He recorded a verdict in accordance with the medical testimony, that death was due to drowning, and said that nobody was to blame except, perhaps, the poor fellows themselves.

YUGOSLAV CROATS NOT TO BLAME

GENEVA, Thursday.

It is learned on good authority that the Yugoslav Government will bring the murders of King Alexander and M. Barthou before the meeting of the Council next Wednesday.

It will probably suggest that an inquiry be conducted under the auspices of the League.

It should be emphasised that the action of the Yugoslav Government is dictated less by any desire for retribution than by the wish to make it clear that the assassination of King Alexander did not proceed from disaffection or discontent of the Croat population of Yugoslavia.

DROUGHT COST E.S.B. £75,000

WHAT ACCOUNTS FOR 1933 SHOW

GROWING NUMBER OF CONSUMERS

REFERENCE TO LIFFEY SCHEME

ACCORDING to the accounts for the year 1933-34, which were issued yesterday by the Electricity Supply Board, were it not for the extraordinary drought during 1933 there would have been a surplus of £85,000. Abnormal expenditure, wholly due to the drought, amounted to £75,000, and the surplus announced is £10,287, as against £5,815 for the preceding year. Sales of electricity increased by the substantial figure of £105,206. The number of units sold was 138,503,130, an increase of 18,404,607 over the previous year. The total revenue from sale of electricity to consumers amounted to £1,149,681 in the year.

Capital charges absorbed £577,513. Of this sum £492,841 was interest paid to the Minister for Finance, and £84,672 was paid as interest and repayment of capital in respect of transferred undertakings.

The average rate of interest paid to the Minister for Finance on the total capital invested by the State in the undertaking was 5¼ per cent. During the year additional capital to the extent of £493,284 was expended, making the total capital £10,115,354.

Electricity supply was extended to the following additional areas during the year:—Bailieboro', Ballineen-Enniskean, Carrick-on-Shannon, Delgany-Kilincarrig, Kildare, Killeshandra, Kilmallock, Knocklong, Leighlinbridge, Nenagh, Sallins, Shercock, Tallaght and Virginia. Supply is now being given to 196 towns and areas.

MANY NEW CONSUMERS

The increase in consumers numbered 8,215, of which 813 were taken over from acquired undertakings during the year and 7,402 were new consumers. The total number of consumers at the end of the year was 89,890.

The industrial motive power load increased by 6,316 h.p. to a total connected load of 52,352 h.p. All the new industries which were started during the year within the Board's area of supply took their motive power supply from the Board's mains.

Conversion to electric drive progressed satisfactorily among established industries with particular success in the flour-milling industry, and in the adoption of electric pumping for town water supplies.

During the year a number of institutions in different parts of the country were supplied with large electric cooking and heating installations. Considerable progress was made in the provision of electricity supply for all services to the National Maternity Hospital, Holles street, Dublin. A sub-station of 4,000 k.w. capacity was completed, which will supply all the light, heat, power, and electro-medical requirements of the hospital.

DOMESTIC USE

A steady expansion in the use of electricity for domestic cooking and water-heating is taking place. Consumers continue to take the advice of the Lighting Service Bureau for the planning and remodelling of lighting installations. The lighting effects in the new Municipal Art Gallery were designed by the Bureau.

Public lighting for the year showed an increased consumption of approximately 1,000,000 units. Owing to the increasing demand for electricity steps were taken to increase the capacity of the Ardnacrusha Power Station and the Pigeon House Power Station. At Ardnacrusha a new 25,000 kVA generator, which is driven by a 38,000 h.p. Kaplan turbine, was completed in November, 1933. To increase the Pigeon House Station installation contracts were placed for a 23,000 k.w. steam turbo-alternator, and for two steam boilers, each with a capacity of 125,000lbs. of steam per hour. Rapid progress is being made in the installation of this additional plant, and it is expected to be completed by the end of this year.

The increased capacity of the Pigeon House Station necessitated improved facilities for coaling and for cooling water.

THE LIFFEY SCHEME

Referring to the Liffey scheme the report states: "The possibility of the hydro-electric development of the River Liffey, combined with a water supply scheme for the Corporation of Dublin has now been examined in detail. The results of the investigation will shortly be submitted."

The figures for units generated during the year show that of a total of 185,383,327, Ardnacrusha supplied 103,223,750, Pigeon House 74,045,660, and Cork 6,671,143.

The report adds that the output from the main station at Ardnacrusha was of necessity considerably curtailed owing to the abnormal and prolonged drought. To supplement the output from Ardnacrusha the stations at Pigeon House and Cork were utilised to the extent indicated.

The year under review was the lowest flow year on record for the Shannon. Records are in existence from the year 1894 onwards, and within this period 1905 was the lowest year previously recorded. The following figures of the average inflow to the catchment illustrate the severity of the drought:—

(a) Year 1905—137 cubic metres per second.
(b) Year 1933—96 cubic metres per second.
(c) Mean average since year 1894—220 cubic metres per second.

THE LONG DROUGHT

The year 1933 was also remarkable in that the drought continued without relief for a period of almost nine months. The average inflow from the 1st April to the 31st December was only 40.9 cbm/sec. compared with the figure of 85 cbm/sec. for the corresponding period of 1905.

Owing to the persistence of the drought the whole of the storage in the Shannon Lakes had been fully utilised by the 23rd December despite every effort to economise water by running the available steam plant at its maximum capacity. Lough Derg had by that date reached the record low level of 32.13 metres. The level of Lough Ree had been lowered by approximately 3½ feet below the normal navigation level, as a consequence of which it was necessary to restrict navigation above Athlone.

The rainfall at the end of December and during January improved the flow conditions to such an extent that it was possible to fill the storage by the middle of the latter month. At no time, however, during the winter did the flow reach the average figure for this period of the year.

PRINCE'S PETITION FOR DIVORCE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

COPENHAGEN, Thursday.

Prince Erik of Denmark, cousin of King Christian, and his wife, Princess Erik, formerly Miss Lois Frances Booth, of Ottawa, Canada, have petitioned the King for a divorce.

DEPRESSED MARKET

POOR TRADE IN CATTLE

GOVERNMENT AGENTS OPERATING

PROBABLY not more than ten per cent. of the cattle offered at the Dublin market yesterday were regarded as worth the minimum price of 25s. per cwt. liveweight, and a few super-grade animals realised 26s. and 27s. per cwt. Shippers had decided overnight to pay the minimum for stock that suited them, and when they had selected what they wanted in ones and twos they ceased buying.

Butchers were more in evidence than a week ago, but still appear to have large stocks of beef at their disposal; for they bought sparingly, but paid the full price for what they wanted. Fully seventy per cent. of the cattle on offer, however, remained unsold. Many of these were second and third-rate beeves, for which no buyer would pay more than 18s. to 20s., but no sales could be effected because of the minimum fixed by the Act.

NO MARGIN

Exporters will not pay 25s. per cwt. live weight for ordinary commercial cattle, because they say the price leaves them no margin for operating in Great Britain in the present depressed condition of trade. For such cattle as these, feeders would be glad to take any reasonable price, but are precluded from doing so by the Act. Several lots of cattle have now been shown on the Dublin market for three weeks in succession, and with grass now going back the outlook for the feeder is not promising. One unsuccessful seller declared that he would have to let the winter convert his beef cattle into stores again if he could not get a buyer.

EXPORT LICENCES

It is generally believed by farmers that if export licences were given to feeders, as is probable when stall-feeding begins, the price of cattle would immediately advance, and the feeder would get the benefit. The existing arrangement is regarded as lending itself to abuses. Unless licences are given to stall-feeders, it is likely that many of them will discontinue that branch of farming.

The difficulty at present is to get rid of lean commercial cattle. They cannot be shipped as stores because they would be confiscated on landing in Britain as beef cattle, and the home butcher does not want them. It is again suggested that the situation might be met by grading the cattle and fixing a sliding scale minimum of, say, 20s. to 25s. per cwt. live-weight.

EXPORTERS' ATTITUDE

Exporters are not alarmed by Dr. Ryan's threat to take over the export cattle trade. They would, in fact, be interested to see how the Minister for Agriculture would succeed where they see no hope of doing so under existing conditions.

It was rumoured to-day that certain lots of fat cattle were placed on the market under the auspices of the Minister for Agriculture to see what would happen, and it is known that representatives of the Government have been attending the Dublin market and leading fairs to investigate the matter.

Some secondary cattle were sold, it was stated, at an average of about 18s. per cwt.

Trade for sheep was not so good yesterday, consequent on an increased supply, and prices generally showed a decline of 3s. to 5s. per head. For small sheep there was a poor demand on account of the 5s. levy.

IN CORK

At Marsh's cattle sale in Cork yesterday 160 head were on offer, but the minimum price under the recent Act was not being offered. No sales were effected in the case of some lots of beef cattle. There was a fair trade for store cattle. Yearlings for export made £4 5s. to £6 15s. Backward yearlings went as low as 30s. each; stores, two to two-and-a-half years old, from £3 10s. to £4 15s., and cows £2 to £4 5s.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

GOVERNMENT AND PEOPLE

The Times observes in a leading article to-day: The National Government has unquestionably struck a bad patch during the final months of the session which closes to-day, but there is no reason to regard it as more than a patch. Waves of unpopularity commonly break upon all Governments which remain in office during considerable periods, and even a Government with so unsurpassed a record cannot hope to escape this experience. Statesmen can no longer take account only of the opinions of an electorate confined to persons accustomed to weigh achievements and issues. They have to reckon with adult suffrage—with a mass of voters attached to no particular party, a considerable number of whom are struggling with the gravest economic difficulties. This fact undoubtedly tends to make changes of opinion more rapid and more violent.

The Government have managed to concentrate a crop of unpopular measures within a very brief space of time. One of them—the Betting Bill—was inevitable some time soon, and to drop it would have been to shirk a manifest duty. It is less easy to see why it was so urgent to present the Opposition with a fertile field for misrepresentation in the Incitement to Disaffection Bill. The bill has, of course, been rendered completely innocuous by amendment, but the Government have reaped discredit for the original, and not credit for the final, structure.

Happily there is a good prospect of clearing up many uncertainties in the near future, adds The Times. Housing policy, for example, cannot pull its full weight until the new Overcrowding Bill appears, and until the demolition of the slums is in full blast, but then it can and should. The care of the unemployed has given rise to the grossest misrepresentations. They have been partly corrected by Mr. Chamberlain's statement of the Government policy towards the distressed areas, and should be finally exposed when the regulations of the Unemployment Assistance Board are published. In fact, what is required upon almost every important issue is a clear lead. The fact that so large a section of the electorate has no definite party allegiances has advantages as well as disadvantages. It means, for example, that there is a widespread predisposition in favour of non-party Government. But that feeling can only be consolidated by continuous proof that such a Government can be specially decisive and constructive, and just as the promise of decisive action was responsible for the overwhelming majority given to the present Government, so decisive action is the only thing which can lift it out of its depression.

Munich artistic circles have been shocked by the news that Fritz Wrample, a forty-one years old sculptor of some repute, was shot dead on Wednesday night. A thirty years old typist, named Anna Burkhart, has been arrested.

LIVELINESS IN ULSTER HALL

THE PROTESTANT LEAGUE

HECKLING OF SPEAKERS

REFERENCE TO THE FREE STATE

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday Night.

THERE were vigorous interruptions at a meeting to-night of the Ulster Protestant League in the Ulster Hall, Belfast, addressed by Sir Basil Brooke, Bart., Northern Minister for Agriculture; Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., M.P.; Mr. William Grant, M.P., and others. The meeting was called as part of the campaign of the League "to keep Ulster Protestant."

Questions were asked from the audience about the employment of Catholics at Stormont, in the police force, and the flying of the Union Jack upon all municipal buildings in the Six Counties; while one speaker from Derry declared that Derry would not forsake the thirty thousand Protestants in Donegal.

At the outset a contingent of 150 from Derry arrived, and took up a position on the platform. They represented the Maiden City Protestant League, and were accompanied by a band, which played "Derry Walls" and other party tunes.

Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., presided at the meeting.

THE PREFERENCE

Mr. James Crossie, Hon. Secretary, said that the Protestant League was formed three and a-half years ago with the express purpose of keeping Ulster Protestant. They desired that when employers had vacancies they should give the preference to Protestants. When they heard about the Union Jack being burned in the Free State they thought it time that they were doing something, and if the tri-colour ever flew over Stormont the Protestant employers of Ulster would be the guilty party.

They had interviewed several firms in Belfast where they knew Catholics got the preference, and in most cases with successful results. They had tried to stem the tide of peaceful penetration that was going on around them. The Ulster Protestant League was founded on Christian principles.

Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., said that he was proud to be an Orangeman and a member of the Apprentice Boys of Derry. They were all working, he said, in the same cause and for the same purpose. The Orange institution was a great bulwark against the incursion of those elements and influences that they all wanted to resist.

Continuing, he urged them to get rid of all personal jealousies and any questions of personal ambition and work together in the maintenance of the Protestant Faith.

He also urged that all Protestants and Orangemen should attend and support their churches, and that all Protestant Churches, even if not able to achieve unity, should work together as much as possible.

DIFFICULTIES

Sir Basil Brooke, Bart., declared that there were many Protestants who, when asked to support their churches, gave very little. They in Ireland had for ages been up against great difficulties, but although they had surmounted those difficulties they should be watchful and prepared He warned them against the cry that Ulster should go back to Westminster.

They only left Westminster, he proceeded, because it was pointed out to them that it was for the good of the Empire, and would be a final settlement of the Irish question.

Was there any doubt in their minds that, if they were back at Westminster and an unsympathetic Government in power, they would be thrown to the wolves and used again to effect another final settlement?

He also warned them against Independent Unionists, who, he declared, were not Unionists at all; otherwise they would not try to undermine the Government, whose policy was to keep Ulster an integral part of Great Britain, and proud of her part in the Empire. The other dangers were from politicians in the South.

He referred to the recent statement of Mr. Lemass at Trinity College, that nine-tenths of the difficulties which existed between England and Ireland were caused by the fact that England continued to acknowledge the partition of Ireland. He seemed to suggest that Ulster was only waiting for England to relax its grip to unite with the rest of Ireland, but he left out one item in that calculation, and that was Ulster. The beautiful picture of a united Ireland under a Republic was always brought up to heal the wounds of internecine strife in the South.

THE FREE STATE

"I think the time has now come," he proceeded, "when we should say to the South finally and for ever our answer is no. We wish the South well, and we do not intend to interfere in their concerns, and we demand that they cease interfering with our Government, and their politicians should cease talking about what Ulster should do, or could do. We have had enough of it; we have been given the task to bring Ulster along the road to prosperity, and we should be left to do so without interference from an outside Power."

Councillor Gallagher, of Derry, raised applause when he declared that in Derry they had been sold to the highest bidder. You may be surprised to know that the St. Vincent de Paul Society is buying up Derry. He also alleged that Republicans were coming over the border into Derry and getting employment from Protestant employers, while thousands of Protestants were out of work. (Cheers and cries: "They are at Stormont, too.")

The leaders only wanted the Orangemen on three days in the year—the 12th July, 25th August, and 18th December. On the 12th July they wore sashes covering their empty stomachs. After that they could go to the devil for all their leaders cared. Their greatest task in Derry to-day, he said, was against the enemies inside the walls, masquerading as loyalists and Orangemen. He gave them the watch-

BELGIUM'S NEW CABINET

FOUR FROM OUTSIDE PARLIAMENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BRUSSELS, Thursday.

M. Jaspar, the new Belgian Premier, has now virtually completed his task of forming a Cabinet. The new Ministry, it is understood, will be composed of five Catholic, and three Liberal, members of Parliament, and four persons chosen from outside Parliament.

M. Jaspar himself will take the Premiership and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, while M. Deveze is to remain in possession of the portfolio of National Defence. The Ministry of Finance is to be split in two. M. Francqui will be at the head of the Treasury, while the Finance Department, properly speaking, will be entrusted to M. de Gutt.

CONSTITUTIONAL STATUS

POSITION OF FREE STATE RESIDENTS

An appeal for support, which has been issued by the Irish Loyalist Imperial Federation and which is signed by Lord Carson of Duncairn and others, states:

"Developments in the Irish Free State are precipitating a situation which is of vital concern to every loyal South Irish-born man and woman wherever resident. Apart from the serious consequences to those resident in the Free State resulting from the abrogation of their constitutional rights and liberties guaranteed by the Anglo-Irish 'Treaty' of 1921, those resident elsewhere may find their constitutional status as British subjects imperilled and their employment jeopardised, should the twenty-six counties of Southern Ireland comprised in the Free State secede from the Empire."

ORDERED OUT OF SPAIN

LORD LISTOWEL AND MISS ELLEN WILKINSON

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Thursday.

The Earl of Listowel and Miss Ellen Wilkinson, who came to Spain to conduct an inquiry into events during the recent revolt and the subsequent situation, are being taken to the French frontier, escorted by a captain of the Civil Guard.

They have not been allowed to carry out the investigations which they wished to make in the Asturias, the centre of fighting during the revolt. The Government's representative told newspaper men that he had received the Commission, and had explained that owing to the delicate situation he could not allow them to make an investigation.

words: "Remember Derry Walls—No Surrender," and "God Save the King."

Mr. Archibald, of Derry, said that they wished in Derry to keep out Republicans and put out the hypocrites. Derry would not forsake the Protestants of Donegal.

INTERRUPTIONS

At this stage there was considerable interruption as a number of questions were shouted at those on the platform. These referred to the flying of a Union Jack on Newry Town Hall and Catholics in the police force.

Mr. W. Grant, M.P., explained that the Newry Urban Council had a right to fly any flag it liked on Newry Town Hall, a statement which was greeted by cries of "No" and "Shame."

Mr. Grant, proceeding, said that he was responsible for getting the Union Jack flown from all the police barracks in Northern Ireland.

Referring to people coming across the border into Derry, he said that they would have to be seven years there before they got a vote, and five years before they would be entitled to unemployment benefit. Instead of shouting at the Government and Protestant employers, he advised them not to support Catholic public-houses and other Catholic traders if Protestant shops were available. There were not so many Catholics in Stormont as the lie factory manufactured, or so many as some people would like to see in order to criticise the Government.

There was a further outbreak of interruptions, and several members of the audience asked why there were three Roman Catholic policemen at the bottom of the hall.

Mr. Glass, speaking from the platform, said that their Government had a tendency to weakness towards the Church of Rome—(applause)—and this was apparent in regard to the Belfast police force.

Another interrupter asked why should Mrs. O'Brien be allowed to preach Irish Republican propaganda in Belfast when the Rev. Dr. Hanna was prosecuted for speaking at an Ulster Protestant League meeting.

A PROTEST

Mr. David Wilson, J.P., regretted some of the things which he heard at that meeting. No real Orangeman would curse the Pope. (Interruptions.) He was a member of an Orange Lodge, and he never heard an Orangeman there curse or swear, and if he did he would be the first member to move his expulsion. Orangemen believed in civil and religious liberty, not only for themselves, but for others.

After further interruptions the meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to Sir Basil Brooke and the singing of the Doxology and "God Save the King."

MESSRS. WILLIAMS AND WOODS, LTD.

DINNER TO NEW DIRECTORS

The directors of Messrs. Williams and Woods, Ltd., 204 Parnell street, Dublin, gave a dinner at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, last night to welcome to their Board Sir Thomas Robinson, Alderman Cormac Breathnach, T.D., and Mr. Thomas G. Blackwell.

Mr. R. Thompson, Chairman of Messrs. Williams and Woods, Ltd., who proposed the toast of "The new directors," said that the firm had been established for three-quarters of a century. Messrs. Crosse and Blackwell, whose goods they were manufacturing here, had been manufacturing some of their products in Ireland for almost two hundred years, and it was interesting to know that the company with which Messrs. Williams and Woods were so closely associated, was undoubtedly one of the oldest in this country. Messrs. Williams and Woods had made very great strides, and now had almost one thousand people employed in their factory.

Sir Thomas Robinson, responding, said that everything that Messrs. Williams and Woods did, they did well. The number of articles that they manufactured really astonished him.

Alderman Breathnach, who also responded, said that it was a pity that more firms had not introduced a scholarship scheme such as had been introduced by Messrs. Williams and Woods, because education was one of the best things that they could have in manufacturing concerns. He was glad to say that no charge could be brought against Messrs. Williams and Woods, either in regard to juvenile labour or to the rate of wages paid to their employés. They gave decent conditions of employment and fair wages, sometimes over the union wages.

Mr. Charles McConnell proposed the toast of "The Company," and this was responded to by Mr. J. R. Gillespie, Secretary of Messrs. Williams and Woods, and Mr. A. H. Bruce, works manager.

Mr. Bruce mentioned that £60,000 had been spent in improvements in the Dublin factory. The firm, he said, always had been free from labour troubles, and they always had had contented workers.

Mr. V. Griffiths proposed the toast of "Mr. Whiteside, Accountant," and Mr. Whiteside replied.

The toast of "The Press" was proposed by Mr. W. Breaks, general manager, and responded to by Mr. Blennerhassett and Mr. J. P. Whitehead.

MINISTER AS PLAINTIFF

INTERESTING DONEGAL CASE

From Our Correspondent.

LETTERKENNY, Thursday.

At Letterkenny Circuit Court to-day, the Free State Minister for Lands and Fisheries sought to recover £57 from Charles Grant, Ballymagan, principal, and two sureties, on a promissory note for the repayment of a Department loan.

Mr. McGinley, for the plaintiff, said that in the year 1919 the defendant obtained a sum of money on loan from the then Department of Agriculture for Ireland for the purpose of erecting fences on a farm. As the debt was due to the Central Fund it was not Statute barred.

Mr. O'Doherty, for the defence, argued that the claim was Statute barred and that the ancient privileges and prerogatives that were attached to the person of the King did not now attach to the servants of the State, particularly in view of the fact that the oath had been abolished, as was also the right of appeal to the Privy Council. There was no evidence to show this particular loan was made out of public funds.

His lordship said that in his opinion Mr. McGinley had made a sufficient prima facie case that the debt was due to the Central Fund. He was not laying down any general principle of law in deciding the case, and was only giving his decision on the particular facts adduced in evidence in awarding a decree for the amount claimed.

BELFAST MAN WOUNDED

"TREASONABLE DOCUMENT"

DONEGAL D.J.'S WARNING

FREE STATE ARMY WOULD MARCH

From Our Correspondent.

LETTERKENNY, Thursday.

On taking his seat at the District Court in Letterkenny yesterday, Mr. Louis J. Walsh, D.J., said that it had come to his notice that a treasonable document, which might have very serious consequences, both for those who circulated it and for the peace of the county, was being hawked round for signature in the Court district for which he was responsible. "I have no concern," he said, "with the political considerations involved, but, as this Court is primarily responsible for good order in the area, I am very much concerned about the threat to its peace which the circulation of this document entails, and it is also my duty to see that all attempts at treasonable activities should be repressed. I refer to a petition which is being carried round for signature which contains several scandalous and utterly groundless statements about the government and administration of Saorstat Eireann, and which seeks the intervention of some outside authority in order to detach from the Saorstat portion of the territories solmenly guaranteed to it by a document internationally recognised and registered at the League of Nations.

ABNORMAL MINDS

It is only because that the abnormal frame of mind bred in us by years of oppression has confused our manner of thinking that those who have been foolish enough to sign this petition have not adverted to its illegality and its treasonable nature. What would happen to a Frenchman who hawked a document through Alsace making slanderous statements about the French administration in the province and seeking to have it transferred to Germany? What would be thought of a body of Englishmen who conspired to have Cornwall handed over to France? The sooner our citizens learn that ours is a Sovereign State that will not permit any infringement of its rights the better it will be for everybody. I, therefore, desire to warn those who have had anything to do with this document that they have been engaged in treasonable practices. Probably many of them have acted in ignorance, and I would be sorry to see the drastic provisions of the Public Safety Act applied to people who are, in the main, good citizens and who have been induced to sign this document under pressure from designing outsiders and without full advertence to its implication. I trust that this warning will be sufficient and restrain them from any further illegalities.

This petition is, however, worse than a crime on the part of those responsible for it—it is a blunder. It is well known that the Tory Cabinet, which had to deal with the Feetham report, was prevented from interfering with the Donegal border by confidential reports received from trustworthy sources in Ireland. Feeling ran so high as the result of the threat to the integrity of this county that for some weeks we all sat on a powder barrel. Any attempt to transfer even a townland of Donegal would have provoked a series of fights, burnings and reprisals on both sides of the border, and led to a conflagration the end of which no man could have foreseen. The British Cabinet considered the matter carefully and decided that they were not going to risk a renewal of hostilities in Ireland for the sake of a few anti-Irish bigots.

A MENACE TO PEACE

We do not want a recurrence of the high feeling of that time, and any attempt to provoke it must be regarded as a serious menace to the peace of the district, the disturbance of which could only result in very serious losses to those people in Donegal who are most active in this matter. The risk is a hundred times greater now, because our present Government is one which knows its own mind, and has never been afraid to stand for its full rights. The object of these petitioners could only be achieved by action on the part of the British Government, and we all know that any attempt to filch even a sod of Donegal from the Saorstat would result in the National Army being marched to the border and the attempt being met by force. It may only be a small Army, but it could at least resist long enough to fire the mine which might throw all Europe into the horror of war.

RENEWED WAR

The Saorstat is a member of the League of Nations. The important world States are represented by Ambassadors in Dublin. England has signed the Kellog and other Peace Pacts. A shot anywhere from the Balkans to Newtowncunningham might unloose the dogs of war all over Europe. Does any sane man, therefore, think that astute English Statesmen are going to risk all this for the sake of a few gallons of milk from the Lagan area?

LOYAL CITIZENS

Therefore the Donegal Unionists should make up their minds to keep clear of fooleries of this sort, which are probably engineered from outside sources. Their interests are now identical with ours, and their best policy is to accept things as they find them and to settle down as good and loyal citizens of the State. As a matter of fact, most of them are prepared to do so, and are only prevented from saying so openly by the want of moral courage which has always been noticeable in every part of Ulster and by unfair pressure which is being applied to them by designing political propagandists. There are Protestant farmers, I believe, who say privately that they are doing quite well under the new conditions, but who are afraid to admit this in public. Failure in moral courage is, however, not an illegality, and it does not concern this Court. But putting one's name to a slanderous and treasonable document is quite another matter, in regard to which I think it my duty to utter this warning.

MIDLETON BETTING CASE

TWO MEN REMANDED

From Our Correspondent.

MIDLETON, Thursday.

The hearing was resumed at Midleton Court to-day of a case in which James K. McGarry, Customs and Excise officer, Midleton, and Thomas Sheehan were jointly charged with obtaining by false pretences sums amounting to £106 10s. 6d. from Richard Power, bookmaker, Midleton, and with attempting to steal a further sum of £15 2s.

Guard Hugh McDyer, Ballincurrig, gave evidence of having cashed a betting docket in March last at Sheehan's request at Power's, and of having received a cheque for £50. Witness had no interest in the transaction beyond obliging Sheehan. In June Sheehan 'phoned him stating that they were "after bringing off another good bet, something similar to the previous one, and that he (Sheehan) was after using witness's name at the bookmaker's office. Witness rebuked Sheehan for using his name, and later called to Mr. Power's office and stated that he had won nothing like a sum of £56 in March, and knew nothing whatever about such a bet.

Patrick J. Casey, handwriting expert, gave it as his opinion that all the dockets mentioned in the charges had been tampered with.

Sergeant Whelan, who gave evidence of arrest, stated that both the accused men when arrested said: "I have nothing to say."

The further hearing of the case was adjourned to the next Court, the accused men being remanded on continuing bails.

CITIZENSHIP OF THE FREE STATE

NEW BILL IN THE DAIL

PROVISIONS EXPLAINED BY MR. DE VALERA

At last night's sitting of the Dail, President de Valera moved the second reading of the promised Citizenship Bill, 1935.

He said that that was the first time on which an Irish Parliament had been invited to discuss proposals for the regulation throughout the world of Irish citizenship. Article 3 of the Constitution created only a very limited local citizenship. Citizenship was confined within the limits of the jurisdiction of Saorstat Eireann (as it was on December 6, 1922), to certain classes of people. That Article of the Constitution contemplated that conditions governing the acquisition and termination of citizenship should be determined as regards the future after that date by law. No such law had been passed, and the result had been that anomalies had occurred. In that bill they proposed to extend the Article of the Constitution, and also implement the Article by providing the necessary legislation that governed the conditions for the acquisition and termination of citizenship.

The need for the bill had been felt both in the domestic sphere and in the sphere of their international relations. In the domestic sphere they needed an exact statutory definition of citizenship—for example, in connection with their electoral system, entry into the public service, their merchant shipping laws, and in connection with the ownership of aircraft. They needed it in connection with those special privileges which they thought should be reserved for their own citizens, and in connection with their general economic policy. In fact, they might say that they needed it in regard to every sphere and every domain in which they wanted their own citizens to enjoy special rights and privileges.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

In their external relations they required it also in a very special way. They had established diplomatic missions in Washington, Paris Brussels, Berlin, the State of the Vatican, as well as in London. The purpose of those missions was not merely to establish relations with the Governments of the particular countries, but also to give to such of their nationals who might be in those countries the necessary protection, and to provide for them advice and facilities when they needed them. That advice and those facilities were also afforded by their Consular services, which was being extended very widely in the United States. Those Consulates performed many functions for the benefit of their nationals. In the interests of all those functions, it was very necessary that citizenship should be capable of being determined without any ambiguity, whether a particular person was or was not a citizen of the Irish Free State. For that reason he thought that every deputy in the House should welcome the introduction of the bill.

If they examined it they would find that it was divided into three main sections. There was first of all the section relating to the natural-born citizen; another section related to the acquisition of citizenship by naturalisation certificate, a special part relating to the acquisition of citizenship by marriage. Then they had the portion dealing with mutual citizenship rights. Another section dealt with the whole question of definition—the question as to who was to be a natural-born citizen.

NATURAL-BORN CITIZENS

Natural-born citizens were to be divided into two categories—those who were born in the territory of Saorstat Eireann, and those whose fathers were citizens, whether those fathers were born themselves in the territory or not. In regard to the latter, they would find that the children—in the case of fathers living outside the territory, but who were born in the Saorstat—automatically became natural-born citizens, but the children of fathers who were not born within the Saorstat had to be registered in a book called the Foreign Entry Book, which would be kept in the Legations, or in the births register to be kept in the Ministry of External Affairs. It seemed not unreasonable to demand that where a father was not born in this country and acquired his citizenship automatically from his father, he, being more detached from the country, should, if he wished his child to be a citizen of the country, perform some positive act in that regard. That positive act was to have the birth of the child entered into the Foreign Entry Book. The child, on obtaining 21 years of age, would, in addition, have to signify a desire to remain an Irish citizen.

In regard to the process of naturalisation, any person who fulfilled certain conditions could apply for a certificate of naturalisation, and the Minister for Justice would consider whether the prescribed conditions were fulfilled. There was the residence condition that demanded that these should be, previous to the application for citizenship, at least five years' residence in Saorstat Eireann, one year immediately preceding the date of application, and a further four years either continuous or summing up the period of four years in the preceding eight years. In other words there was to be a total period of five years' residence over a period, and of the five years one must be immediately preceding the application. There must be good character, the applicant must intend to reside continuously for the period he had indicated, and he must intend to become an ordinary resident in the country, and he must make a declaration of acceptance of citizenship. Unless those conditions were fulfilled a certificate of naturalisation would not be issued. Certain exceptions with regard to residents were made.

MARRIED PEOPLE

Dealing with the question of nationality, where one spouse was an Irish national and the other was an alien, they proposed that marriage of itself should neither confer nor deprive an Irish national of citizenship.

After the passing of the Act those who resided outside the country were given one year in which the Irish national could make a declaration to retain Irish nationality. If the declaration was not made within one year after marriage, then the Irish national ceased to be a citizen. In the case of marriage before the passing of the Act, if there was residence abroad, then a period of one year was given in which the necessary declaration could be made. In the case of those married after the passage of the Act, and who proposed to reside within the country, the bill said that there would be a period of six months, but it would possibly be extended on the Committee stage to a year. In the case of those who married before the passage of the Act, and who were in the State for a period of two years or continuously since their marriage, the non-national could apply for citizenship.

THE BRITISH ACTS

Dealing with a group of sections regarding mutual or reciprocal rights which it was proposed to grant to citizens of other countries, in certain cases the President said that, where the law provided in other countries that our nationals got certain privileges, then the Executive could, by order, give to the citizens of those countries corresponding rights and privileges. It was expressly provided in the bill that special rights and privileges that might be reserved by statute, such as the Control of Manufactures Bill, would still be reserved for their own citizens.

The only other important provision was the repeal of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Acts of 1914 and 1918 to the extent that they might be deemed to be in operation here. It was a necessary safeguard that no question of that kind could arise.

The Government was anxious to have the fullest discussion on the bill, which the Government considered a very important one, any any proposals or amendments suggested would be given the fullest consideration. He did not think that the bill ought to be a controversial measure. It certainly was not conceived in any party spirit, and it would be altogether wrong to have a bill of that sort conceived in a party spirit.

IRISHMEN IN ENGLAND

In reply to Mr. McGilligan, the PRESIDENT said that it was intended to delete the words in Article 3 of the Constitution which referred to citizenship being confined within the limits of the area of jurisdiction of the Saorstat.

Mr. McGILLIGAN welcomed the introduction of the bill, but said that he was sorry that its effect was limited. What position did the President expect our citizens would have to take when they were in England? Let them take the case of an adherent of Fianna Fail—in brackets, Republican Party—(Laughter)—who took up a medical practice in England, did he become a British subject, or could he say: "I am a good Republican at home, but I can become a British subject if I like abroad?"

He understood that the President still refused to put his name on the passport. The President would have to face up to that and clean up that ambiguity. The only effect of nationality in modern times was that citizens should have letters of introduction to another State. The President via a civil servant, via the King, asks in the King's name for protection for our citizens, and it was only shirking responsibility to be afraid to put his name on the passport. They had to ask protection for our citizens in the name of the King, and they had to rely on British Consuls where they had none of their own, and upon British gun-boats. If it happened that an Irishman was kidnapped on the Chinese Mission, would the President put his name to a document asking that protection be given him? Would he refuse to sign a letter of thanks to the people who supplied the gunboat to rescue the man.

CASE OF ENGLISH CITIZENS

Was it their intention that if they signed a convention with England that in return they would give English citizens certain rights and privileges in return for similar concessions to our citizens in England. Did they want the privilege to enter for certain examinations in England? Did they want to use British Consuls, or were they going to ask German or French Consuls, to do them that service in return for payment or some service we would render them here? Did they want in the final resort the aid of British armed forces, or would they seek, as they might seek, the help of armed forces of some other nation?

The Fianna Fail position in 1930 was, "We don't want anything except Irish nationality, and if we must have some declaration of our position we are going to declare for disassociation. If people wave before us certain privileges which our nationals can now get travelling abroad, then we put these on one side as incompatible with our national dignity and status—and we prefer our dignity and status."

The gist of their remarks, said Mr. McGILLIGAN, was that I was tying this country still more tightly into the framework of the British Empire. Mr. MacEntee went so far as to commit himself to the statement that, even in the matter of passports, he knew that the King's prerogative still ran; in the matter of sending abroad Ambassadors and Consuls the King's prerogative held, and that behind the King was the British Parliament.

SIDE STEPPING

To-night the President, with a show of triumph, said: "We have established diplomatic missions abroad." Who did? The continuity of the State is now apparent. This Government are the successors of the people who, in fact, established the missions.

Mr. E. DONNELLY—You are being badly side-sepped.

Mr. McGILLIGAN—The biggest side-stepping here is the avoidance of the question of what our nationals are going to do abroad.

The President, he continued, said many anomalies have occurred. I wonder where are they? Has there been anything so anomalous as the new situation—that you have an original stock of citizens, depending on birth, or where either of the parents was Irish—and we continue citizenship only through the father. Even children of Irish natural-born fathers are not going to become Irish citizens unless they register within a certain period. I don't know if there is an example in modern law of such a restriction.

Is there now created here a citizenship such that, if we ever have common status with other members of the Commonwealth, it will introduce into that common group people who previously would not have been admitted? I certainly think it may happen under the nationalisation section. If so, are we, without any thought to the matter, to repudiate the results of the two Conferences which we attended in 1929 and 1930? No case against those results has been made or presented to the House.

Is it advisable that the situation has been left that, until the British should repeal the 1914 Act in relation to our people in England, our people can attach themselves to that Act and seek its shelter when in difficulties? If so, can we say that bill marks any advance upon the report of the 1929-30 Conferences, which the present Vice-President said were a "degradation of the nationality of this country." Surely that is the biggest point.

REACTION ABROAD

The privileges that people can give themselves when they are at home are determined easily, but the full importance of the measure is what is its reaction on other countries. How does it dovetail into the international situation? Are you going to get facilities and protection for our nationals when they travel abroad by a direct Convention with England or with other countries, or is the President going to "do the double" as usual? Is he saying, "I am repealing the British Nationality Act of 1914 in its application to this country, but I am not going to move at all in relation to the British in regard to that Act in England! Our citizens may avail themselves of its provisions there?"

That (continued Mr. McGilligan) would leave our citizens with some safeguards when they are abroad—it would safeguard the ideal which made the President and his Ministers fume with rage when the report of the 1929-1930 Conferences came here for consideration, when they said it was treason to talk of the possibility of any association of our citizens with citizens of Australia, South Africa, India, even if we were distinct, one from another, as Germany from France.

The President may say, "My people may claim to be British subjects when they go to England, or where they will—I will not make an open, clear-cut arrangement with England in regard to Ambassadors and Consuls abroad. I will not have anything to do with anybody who puts himself in the abject condition of being a British subject when he is abroad."

I judge that (concluded Mr. McGilligan) from the fact that the President is so silent about what his intentions are under the new bill.

DISAPPOINTMENT

Mr. J. A. COSTELLO (U.I., Dublin County) said he had nothing but feelings of disappointment when he read the draft of the bill, because when it was examined from the point of view of national and domestic law, it was a perfectly harmless and innocuous piece of domestic legislation, with little, if any, effect from the point of view of public international law. Article 3 of the Constitution created the local status of citizenship of the Saorstat, and this bill was nothing but an extension of Article 3.

Local citizenship was a novel idea to fit into the Treaty and the Constitution. It was thoroughly distinct and in no way antagonistic to what was known as British citizenship. It had been an endeavour to create within the framework of the Treaty what they all regarded as their natural and inalienable birthright of Irish nationality. This bill did nothing more than regulate the contemplation that there should be legislation provided for the acquisition of future citizenship of the State. The bill did nothing more than regulate existing citizenship. It marked no advance on the position that existed in 1922, and entirely ignored the efforts made by Deputy McGilligan at the Imperial Conferences of 1929 and 1930 to get proper recognition for the idea and ideal of Irish nationhood and Irish nationality within the framework of the Treaty, and recognition of domestic law and the law running through the British Commonwealth of Nations, and public and private international law.

Very considerable progress had been made at these Conferences, and the people did not yet recognise the work put into them that was so much criticised in 1930 by the members of the Fianna Fail Party. Every jurist from the other Dominions recognised at the end of 1930 the truth of the statement put forward by Mr. McGilligan, then Minister for External Affairs, that the British Commonwealth of Nations was not a Commonwealth of British nations. There were different nationalities comprised in that Commonwealth which were entitled to the recognition of their nationalities and to the international recognition of their nationalities.

Progress was reported.

The House adjourned until November 28th.

SYNGE STREET SCHOOLS

PAST PUPILS' REUNION

THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERS' WORK

A HIGH tribute to the Order of Irish Christian Brothers, and the work they are doing, was paid by Mr. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry and Commerce) at the second annual reunion dinner of the past pupils of the Christian Brothers' Schools, Synge street, held in the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin, last night.

Professor Thomas Nolan, of the State Laboratory, was in the chair, and among a gathering numbering a couple of hundred were priests, professional men, politicians, labour leaders, and business men, all of whom had received their education at Synge street.

The toast of "The Pope" was proposed by the Rev. James Doyle, C.C., of the Church of the Holy Name, Ranelagh, an old pupil.

Another old pupil, the Rev. James Robinson, C.C., of St. Andrew's, proposed "Eire."

"Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. Joseph Geraghty, barrister-at-law.

Canon Grimes, P.P., St. Kevin's, responded. He referred to his long association with Synge street. He went first to St. Kevin's and at that time there were six hundred pupils in Synge street, and about 300 in the auxiliary schools, Francis street. To-day there were 1,600 boys on the rolls at Synge street, between 600 and 700 at Francis street, and a further 600 in the new schools at Fairbrothers' Fields, so that there were, all told, about 3,000 pupils under the direction of the Synge street Christian Brothers. If they wanted to see the result of the Christian Brothers' teaching they had only to look round at that gathering.

In calling upon the Minister for Industry and Commerce to respond to the toast of Our Guests, the chairman asked the Minister to convey to his colleague, the Minister for Education, a request to try and secure in his programme less home work for "parents."

MINISTER'S TRIBUTE

Mr. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry and Commerce), responding to the toast, said that, like the members of the Union present, he was a Dublin man and a product of the Irish Christian Brothers, though not of Synge street. In every stage of their educational careers the Christian Brothers kept before them the story of their country and its struggles, and instilled into them a deep sense of pride in that story. Whether or not they took away a knowledge of algebra, French or Euclid, they did take away the twin virtues of patriotism and discipline. It was because the Christian Brothers of the past succeeded in instilling into generations of Irish youth that sense of patriotism and sense of discipline that the country had been able to make progress, and it was because they were doing that work now that they could be confident that that progress was going to continue.

He for one, as a past pupil of the Christian Brothers, felt very glad to have the opportunity of paying full tribute to the work they had done and were doing for Ireland. Tribute was paid to many organisations and individuals for the achievement of the past twenty years, but he thought the fullest possible credit must go to those men in this Order who unadvertised, without seeking publicity, nevertheless succeeded in giving the direction of their national thought, and bringing into existence a generation of Irishmen who set out to achieve what their predecessors had attempted. Ireland had every reason to feel proud of the Christian Brothers and the work they had done. He did not think that they would be regarded as unduly self-confident if they said that Ireland had reason to be proud of the young men who had been, and were being, turned out by the Christian Brothers.

The Christian Brothers had succeeded in the educational sphere because they were enthusiasts for their work. They were men who had devoted their whole lives, their thoughts and their attention to the task of training youth.

The toast of "The School" was proposed by Mr. Michael J. Lennon, barrister-at-law, and responded to by Mr. P. J. Munden, F.R.I.B.A., and Mr. Michael Hayes, ex-Speaker of the Dail, who said that, to his mind, the great achievement of the Christian Brothers was not in turning out those brilliant ex-pupils, but in the education they gave to the ordinary pupils and the grip and training given to the backward boys to go through life. A great change had taken place in the destiny of the country, and that change was due to that very much abused body, the Irish Intermediate Education Board. The Christian Brothers' took the Intermediate Education Act, and gave to the ordinary plain people of this country the benefits of secondary education. National sentiment would have got them nowhere but for the existence in this country of a number of ordinary "Papist natives" who had secondary education, and who in the mass got that education from the Christian Brothers.

A musical programme was contributed by a number of ex-pupils, including Messrs. J. C. Browner, H. Aylward, J. M. Fay, E. Germaine, J. Adams, W. L. Lemass, H. Johnson, T. Martin, and P. Morgan. Other ex-pupils—Messrs. Mortimer Sheehan and A. Frazer—played the accompaniments.

The proceedings concluded with the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" and "The Soldiers' Song."

Among those present were:—The Very Rev. Canon Grimes, P.P.; the Very Rev. Brother Noonan, B.A. (Superior-General of the Christian Brothers); Messrs. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry and Commerce), Michael Hayes, B.A. (ex-Speaker of the Dail); George McGrath (Auditor-General), Dr. Thomas McLoughlin, B.A., M.I.E.E.; Dr. Myles Keogh, the Rev. Brother Burke (Superior of Synge street), the Rev. James Doyle, C.C., Church of the Holy Name, Ranelagh; M. J. Lennon, B.A., barrister-at-law; P. J. Munden, F.R.I.B.A., M.R.I.A.I.; the Rev. Thomas Meleady, John P. Collins, the Rev. James Robinson, C.C., St. Andrew's, Westland row; Joseph Geraghty, barrister-at-law; M. F. MacCormac, F.C.R.A., F.C.C.S.; F. Mangan, M.A., LL.B.; A. M. McLoughlin, B.A., A.R.C.Sc.I.; the Rev. F. Tarpey, the Rev. Brothers Linane, Galvin, Lonergan and Donnelly, M. J. Kenny, F.C.R.A., F.C.C.S.; Terence Byrne, J. P. Kennedy, Mortimer Sheehan, Kevin Mulderry, L.D.S.; E. J. Crocker, F.C.R.A.; N. Healy, J. C. Browner, T. J. Glover, LL.D.; P. Morgan, D. Morgan, Sean Campbell, W. J. Whelan, W. Bolger, J. Martin, H. Johnson, J. P. Crocker, M. Scully, J. Scully, W. Rowe, T. Nagle, J. T. MacCormac, F.C.R.A.; T. O'Ruairc, P. J. Daniel, E. Foley, J. T. O'Dockery, F.C.R.A.; P. OBITUARY

BRIGADIER-GENERAL NEWENHAM

Brigadier-General Henry Edward Berkeley Newenham, of East Grove, Lymington, Hants., who was the Officer Commanding the first body of men to land at Gallipoli in 1915, died yesterday. He was aged 67.

General Newenham, who was found dead in bed by a man servant who went to call him, had been ill for six months. For many years he had suffered from ill-health, following six operations to his leg, which was injured at Gallipoli. For his services in this campaign he was thrice mentioned in despatches, and was made a Companion of the Bath (Military Division).

He was born in Dublin, the son of the late Mr. W. H. Newenham, of Maryborough Park, Cork. He joined the Royal Fusiliers in 1886, and served in the South African war, during which he was slightly wounded. Brigadier-General Newenham was Mayor of Lymington from 1924 until 1927. As honorary treasurer of Lymington Cottage Hospital, he personally raised a fund of £5,000 for hospital extensions and the building of a nurses' home. He leaves a widow.

CHARTERED SURVEYORS' INSTITUTION

A meeting of the Irish Free State branch of the Chartered Surveyors' Institution was held at their offices, 110 Grafton street, Dublin, yesterday. Mr. J. Graves Clayton presided, and there were also present:—Messrs. Harry Lisney, J. J. McAuley, C. J. Dunlop, H. A. Vernon, R. J. A. Jameson, Major C. G. C. Hemphill, and the Secretary (B. J. Newcombe).

The proposed formation of a branch of the junior organisation of the Institution in the Irish Free State was officially sanctioned.

The Committee had under consideration the operation of the Finance Act, 1934, in relation to certain deductions and claims by property owners in payment of income tax, and it was decided to circularise members for information to be placed before the Minister for Finance.

The result of the recent ballot by the Institution was announced, the following new members who have passed the professional examinations being declared elected:—To the Fellowship, Frank Edward Beckett; as professional associates, John Lyons and Hugh H. M. Townsend.

COURSES IN ITALIAN

The courses of instruction in Italian which have been given in Trinity College, Dublin, for the last four years, will, through the courtesy of the Board, be resumed by Dr. C. Delle Piane, of the Royal Italian Consulate, on Monday next.

The classes, which are free and open to all, will be held on Mondays and Fridays from 5 to 6 p.m.

DUBLIN PROPERTY MARKET

A sale of considerable importance to property-owners and those interested in the purchase and sale of ground rents was held yesterday by Messrs. Battersby and Company. Four different estates, arising out of business and residential properties situated in different parts of Dublin, were offered. In all there were some thirty lots, with total annual rental of about £1,000. Sales were made in all except three minor cases. The purchase price in some cases ran up to twenty years' purchase.

The most interesting lot was a rent held under fee-farm grant of £182 10s. 8d., issuing out of, and payable by, the Dublin Stock Exchange, which was eagerly sought after by many of the bidders, the purchaser being a well-known Dublin physician. Sales were recorded in rapid succession. From the tone of the market it seems that there is a good deal of money available for investment in sound securities, such as were offered yesterday. Among the solicitors concerned were Messrs. Sutton and Co., Dame street; Sheridan and Kenny, 24 Eustace street; O'Hagan and Son, E. and G. Stapleton, Roger Greene and Son, Joynt and Crawford, J. W. Lane, S. Dempsey, Miley and Miley, and Arthur Cox.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

BLANK WINS BY A HEAD

Jean's Dream Enhances His Manchester Prospects

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

DERBY, Thursday Night.

THE atmospheric conditions here to-day were much the same as yesterday—that is to say, a good deal of mist hung over the course. In addition, it rained until just after the fourth race. This was the Derby Cup, which Lord Harewood's Blank won, after a good race, by a head from Jean's Dream.

Most people anticipated that the winner would have started favourite, but actually Shining Cloud and R. B. Bennett were preferred in the market to the Egerton House colt.

It may be said for Shining Cloud that, though she ran well, the pace was much too sharp for her. The pace, considering the state of the going, was about the hottest I have seen in this race.

Artesian went on in front of Lincrusta and Jean's Dream at such a gallop that the field was like yards of ribbon when they had gone half-way. Coming into the straight Artesian was still in front of Jean's Dream and Blank, while Shining Cloud had also come there. Round the turn she lost ground and did not come again.

Artesian Drops Out

When they were well in the straight Artesian dropped out, and Blank and Jean's Dream singled themselves out well clear of the others. For a sustained struggle, Blank was always having a little the better of it, and won cleverly, Jean's Dream making a gallant attempt to give the 18lb. away. His good performance to-day gives him an excellent chance of winning for the second time the Manchester November Handicap, in which his weight is 7st. 12lb., or 5lb. less than he carried to-day.

Celestial City finished third, but Mr. Watson's filly was five lengths behind the second. Amoretto was fourth and R. B. Bennett fifth in the long procession that straggled past the post, the rear being brought up by Pompelmoose. I never saw Spring Morning there with a chance.

Another for Richards

Having reached his 200th winner in the last race yesterday, Gordon Richards proceeded to make his total 201 by winning the opening selling race on Trout Lane, who started favourite, made all the running, and beat the outsider, Lycurgus, by two lengths. The winner, a four-year-old filly by Salmon Trout, was bought in for 85 guineas. The Executive, whose attendance was a good deal affected by the weather, had a poor increment from surpluses; for the winner of the Drakelow Selling Nursery, Mr. Frank Dennis's Evasion, a colt by Embargo, was bought in for 80 guineas.

Gordon Richards's mount, Laserian, was favourite, but Mr. H. Kennedy's son of Wavetop, who was the best drawn, edged away from his good place and finished in the middle of the course, beaten a length by Evasion.

An Unexpected Winner

Lord Derby won the Friary Nursery with Brown Study, who is trained for him by Mr. Cottrill. This little daughter of Papyrus and Composure is a half-sister to the rather disappointing colt, Haytime, who was handicapped here 27lb. below a plater, the Madeira filly. But even then her trainer did not fancy her much, and she surprised him by coming right away from the filly by Poltava out of Lady Sheila and beating her by four lengths.

An interesting winner of the day was Pegasus, who, with odds of 2 to 1 laid on him, won the Quarndon Maiden Plate by three parts of a length and half-a-length from Blue Check and Pharsalus. This is a big, good-looking gelding by Pommern, who made his first appearance in Cesarewitch Week in the race won by Mate from Solenoid. In Cambridgeshire Week he won running away from Achtung. This should be a more than useful horse next year.

Seldom does a day at Derby pass without a race going to one of the Northern stables. Elsey sent a winner from Malton yesterday, and from the same centre Easterby sent one to-day. This was Mr. R. Dand's Blue Brocade, a grey filly by Arcade, whom Dines rode, and who was a winner of the Chaddesden Handicap by half-a-length and a neck from Orlove and All-a-Fire.

Selections

The card which had to be postponed on Tuesday will be run off to-morrow. In writing about this programme on Monday night my selection for the Markeaton Handicap was PRICKET, who had been sent on from Liverpool, where he was just beaten on Saturday in the Grosvenor Cup. Mr. Lambton has since changed his mind, and he may not run to-morrow. In his absence my selection is GRAND ROUNDS.

ROMANY LASS may win the Chesterfield Nursery, and SUBROSA the Rangemore Plate.

GALTEE MORE.

GRAND ROUNDS FANCIED

Subrosa Given a Firm Vote for Rangemore Plate

MORE than a hundred runners will be saddled for the six events at Derby to-day, when the programme to be decided is the one that was postponed owing to fog from Tuesday. There should be some keen wagering, especially in connection with the Markeaton Plate, for which about six of the runners appear to be genuinely fancied.

I am prepared to see Makila, a French-bred son of Epinard, do better than Andrea and Typhonic, despite having to concede weight to both. He has shown a good turn of speed in his two previous efforts in this country, and his pedigree suggests that he should have sufficient stamina for this event, which is run over an easy straight mile. However, there are two or three among the light-weights which I fancy to beat Frank Hartigan's charge.

Cambridgeshire Stakes form has worked out so well that one can readily visualise strong backing for Grand Rounds. He showed to much better advantage than his more fancied stable companion, Caymanas, in the Newmarket Handicap, and it may be remembered that he was prominent among the leaders for a mile. He swerved at this point, but for which he would certainly have been placed, and is obviously an improved colt now that the galloping conditions are to his liking.

Another unlucky horse last time out was Tapestry II. She was drawing away from her rivals in a similar race at Hurst Park recently, when she suddenly stumbled and lost ground. As it was, she only lost by a head, so is virtually a winner without a penalty. She also likes soft going, and won over the course and distance twelve months ago.

Dignitary, whom Gordon Richards rides, has not run up to expectations in his last two races. It is possible that he has been running beyond his best distance, and, recalling that he put up some stylish displays in events over about a mile earlier in the year, I believe he will do well this time. However, the light-weights had the issue to themselves last year, and I choose from Tapestry II. and my preference being for the latter.

Although over thirty horses will be saddled for the Rangemore Maiden Plate I think the best betting proposition of the day runs here. I refer to a much-improved daughter of Sir Cosmo, whose stock has been so successful this season. She was not produced until September, and since her début she won at Newmarket and finished second to Ajax at Newbury. In my opinion she has only to run as well as on the latter occasion to win. The probability is that she will improve on all her previous form.

Mr. Gerald Armstrong is a very capable amateur rider, and I think he will win the Doveridge Plate on the consistent has only a small penalty for his easy Leicester success, and I am rather confident that he will defy it.

SIMONSIDE.

In the Chesterfield Nursery

LOVE DREAM GELDING

Off 2.33. (Winner trained by W. Jarvis.)

Betting—7 to 2 agst. Shining Cloud, 5 to 1 R. B. Bennett, 11 to 2 BLANK, 6 to 1 Artesian, 8 to 1 Spring Morning, 100 to 6 each Jean's Dream, Trapper, Solar Boy and Dalmary, 20 to 1 each Amoretto, Hoplite, Mandritsara and Celestial City, 25 to 1 Hill Song, 33 to 1 any other.

Tote (2/-)—Win, 14/6; places, 6/-, 13/3, 31/-.

Artesian cut out the work from Lincrusta, Jean's Dream, Mandritsara and Pompelmoose, Gainslaw being last. Artesian was still in the lead approaching the top turn, attended by Jean's Dream, Shining Cloud, Amoretto and R. B. Bennett. Artesian's effort faded out after making the turn into the straight, and at this point Jean's Dream was hotly pursued by Blank, the most prominent of the others being Celestial City, Amoretto, Mandritsara and R. B. Bennett. Jean's Dream and Blank engaged in a desperate struggle from the distance, the latter winning a good race by a head; five lengths separated second and third. Amoretto was fourth, R. B. Bennett fifth, Mandritsara sixth, Artesian seventh, Phileas eighth, and Pompelmoose last. Time—3 mins. 9 1-5 secs.

Draw for places:—No. 1 (outside), Pompelmoose; 2, Mandritsara; 3, Trustee; 4, Dalmary; 5, Trapper; 6, Blank; 7, Gainslaw; 8, Lincrusta; 9, Bonny Brighteyes; 10, Canteener; 11, Hoplite; 12, Amoretto; 13, Phileas; 14, Solar Boy; 15, Artesian; 16, Spring Morning; 17, Shining Cloud; 18, R. B. Bennett; 19, Jean's Dream; 20, Hill Song; 21, Celestial City.

NEWMARKET NOTES

Spade's Chance in the November Handicap : Selections

NEWMARKET, Thursday.

WITH few exceptions, this morning's work was only of a healthy description. J. Jarvis was on the Bury side, and took the top sheets off his Manchester November Handicap filly, Pip Emma, and, in company with Sansculotte, she moved well throughout a striding pace gallop over one mile. She should give quite a good account of herself at Castle Irwell.

Paper Cap, with Felswood, was given a smart five furlong spin, while similar gallops were given to Eton Blue, Theio, Sibylla, Pearla f., Light Tackle and Bridal Song.

Day's Manchester November Handicap representative, Solmint, appears to have benefited by his easy time since he ran at the September fixture, as I noticed how well he moved in a striding pace gallop over one mile with Blandearna.

The Hon. George Lambton's Beacon Hill, by himself, galloped one mile and three-quarters at a good pace, and, should he be the selected for the Open Club Welter Stakes at Lingfield on Saturday, he will be difficult to beat.

Spade, who figures among the acceptances for the Manchester November Handicap, was given a nice pace gallop over one mile. He has got quite his share of weight, but being such a genuine horse, and with galloping conditions in his favour, he may easily cause a surprise.

Boozer's Gloom moved well in a good pace gallop over one mile with Spanish State (W. Rickaby). He missed his engagement at Derby yesterday, probably in view of the Ellesmere Handicap at Manchester next Friday, and, being reasonably weighted, is bound to prove difficult to beat.

Cocktail, with Compensation g., galloped sharply five furlongs. The latter, who was only just beaten at Liverpool last Saturday, should be followed next week.

In view of her engagement at Derby to-morrow, Briscoe gave Aspiration a smart five furlong spin with Sea Light, and, being so well, she will give a forward display.

Frank Butters gave his Manchester November Handicap candidates, Achtenan, Lucky Patch and Robber Chief, just a useful pace gallop over six furlongs, and they will, no doubt, be given a much longer gallop on Saturday.

Shove Halfpenny was assisted by Slave Song and Grey Wonder in a useful six furlong spin. The former moved well, and is worthy of notice for his Manchester engagement.

T. R. Leader had several of his jumpers on South Fields, and, after giving Espoir IV., Delighted II., Mountain Leopard, Bridger, Guy Mannering, Doreen Jane, Chalice, and Cornkiss a steady seven furlongs spin, he took the clothing off Cluny II., Miss Beech, and Irish and sent them one mile and a half at a striding pace, and all three moved well.

The majority of the Newmarket horses who went to Derby on Tuesday morning and returned owing to the day's racing being postponed will make the journey again in the morning.

TINKER (next best)

is already on the scene of action for the Doveridge Amateur Riders' Plate, and he should add to his Liverpool success by taking this event.

Junior Counsel, Sally Forth, Idlicote and are in good trim for the Breadsall Selling Plate, and the last-named is worthy of support each way.

April, if pulled out again for the Belper Selling Handicap, will run well, but I prefer the chance of Betty Grey, who has pleased in recent gallops. If reserved for this event, has only to do her best to win.

SALLY FORTH

Andrea will have to improve considerably on his Liverpool running to hold a winning chance in the Markeaton Plate, and I like better the chance of Typhonic. I consider that the chance of Sewin would be greatly enhanced if the distance were more than a mile. Aspiration, being so well at present, is bound to give a forward display, but my vote goes to TYPHONIC.

In her absence I shall fall back on Aspiration.

At the time of writing we have no runners for the Chesterfield Nursery. We shall supply the majority of the runners for the Rangemore Maiden Plate, and I shall look to to prove our best. Others under orders are Fairshaw, Marmion, Fogbound, Banquo, Four Ashes, Sweet Adare colt, Bright Spot, Dark Magic, Prandial, Inverblue, Kiev, Tudor Rose, and Spinning Wheel.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES

Most of our trainers gave their charges an easy morning, but a few of our horses, who are intended runners for the Naas Meeting on Saturday, were noticed in strong work.

BEHAN'S Grand Circle, Peace Conference, Ballyrobert, and Olinda were given a spell of walking and trotting exercise.

C. BRABAZON'S Delay and Ringsend came four furlongs at a nice half-speed; both youngsters were involved in a motor horse-box accident on Saturday morning last, but were uninjured. Delay must run prominently in the Baldoyle Plate at Naas.

COLLINS'S Doonbeg, engaged in the same event, Colin Star and Battlestown, with others of the Conyngham Lodge team, hack cantered and trotted in the vicinity of the home quarters.

J. DAWSON'S Jorto, Sherdoon, Double On and Shady Lane traversed seven furlongs steadily on the Little Curragh. Several nice yearlings, including a full-brother to the useful sprinter Vincent, have arrived at the Rathbride Manor stables, and more are expected in the near future.

PARKINSON'S High Tenor and Gahen galloped nine furlongs at a nice pace; Warford had a similar spin; Ardroe went five furlongs sharply, as did Maryland; the remainder had cantering exercise in batches over five and six furlongs.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Injured Jockey's Recovery

Fred Hunter, the jockey who was injured in the race at Derby on Wednesday, in which three horses fell, was able to be present at the races yesterday. He will not ride again, however, until to-morrow.

Explanation Accepted

Yesterday's Racing Calendar states that the Stewards enquired into the running of Castle Irwell in the Molyneux Steeplechase at the Liverpool Autumn Meeting compared with his running in the Cheltenham Handicap Steeplechase on November 2nd. After interviewing I. Anthony, the trainer, and D. Morgan, who rode the horse on both occasions, they accepted the explanation given.

Doncaster Stakes Remodelled

The Doncaster Stakes, which has hitherto been confined to three-year-olds and run on the last day of the Doncaster September Meeting over a distance of a mile and a half, will in future be for two-year-olds at a distance of six furlongs, and will be known as the Doncaster Produce Stakes. The races for 1935 and 1936 have already closed for yearlings and foals respectively, but the race for 1937 and onwards will be a Produce Sweepstakes, with 500 sovs. added, those mares covered by stallions serving at less than £100, £50 and £25 being entitled to certain allowances.

LONDON BETTING

WAGERING ON NOVEMBER HANDICAP

JEAN'S DREAM FAVOURITE

There was a very weak market at the Victoria Club, London, last night for the call over of the card on the Manchester November Handicap, and very little business resulted.

Jean's Dream, who won the race last year, and who finished second to Blank in the Derby Cup yesterday, opened favourite at £900 to £100 and £450 to £50, followed by £1,000 to £120 and £800 to £100, leaving 7 to 1 the best offer.

Jesmond Dene advanced from £1,000 to £80 and £1,000 to £90, 10 to 1 being the closing offer.

Irongrey and Free Fare were each backed to win a few hundreds at 100 to 7. Trifles only went on the others dealt with.

TRINITY'S GREAT WIN

FORWARD RUSHES UPSET CAMBRIDGE

DUBLIN .... 28 CAMBRIDGE ... 5

Compelled by injuries to place a weakened side in the field for their home match with Dublin University, Cambridge University suffered their second defeat in succession, the Irishmen scoring two placed goals, a penalty goal and five tries to a placed goal.

Cambridge turned out without Wooler, Jones, Fyfe and Leather. Dublin were without Early and Boyle. Dublin won the toss and Cambridge kicked off. The ground was in good condition, if a little soft. For the first quarter of an hour both sides attacked in turn, but the defences prevailed. Then Boyle was just shoved into touch at the corner, and from the throw in he got possession and forced his way over the line for a try, which was not converted. A rush by Cambridge, led by Murray and Page, brought play to the visitors' twenty-five, where Lord failed with a penalty. Immediately play swung to the other end and McCall wriggled over from a scrum. Barnes converted with a great kick from the touch-line.

On resuming, Cambridge pressed and Morley was nearly over twice. The Cambridge substitutes were playing well, but the quick breaking of the Dublin forwards kept their side on the offensive. A quick heel and fast passing saw Boyle hurl himself over for another try, which went unconverted. Then in-and-out passing ended with Martin running over near the posts, and Pratt converted. It was all Dublin now, and Barnes landed a penalty from just over half-way. Dublin came back and O'Driscoll cut through and threw a long pass to Boyle, who dived over for his third try. Then Barnes ran over from Parkes's pass. The International was playing a great game and ran from half-way to send Mullaney over for an unconverted try. Cambridge made a belated burst and Chandler kicked over Pratt's head, and after some loose play got the touch. Lord converted.

The Trinity forwards laid the foundation for the side's great victory. They were outscrummaged, but in the loose they were supreme, ball control in their rushes being a feature. Pratt played a perfect game, some of his pick ups being bewildering. Barnes showed all his old subtlety, and Boyle, on the wing, was literally a discovery. The halves were excellent. The Cambridge side did not stand up well to Trinity's devastating rushes. Lord and Murray were outstanding in the line-outs, and Morley and Chandler the most dangerous three-quarters. Kerr at full-back was sound, but was overshadowed by Pratt. Teams :—

WELSH CENTRE-HALF INJURED

Tom Griffiths, the Middlesbrough and Welsh international centre-half, is suffering from ankle injury, and will not be able to play for Wales against Scotland at Aberdeen next Wednesday.

MATCH AT CRUMLIN TO-MORROW

The match between St. James's Gate and Shamrock Rovers will be played at Crumlin to-morrow.

Princess Royal at Derby

The Princess Royal paid a visit to Derby Races yesterday, and had the pleasure of seeing her husband's colt, Blank, win the chief event, the Derby Cup. The three years old was a popular fancy at 11 to 2, and a rousing cheer went up as he flashed past the post a head in front of the Middleham candidate, Jean's Dream.

GREYHOUND SALES

PRICES RULE SMALL AT SHELBOURNE PARK

Messrs. R. J. Goff presented a catalogue of 114 lots for the first day of their final greyhound sales of the season yesterday at Shelbourne Park. The sales, preceded by trials on the track, attracted a large attendance, but bidding was not very brisk, and many of the lots sent up failed to change hands. Top price was 31 guineas, paid by Mr. McEllestrum for Earldom, a winner at Shelbourne Park. Coney Castle was bought by Mr. Hills for 30 guineas, and Brave Ryland, a son of Ryland R., was knocked down to Mr. Cash for 30 guineas. Colonel Meares, acting for a Glasgow syndicate, was a purchaser of many lots, his highest price being 18½ guineas for Desmond's Lurcher, a smart son of Cheerful Choice. Details :—

Swan of the Lee Beats Ammon Garb in Cork Decider

By Our Coursing Correspondent.

THE Cork Cup of 1934-5 will probably be known henceforth as the Porthos-Sparks meeting. Overnight I drew attention to the fact that of the last eight in the Cup four were by Mr. John Hoare's sire out of Mr. D. Kelleher's Sparks, and, incidentally, anticipated a victory for one of the quartette, preferring Top of Cork Road to Ammon Carb.

Neither, however, reached the end, the deciding course being fought out between the nomination of Mr. J. J. Fitzgerald, Swan of the Lee, and Mr P. Sheehan's nomination, Ammon Carb, and resulting in a merited—nay, a decisive—triumph of Swan of the Lee. Mr. Kelleher bred the last four and he owns the winner and runner-up.

Contrary to expectations, Going Cutlet, favourite for the stake on Wednesday, but who was apparently injured in his second course, was sent to the slips with Top of Cork Road, but he never stood the slightest chance of stopping the progress of his opponent after losing the turn by a length in one of the grandest buckles of the two days, Top of Cork Road being almost a one-sided winner. But in the next round Swan of the Lee sprung what was, perhaps, the surprise of the meeting by racing up a couple of lengths in front of Top of Cork Road and decisively outworking him, giving what was her smartest display so far.

AMMON CARB FAILS

Ammon Carb got through his two courses in convincing style, although he seemed to be tiring at the end of the spin with Conor Oge. So impressed were the critics with his pace that at one time 3 to 1 were offered about the chances of Swan of the Lee in the deciding course. The last-named quickly set her supporters at ease, as she took the lead from the slip, brought the hare round two lengths in front, and brilliantly finished off a short course by knocking the hare off her legs.

Swan of the Lee ran her courses exceptionally well, revealing excellent pace for a bitch, while she ran on all the time, and in every way justified the confidence of her nominator, who, by the way, named last season's runner-up, Grateful Lad.

The Kilnaglory—Ten of Diamonds litter also figured prominently, Kilnaglory Again and Kilnaglory Leader dividing the dog Trial Stakes. Mr. Duggan will thus be able to declare with either for the major event at Powerstown Park, but, perhaps, he will find the first-named is a bit the faster. Ocean Glory, running for Mr. Patrick O'Brien in the bitch Trial Stakes, had matters all her own way, her victory in the deciding course with Sergeant's Wife being about her most finished performance.

It was another excellent day's coursing, enjoyed under the most perfect conditions; and the officials, as usual, saw to it that the courses were run to time and that those who had to catch the evening mail did so in comfort.

HUNTING REPORTS

TIPPERARY HOUNDS

A FAST RUN

On Monday, the 12th inst., these hounds met at Ballingarry village, and proceeded to that famous covert, Grawnacole, which in Mr. Burke's time provided so many great runs into the County Kilkenny. This beautiful glen, with the surrounding country unsuitable for tillage and the many small fields fenced with nice banks, and with ditches at both sides, which serve to drain the land and provide a beautiful jumping country. Hounds were not long in covert when they disposed of a cub. Shortly afterwards a fox went away, and Mr. La Terriere had the full pack on his line with remarkable quickness. There followed the fastest 30 minutes that we can remember. It was with the greatest difficulty hounds were kept in view—sometimes they were two fields ahead—until they marked their fox to ground at Coolquil, after running their hardest through Ballykerrin, Rathroe, and, leaving Prout's and Wilford on their left, went over Mr. Brett's big fields through Coolquil, where they marked to ground not far from the old castle.

Unfortunately our Master, Mrs. Ellis, had a bad fall, getting held up in the iron of her saddle, and but for Miss Murdock, who stopped to assist her, it might have ended badly. Though early in the day, most horses had enough, and hounds went home.

QUEEN'S CO. HOUNDS

These hounds met at Durrow on Tuesday, 6th November. The first draw was Barnderry, which proved blank. We next tried Lalor's bog, where we found at once, and ran hard to Castlewood, where, after some woodland hunting, the fox got to ground. Mr. Murphy's covert at The Weir provided a fox, which ran through Hibbert's covert and over the high green hill (the "grand stand" of the point-to-point a few years back). He then swung right-handed to the Ballagh. On reaching the gorse he kept right-handed for a bit, then left-handed up the hill, and left again along the high ground behind Mr. Sullivan's house. Here he turned sharp to the left, and ran down through Mr. Moore's big gorse, where hounds did not let him dwell. Crossing the road, he went through Aharney and over Mr. Fitzpatrick's farm, then through Mr. Staunton's farm and by Mr. Paul Murphy's farm to Seskin, where we marked the fox to ground. Time—1 hour 10 minutes.

The meet on Tuesday, 13th, was Ballybrophy railway bridge, that nice covert of Mr. Kelly's, of Ballymeelish Park, being the first draw. In spite of the very wet night and morning, hounds were hardly in covert before they spoke. Breaking at the far end, he ran straight over the railway main line, and bearing slightly left he continued on, leaving Killishmeastua R.C. Church on the right, to the old covert at Rosmore. Still favouring the left, the fox ran by Castlegrogan and Mr. Southern's, over the hill at Grogan, and crossed the Rathdowney-Templemore road at Rathsaran Church. He then headed as if for Graiguenevallagh, but swung left into Harristown covert, where he got to ground, the earths being open, as it was out of our draw. This ended a good hunt of 1 hour 40 minutes. Followers were thrown out a good bit at the railway, as they had to go some way before reaching a bridge, which was a pity.

About forty years ago hounds often ran from Ballymeelish to Rosmore, and occasionally on to Harristown, but until now had not done so for very many seasons. Hounds hunted remarkably well, and were never touched from start to finish, though they ran through some close and difficult country with a lot of scattered gorse in it. It was a five-mile point, but very much more as hounds ran.

SCARTEEN HOUNDS ("THE BLACK AND TANS").

After being entertained by Captain T. J. Considine, hounds moved off from the opening meet at Derk and found a fox which immediately went away very fast to Newtown Elland. Here he turned back to Derk, and running through the demesne he touched Knockderk and bore left-handed to ground in Mr. English's shore by Ballyneety Creamery after forty minutes. There were at least three foxes being hunted in Knockderk, but hounds at length pushed one out, and he ran straight to Knockirue, where he was lost for ten minutes, but was eventually pushed out of some buildings. He ran half way back to Knockderk, and turning right-handed set his mask for Kilteely, where hounds ran into him short of the covert. Scent was good and this hunt of sixty minutes was all at racing speed.

On Friday, November 9th, we met at Monard Cross. A fox was found at Ballykisteen, but scent was bad, and after running a field or two the quarry returned to where he was found. A fox from Cullen broke at the top corner, bound as if for Derk, and was lost for some minutes, but, as he had laid up on a bank, he was fresh found, and he ran fast back into Cullen. Running through the covert, he went on to Ballinard, touching Ballinulty. Here wire held up the field for some time, but on getting connected with hounds again they were seen to be running towards Tipperary town. Crossing the Tipperary-Limerick railway line, they ran the railway for half a mile to Oola railway, where, while casting hounds, the Master had a fall and had the bad luck to break his arm, so the hounds were taken home. Up to this point it had been a fine hunt of an hour and twenty-five minutes.

On Monday, November 12th, Mr. J. J. Ryan was hunting the hounds owing to the accident to the Master. The meet was at Mooresfort, and hounds were continuously running for three hours around the demesne, but scent now became bad and no foxes could be accounted for. Hounds then drew Ballywire blank. Little else could be done with foxes in Glenefy owing to the atrocious weather that now set in. So ended a disappointing day.

DUHALLOW HOUNDS

Hounds met at Ballybeg Abbey on Saturday, 10th inst. They first drew Knockbarry, and this nice gorse covert held a brace of foxes. After a short while in covert a fox was halloed away into the teeth of a cold and biting wind. Heading towards Castleview he wheeled to the left, crossed the railway line, and coming more or less down wind was lost close to Pepper Hill. Having left a fox in covert we hacked back, and the huntsman decided to again draw Knockbarry. Finding again, away he went at the southern end, but was headed crossing Ballybeg Glen, and swung back into covert. Another ring followed over the same line, and after some covert hunting the fox was left for another day. A fox from the Cobbs provided a nice burst by Kilclusha, over the Mallow-Buttevant road, across the railway line, and to ground in Green's quarry.

From the Pendy's Cross meet on Tuesday, 13th, the first draw, Healy's brake, a small gorse covert, held a fox, which went away immediately, and crossing the stream towards Shanavoher, turned down the valley, and thence over the Dromahane-Beeing road. He ran at a fast pace over a nice line of country, crossed the Kilpadder road, and to ground behind the parish priest's house at Kilcoleman—a nice hunt of thirty minutes without a check. Aldworth, only a few fields away, was next drawn, and a fox broke towards Abbey's Well, but was headed after a few fields, and turning back into covert got to ground in a rabbit burrow. We then hacked back to Nursetown, and for a long time there was not a whimper in covert. Eventually a fox stole away over the stream, and was viewed by Whelan going through Clashmorgan bogs. He was hunted by the old covert, across the Pendy's Cross road and over the Clyda, pointing for Dromore. Here there was a rather long check, but hounds again picking up the line ran back to Healy's brake, and then in a left-handed ring to Nursetown. Most of the field now decided to go home, and the few that remained had a fast two miles spin to a sandpit near Leary's Glen. So ended a good day's sport.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Newcastle's Bid for Fokker Works

As a result of the initiative of the Lord Mayor of Newcastle (Councillor R. Stanley Dalgleish), Mr. Anthony Fokker, the Dutch aeroplane producer, may establish his new works at Newcastle. Following the disclosure of Mr. Fokker's plan to produce aeroplanes in England, Mr. Dalgleish telegraphed on Tuesday to Mr. Fokker drawing his attention to the suitability of Newcastle as a centre for aeroplane construction. On Wednesday he received a reply from Mr. Fokker asking if there were a suitable site on Tyneside which could be developed as an airport for a service between Britain and Sweden. The Lord Mayor replied that there was. Mr. Fokker stated that he was leaving for Amsterdam, but would return to-day. The Lord Mayor is sending details of the city's new aerodrome at Woolsington to Mr. Fokker.

United States Wholesale Commodity Price Level

The indices of wholesale prices of 784 commodities in the United States, as compiled by the Bureau of Labour Statistics, compare as under:—

Week ending.	Commodities.	Farm Products.
November 10, 1934	76.6	71.1
November 3, 1934	76.0	69.9
October 13, 1934	76.4	71.0
November 11, 1933	71.2	55.6

This is the first week since September 8—the peak for this year—to show an increase, the figures at that date being 77.8 and 74.3 respectively.

American Company Statements

The Texas Gulf Sulphur Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents. The Columbian Carbon Company reports for the third quarter a net income of 476,000—equal to 88 cents per share—compared with 292,000 dollars—54 cents—for the corresponding quarter of last year. The Columbia Gas Company for the third quarter announces a net income of 2,335 dollars, against 822,000 dollars for the same quarter last year.

Cordoba Central Railway

Referring to the possible acquisition of the Cordoba Central Railway by the Argentine Government at the meeting, the Chairman said:—From time to time there had been conversations, and even negotiations, but they had not come to any conclusion. Whether recent conversations are likely to be more fruitful it is impossible to say at present, but he promised that, if at any time any concrete proposals eventuated, the Board would take the earliest opportunity of putting them before the stockholders

Selling Gin to U.S.A.

The Distillers Company, Limited, Edinburgh, has issued the following official communiqué:—"As the parties have been unable to arrive at an agreement, the negotiations between the Distillers Company, Limited, and the National Distillers Products Corporation of Virginia have come to an end. The proposed agreement was that the Edinburgh Company should acquire 337,000 shares of no par value in the National Distillers Products Corporation, and that the latter should acquire 400,000 shares of no par value, representing a forty per cent. interest in the Edinburgh Company's recently formed corporation, the Distillers Company, Limited, of Delaware, U.S.A., which has been incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing and selling gin in the United States."

Marks and Spencer Scheme

An important scheme is proposed by Marks and Spence, the well-known bazaar and general store proprietors, which will involve a handsome bonus to existing shareholders. It is proposed to sub-divide each 10s. Ordinary into two 5s. shares, to create 2,200,000 new "A" shares and to offer one new "A" share at the price of £1 for each 5s. split share. The present "A" shares of 10s. each are quoted about 11⅞, say 5 15/16 for a 5s. share, the present quotation being little below the highest of the year, while it compares with the lowest of 8⅜. The 10s. Ordinary shares have fluctuated this year between 8 7/16 and 12 1/16, and are at present quoted 12 1/16, having risen sharply yesterday in anticipation of some important announcement by the board. The usual interim dividend of 10 per cent. is declared, and last year this was followed by a "final" of 25 per cent., making 35 per cent. for the year, plus a capital bonus of 12½ per cent. distributed in "A" Ordinary shares, which involved the capitalisation of £120,788, part of the general reserve. Presumably the new capital is required to finance extensions of this progressive business.

Central Argentine Railway

The directors of Central Argentine Railway, Ltd., announce that owing to pressure of business Mr. Walter K. Whigham has reluctantly been compelled to resign the chairmanship of the company; but retains his seat on the Board, and Mr. W. Howard-Williams has been elected Chairman in his stead.

Vancouver Brewers

With reference to statements appearing in American and other newspapers regarding the proceedings against the Brewers' and Distillers' of Vancouver, and its subsidiary companies, instituted at the instance of the United States of America, the company announces that counsel's opinion has been obtained that judgment in the United States Courts based on a claim for statutory revenues or penalties cannot be successfully pursued in an action in another country, so that were the company unsuccessful in its defence, any resulting judgment would not be recoverable in Canada. Properties valued at less than $200,000 are in jeoparty, and the American advisers are still of the opinion that the result will be in the company's favour.

East Rand Consolidated

East Rand Consolidated announces that the following are the terms on which it will float the first subsidiary—Spaarwater Gold Mining Co., Ltd.—at the earliest possible date, which is expected to be the first week in December, provided all legal and technical formalities in connection with the incorporation of the new company are completed. The authorised capital of the Spaarwater Company will be £2,000,000 in 8,000,000 shares of 5s. each. 2,000,000 shares will be allocated in respect of the vendor's consideration. All the necessary financial arrangements have been completed to provide initial working capital to the extent of £1,200,000. Shareholders of East Rand Consolidated will be offered 400,000 shares of 5s. each and 800,000 shares at 7s. 6d. each, with options over 1,200,000 shares at 10s. per share for two years. East Rand Consolidated shareholders will thus receive a participation equivalent in total to two Spaarwater shares for every five shares of East Rand Consolidated. Guarantors of the issue will subscribe firm for 1,600,000 shares at 10s. per share, and receive options for two years on 2,000,000 shares at 10s. per share. Arrangements for a second subsidiary are in progress.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL SALES

Prices for good fleece wool and skirtings were again in buyers' favour at the closing wool sale yesterday of the series at Sydney. Other kinds of wool, however, were firm in price. Out of the 11,229 bales offered, which formed a good selection 9,254 were sold. Private sales consisted of 2,340 bales.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

STOCKS CLOSE FIRM

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

The constructive character of the day's news from Washington and industrial sources was the factor responsible for a cheerful recovery on the Stock Exchange to-day. The advance was affected to some extent by subsequent realising, but gains extending to $2 were retained in some sections at the close. Sales were higher at 1,540,000 shares.

The opening was firm; while Utilities and Rails lagged during the morning the remainder of the market rallied briskly, gains of fractions to 2 points being recorded in the first hour. Some cautious profit-taking then halted the upward movement.

Several stocks reached new high levels for the year, when a long list of issues rose anything to 2 points in the afternoon. The fresh commitments which were made were of a somewhat selective nature. At the same time, the fact that activity expanded on the advance was regarded as being highly encouraging. Steel, Rubber, Tobacco and "wet" stocks responded to the reports of improving business Prices finished below the day's best levels as a result of further realising—notably in Mining shares—but the market closed firm.

The pro-inflation element did not greatly enthuse over Mr. Roosevelt's speech to the National Conference on economic security, but the address was interpreted by most financial quarters as being evidence that the Government and the business world are "getting together" in the war on the depression.

There was no change to-day in the Federal Reserve Bank's re-discount rate. Call money remained at 1 per cent. and the outside rate was unchanged at ½ to ¼ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered at 3/16 per cent. bid and ⅛ per cent. asked for ninety-day bank bills, and ½ per cent. bid and ⅜ per cent. asked for six months' bills. Sterling exchange opened ⅛c. lower at 4.99⅛, but advanced to 4.99⅝ during the morning. The rate kept steady in the afternoon and closed unchanged, compared with the previous close at 4.99½. Silver was ⅜c. lower at 54¾c.

BANK OF ENGLAND RETURN

A moderate decline in the active note circulation is one of the principal features of the Bank of England return this week. The fall amounts to £911,351, and brings the total circulation down to £370,875,640, or no less than £9,769,809 higher than at the corresponding date in 1933. It is interesting to notice in this respect that the fall in the note circulation over the same week of last year amounted to £4,198,572. Since there have been no acquisitions to the Bank's gold holding during the week, the decline in the note circulation has led to a similar increase in the Bank's reserve of notes and coin, which now stands £903,836 higher at £73,762,698.

The largest changes in the return appear in the deposit items of the Banking department. Here public deposits have increased by £10,946,219 to £20,930,142, while bankers' balances were reduced by £9,288,791 to £97,876,448. This more than offsets the decline in public deposits and the corresponding increase in bankers' balances that took place last week. The wide fluctuations in these items are largely attributable to the incidence of Treasury bill payments and maturities.

Apart from a further decline in private deposits, there are few other material changes in the return. With the deposit items showing little net change on the week, the increase in the note circulation has raised the proportion of reserve to liabilities from 46.9 to 47.4 per cent. This compares with 51.7 per cent. at this time last year.

Week ending Wednesday, 14th November, 1934.

Financial News & Notes

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN STRONG

BRITISH FUNDS BUOYANT

The continued rise in British Funds was the strongest feature on Dublin Stock Market yesterday. Some of the rises were sensational, and the question now arises how long will these exceptional quotations hold. The yield on War Loan at 108⅞ is now almost as low as the most optimistic buyer could accept. The same holds good of Funding Loan at 121⅛. Yesterday Old Consols rose 2 points, War Loan 1⅞, Funding Loan 3¼, 5 per cent. Conversion 3¼, and 3 per cent. Land Stock 2 points.

Free State Funds were steady, and Land Bonds rose 2s. 6d. New Land Bonds were 10s. better.

The Banking section made a mixed showing. Bank stock was strong and rose 5 points, but Provincials fell 17s. 6d., and Hibernians 1s. 3d. Northern "A" rose a shilling, and others were unchanged.

Rails, Trams and Gas, all repeated last prices.

The jump in Bass's final dividend to 13 per cent. and a bonus of 2 per cent., making 20 per cent. for the year, against 15 per cent. last year, caused quite a flutter among Breweries. The price in Dublin rose 11s. over the London mean price of Wednesday night. Distillers rose 9d. and Guinness units were the same amount better in an active market. Bolands Ordinary rose 9d. and Ranks (Ireland) 3d. Goulding Ord. jumped 3s. 6d. to 95s., and J. G. Mooney Debs. were a point higher. The changes in Carroll issues were small, and Irish Shells and Sugar Prefs. were unchanged.

Under the lead of a rise of 2s. 6d. in B.A.T., and 2s. 9d. in Imperial Tobacco, the British Industrial section was quite brisk. Even Unilevers were both higher. Shells, on the passing of the interim dividend, were easier.

LONDON ACTIVE

STRONG GENERAL TONE

The London Stock markets had an active day yesterday, business in most sections being on a larger scale. Gilt-edged stocks resumed their upward movement, and though there were little fluctuations during the day, when profit-taking was in progress, the general trend was upward, and at the finish further substantial gains were registered. The European situation was regarded as much brighter, the political position in France and Belgium being better, and there was less uncertainty as to liquidation from Paris and Brussels, while Amsterdam advices were also more confident. The principal Industrial shares received attention on the satisfactory figures for British trade during October, Bass shares being a strong spot, and the Mining market also presented a cheerful front. Among British Government Stocks Old Consols and 4 p.c. Consols both finished ½ higher, Funding Loan put on ¾, and 5 p.c. Conversions and 2¾ p.c. Land Stock (1903) both spurted two whole points. There were many fractional gains, including a rise of ½ in Irish Free State Land Bonds. Indian Stocks were in demand, and finished ¼ to ¾ higher. The solitary decline among gilt-edged stocks was in Local Loans, which after the big advance recently were marked down to the extent of ⅜.

The foreign market was a cheerful appearance, all movements being in favour of holders, with the exception of Austrian 6 p.c., which were just a trifle easier.

British Rails were better than on the previous day, and several fractional gains occurred among the junior stocks, while London Passenger Transport Board Stocks were in strong demand, particularly the "C" Stock, which jumped a further three points. Foreign Rails were on the dull side, with San Paulo Ord. 2½ down. Mexicans shed small fractions, but Buenos Ayres and Western rose ½ on the information given by the chairman at the meeting on Wednesday regarding the earnings. "Can.-Pacs." lost the turn, but American Rails were a point better in places.

Mines were better, with signs of support from the Cape. Springs and Lace were prominent among Kaffirs, and South African Lands recovered. There were many good features among Industrials, Cables and Wireless being supported. Flour Milling Shares again met a good demand, and Guinness units were inquired for among Breweries, where an outstanding feature was an advance in Bass Shares on the satisfactory dividend, which was well up to the very highest expectations. Rubbers remained dull, and Oils were uninteresting.

THE MONEY MARKET

BILL RATES WEAK

The price of gold yesterday was fixed 1d. higher at 139s. 4½d. per ounce fine, but the premium was lower, being 8½d. in the case of the franc at 75 13/16 and 1½d. over the dollar at 4.99½. About £182,000 was disposed of in the market.

Silver was unchanged at 24⅜d. per ounce for spot and 24⅞d. for forward delivery.

Short loans were in small demand at ½ p.c., and bill rates were weak in tone, most houses quoting ⅜ p.c. for fine three months' paper. The "hot" Treasuries were wanted at ¼ p.c.

Comparatively quiet conditions again prevailed in the London foreign exchange market yesterday. With a more settled state of affairs on the Continent there was a tendency for the capital sent over to London during the period of uncertainty to flow back, and the trend of the principal exchange was consequently rather adverse to London.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

There was a fair demand for Home Industrials in the "Street" market, and several of the leading issues advanced further. Chemical Ord. improved 3d. to 37s. 3d., as did Dunlops to 49s. 9d. "Bats" gained 1/16 to 6 1/16, and Courtaulds finished 3d. higher at 49s. 3d. "Imps" were a shade harder at 139s. 3d., while Eno Ord. were mentioned around 12s. 4½d., and United Steels at 24s. 1½d.

In the American section Nickels were bid for at 23⅝, as were Tractions at 11⅛ and Canadas at 11⅞. Radios were fractionally better at 6 1/16, and Steels gained ⅛ to 35⅛. Fords rose 6d. to 39s. 7½d. American Celanese hardened to 6 1/16, and Woolworth were unchanged at 113s.

Among Mining issues East Rand Consols were bid for at 25s. 4½d., and West Rand Consols were dealt in around 29s. 7½d.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

BREWERIES FAVOURED

The interest in the Industrial market yesterday centred around the good-class dividend-paying home issues, and in some cases quite a satisfactory turnover was reported.

Breweries made the best showing under the lead of Bass Ratcliff, following the publication of the annual results, which were up to the best market expectations. The distribution for the year has been increased from 15 to 20 per cent., tax free. Tobaccos came next in order of merit to the accompaniment of favourable trading reports, with buyers still in evidence in the late dealings for "Bats" and "Imps."

The trans-Atlantic counters received moderate support, though there was not a great deal doing on this side.

Traffic index hopes brought in fresh buyers of Cable and Wireless stocks, noticeably the Pref., which closed 1½ to the good at 78½.

A generally firm tone was maintained in the Iron, Coal and Steel group. William Corys put on 2s. to 76s. on investment buying.

Among Motors, Fords recovered to 39s. 1½d. and Standards to 61s. 3d., but Humbers, on the other hand, gave way to 21s. The Dennis Brothers final dividend of 1s. per share was announced after the close of business.

Rolls-Royce were a feature among Aviation issues, gaining 1s. 6d.

Electric Supply issues came in for quiet support. Among the Equipment shares General Electrics were in some request up to 48s. 3d.

The good Bass annual results and increased distribution stimulated fresh interest in Breweries, and the shares chiefly concerned finished with an advance of 12s. 6d. at 117s. 6d. Bristol Georges rose to 145s., and satisfactory gains were recorded by Courage Ord., Ind Coope, Mitchells and Butlers, Charringtons, Fremlins, Hodgsons, Watney Defd., and Barclay Perkins. Buyers were also in evidence for Guinness, Taylor Walker, and Threlfalls.

The Alcohol section also came in for renewed attention under the lead of Distillers, which finished 1s. 6d. up at 95s.

A fresh demand sprang up for the leading Tobaccos. "Bats" went ahead to 6 1/16 and "Imps" to 139s. 3d., while Carreras "A," Gallahers, United South, and Tobacco Securities Trust Ord. and Defd. also received a fair amount of attention.

Among Drapery and Departmental shares, Marks and Spencers proved an active market. They closed 1/16 up on balance at 12, the interim dividend and new capital scheme being announced after official hours.

Textiles were a comparatively quiet market.

Among Rayon issues, Courtaulds attracted attention and finished 1s. 6d. up on the day at 49s. 3d.

Insurance descriptions came in for further investment support.

In the Miscellaneous section, Murex were well supported, and left off 1/16 to the good at 5 11/16. Imperial Chemicals came into prominence, and Beechams Prefd. were a better market at 33s. 6d. Dunlops were favoured, and Lever Bros. issues were again seen to advantage in the search for high-yielding Preferences.

OILS DULL

Dull and lifeless conditions returned to the Oil Share Market yesterday, with the result that quotations followed a downward course. Lack of interest, coupled with a small volume of Continental selling, caused dealers to quote lower prices at the opening, but at the close international counters rallied slightly under the influence of a firm start in New York.

In order to overcome the short supply of shares which was noticeable on Wednesday Preference issues were marked higher in the morning, but they gradually slipped back as support was not up to expectations. In most instances prices finished a trifle easier on the day.

RUBBERS LOWER

Rubber shares remained under a cloud, and prices showed a general decline in consequence of the absence of business and the easier tendency for the commodity, which changed hands down to 6¼d. for spot and 6½d. for April-June delivery. United Sua Betong lost 1s. 7½d., Tandjong 1s. 1½d., and Anglo-Dutch nearly a shilling. Rubber Trusts at 28s. 9d. showed a decline of 10½d., and there were many smaller losses, including 1½d. in Yam Seng, which finished at 2s. 9d.

MOTORS AND TEXTILES

BIRMINGHAM

Motors mainly steady. Fords rallied to 39/3; Rileys better, 66/1½. Raleighs 36/3 and Rovers 11/1½, both active. Enfields flat, 29/9. Humbers easier, 21/6.

LONDON MINING MARKET ACTIVE

KAFFIRS UP AGAIN

The improvement which set in in the Mining market on Wednesday made further headway yesterday. The liquidation which had been in progress for some days appeared to have run its course, and the revulsion of feeling was reflected in an increasing demand and a consequent further rise in prices.

Kaffirs were again well to the fore, the buying here being supplemented by further Johannesburg demand. There is no doubt that favourable anticipations regarding the coming half-yearly dividends were largely responsible for the change of sentiment, and, although dealings were mostly of a professional character, there was also a modest increase in public demand. After hours the terms of the much-discussed Spaarwater flotation were made known. Although the offer appears to be a reasonable one, it is complicated by the issue of a very long number of options, and everything depends upon the price at which dealings are likely to commence in the new issue, views in regard to which differed widely.

Such shares as Central Mining, Anglo-American and other finance issues were better, while the big producers continued to figure prominently in the forward movement, while East Rand Concessions—on the Spaarwater issue—Lace Props. and many of the newer concerns also appreciated, the declines recorded throughout the list being insignificant.

Firmness characterised the Rhodesian section and Cam and Motor in a wider appreciation of the position, as shown in the recent report, were well supported.

West Africans were harder, but best prices were not maintained to the close.

There was rather more business passing in Australians, and Wiluna were a strong feature. Closing prices:—

THE "IRISH TIMES"

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Irish Times, Limited, was held yesterday in the company's office, 31 Westmoreland street, Dublin, Sir John Arnott, Bart., in the chair.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report,

The Chairman, in proposing the adoption of the report and statement of the accounts for the year, said:—As the directors' report and statement of the accounts for the year ended 30th September, 1934, have been in your hands for the requisite period, I presume I may take them as read.

As you are all well aware, the newspaper industry in Dublin has passed through a very difficult time. For over two months our publications were suspended, owing to labour troubles, which occurred during a period that is generally regarded as "Dublin's season." I need hardly mention the very many inconveniences which were caused to the public generally and the financial losses incurred by the publishers. However, in the terms of the settlement of the prolonged dispute, a conciliation board has been set up for the industry, under the chairmanship of Mr. O'Sullivan, of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce.

Knowing, as most of you do, the marked success which has attended the establishment of such boards, both here and across the Channel, we are naturally very hopeful that a recurrence of the incidents which were associated with the dispute will not again interfere with the happy relations that have heretofore existed with our employés, and which mean so much for the success of any industry, as well as for the welfare of those concerned in its activities.

From an advertising point of view, I cannot say truthfully that trading conditions in this country showed very much improvement on those of the preceding year. Uncertainty, of one kind or other, appears responsible, as it invariably does, for that stagnation of trade or industry of which advertising is a true reflection.

I cannot omit to mention regretfully the loss we have sustained by the lamented death of Mr. J. E. Healy, who was the editor of the Irish Times for over a quarter of a century. He was a man of exceptional ability, whose editorial writings were always indicative of his sterling qualities of heart and mind.

For reasons I explained to you at our last annual meeting, your directors decided again this year to postpone the payments of the interim dividends for the half-year to 31st March last, until the accounts for the financial year had been completed, and they are now before you. If you turn to them, you will see that, after the payment of salaries, wages, management expenses and providing for bad and doubtful debts, and including £15,000 transferred from our general reserve account, we have £22,571 11s. 4d. to the credit of profit and loss account. From this sum has to be deducted £3,232 12s. 7d. for income tax and £2,081 written off for depreciation on premises, plant, machinery, etc. And adding the amount brought forward from last account there remains the sum of £18,500 19s. 9d. This amount we propose should be allocated as follows:—

To pay dividends on the Preference and Second Preference shares for the year ended 30th September, 1934, at the rates of 5½ per cent. and 6½ per cent., respectively (less income tax), leaving a balance of £1,764 2s. 3d. to be carried to next account.

You will see that our three reserve funds stand at £44,370 0s. 2d. Our investments, at cost, are £54,384 0s. 2d., or £49,096 4s. at their market value on the 30th September.

I think I have dealt with the chief features in the accounts before you, and now propose: "That the report and accounts, as set forth in the balance sheet, be adopted."

Mr. J. J. Simington seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

It was resolved:—That the dividends be paid on the Preference shares and the Second Preference shares for the year ended 30th September, 1934, of 5½ per cent. and 6½ per cent., respectively (less income tax).

The directors retiring by rotation, Captain L. J. Arnott and Mr. J. J. Simington, were re-elected unanimously.

The auditors, Messrs. Stokes Bros. and Pim, were re-appointed for the ensuing year.

MINING REPORT

Wiluna Gold.—During October there was treated 43,222 tons of ore, yielding bullion estimated to contain 10,460 fine ounces of gold, the value of which at 139s. 6d. per fine ounce is £72,958, equal to £90,651 Australian currency. The working surplus for the month is estimated at £49,512 (Australian). Expenditure on construction and equipment was £4,405. Gold recovered includes approximately 263 fine ounces from the retreatment of 2,335 tons of cyanide residues.

COMPANY MEETING.

TRINIDAD LEASEHOLDS, LTD.

A PLEA FOR PREFERENCE

The twenty-first ordinary general meeting of Trinidad Leaseholds, Ltd., was held yesterday at Winchester House, London, E.C.

Mr. A. W. Rogers (the Chairman) said that, although the volume of sales for the year was 87,638 tons in excess of the previous year, oil profits and other revenue showed a reduction. The unappropriated balance was £172,835, and the directors proposed to pay a final dividend of 7½ per cent., less tax. Sales of Regent petrols in the United Kingdom had increased considerably, and the company's distribution area now covered a large portion of the southern half of the kingdom. Some months ago the Trinidad Legislative Council had unanimously passed a resolution urging the home Government to grant a preference to Empire-produced oil products, and recently a deputation had visited England to lay the Council's views in support of the resolution before the Secretary of State for the Colonies. It was to be hoped that that resolution and views of the representatives would receive the sympathetic consideration of His Majesty's Government.

IMPERIAL CONSIDERATIONS.

In view of the highly competitive nature of the business it was befitting that some measure of preference should be granted to the island's petroleum products marketed in Great Britain. There were various districts in Trinidad where it was difficult to work the oil profitably. Assistance in the form of a preference could be expected to stimulate the development of such areas, and also the search for oil in other places where there was evidence of its probable existence. Much of the colony's petroleum was won from Crown lands, and producers, under their leases, were governed by certain conditions imposed by imperial considerations. That was as it should be, but it also brought into prominence the advantage to the Empire of the production of oil in a British Colony, and provided more than ordinary reason and justification for some help being given by Great Britain.

The Canadian Government had amended its regulations governing the import duty on "crude oil not in its natural state" when imported for refining in Canada. That product was now admitted free of duty if produced in and imported from a British Dominion or Colony, and was thereby placed on the same footing as natural crude oil, which was admitted into Canada free of duty irrespective of its country of origin. It was hoped that that concession by the Canadian Government would stimulate the trade between that Dominion and the Colony of Trinidad, at present the only British territory which, by reason of its geographical situation, was able to avail itself of that concession.

THE OUTLOOK.

It was greatly to be hoped that the efforts which the American Government had been making to control the output of crude oil and refined products in the United States would ultimately prove successful. Until effective stabilisation of output in relation to demand had been achieved there was little hope for any real or permanent improvement in selling prices. In the continued unsatisfactory conditions in which the oil industry was involved it was difficult to make forecasts as to the future. He could, however, state that their company was now in a better position than ever before to benefit by improved prices. Consequent on the economic stringency of recent years lower levels of working costs had been reached and standards achieved which formerly might have been considered unattainable.

The volume of business being done was very gratifying, and the only requisite for obtaining better profits was a more adequate realisation for the various oil products which they manufactured. Results for the current year to date could be considered as satisfactory under the existing circumstances.

The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. F. R. Phillips, M.C., and carried unanimously.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Goulding (W. and H. M.).—3/- per share on Ordinary shares. (Same.)

Bass, Ratcliff and Gretton.—Final dividend of 13 per cent., tax free, making with the interim payment 18 per cent. for the year. In addition, a bonus of 2 per cent. is proposed (making 20 per cent.). This is against a final dividend of 11 per cent., which made 15 per cent. for the former period. There has been no bonus distribution by this company previously since 1928. The preliminary statement discloses a profit, before charging interest on Debenture stock, of £759,652, which compares with £673,697 for 1933. A sum of £570,076 remains to go forward, compared with £526,291 brought in.

Bukit Kajang Rubber.—Profit £8,028, add £313 brought forward, making £8,341. Dividend 4 per cent. for year (nil); forward £1,341. (Last dividend 5 per cent. for 1928-29.)

Bank of New Zealand (London).—Interim dividend of 1/- per share (New Zealand currency) on the Ordinary shares.

Blackpool South Shore Pier and Pavilion.—Net trading profit for year £4,734, against £5,633; Ordinary dividend 5 per cent. (same); to reserve £1,000 (same); forward £954, against £1,312.

Burmah Corporation.—An improvement of £19,940 in profits for the year to June 30, 1934, is shown at £332,776, due to the moderate advance in prices realised upon metal sales during the period. The directors point out that the higher level of prices at which the year opened was not maintained. An interim dividend of 2½ annas, free of British and Indian tax, was paid in April, and a final dividend of a similar amount was paid in October, equal to 3⅛ per cent., comparing with a total of 5½ annas, or 3 7/16 per cent. The sum of £30,000 was transferred from reserve, and £175,655 is carried forward, against £225,478, both subject to dividends paid since the close of the account.

Coats.—Messrs. J. and P. Coats announced yesterday that dividends of 3 per cent on two classes of Preference stock, and 6d. (quarterly) per £1 of Ordinary stock, both less income tax, will be paid on December 31. (Same.)

C.L.R.P. Investment Trust.—Payment on 5 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares, less tax.

Clover Paint and Composition Co.—Half-year's Pref. dividend on the 7½ per cent. Cum. Part. Pref. shares.

Daily Mail Trust.—Final dividend of 1/6 per share, free of income tax, on the issued Ordinary shares of the company in respect of the year ended September 30, 1934. An interim dividend of 6d. per share, tax free, has already been paid. In addition, a bonus of 3d. per share, free of tax, has been declared on the issued Ordinary shares, making in all 2/3 per share (or 11¼ per cent.), tax free. Last year a dividend of 2/- per share (10 per cent.), tax free, was paid.

Dennis Brothers.—Final dividend of 1/- per share, less tax, making a total of 1/4 per share for year. Last year interim dividend was 4d. per share, and final 8d. per share, making 1/- for year.

Grand Hotel, Eastbourne.—Dividend for year of 9 per cent (or 9/- per share), less tax. This compares with 7½ per cent., less tax, paid last year.

Hugh Baird and Sons.—Profit £5,286, leaving £2,961, after Preference dividend, to be carried forward.

International Harvester.—Regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents.

Joseph Nathan and Co.—Profit £55,230, compared with £39,521 last year. The report and accounts will be issued prior to the annual meeting in March, at which the directors will recommend payment of one year's dividend on the 8 per cent. Preferred Ordinary shares.

Kamunting Tin Dredging.—Final dividend of 12 per cent., less tax, for the year, making a total of 20 per cent. for the year.

London Brick Co. and Forders.—Third interim dividend of 5 per cent. actual, less tax, on Ordinary stock, making 15 per cent. actual to date, in respect of year ending 31st December, 1934.

Melbourne Electric Supply Co.—Final, tax free, dividend on the Consolidated Ordinary stock of 3¼ per cent. (actual), making 6¼ per cent., tax free, for year. (Same.)

Marks and Spencer.—Interim dividend of 10 per cent., less tax (same as last year), upon the existing Ordinary and "A" Ordinary shares.

New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Co.—Dividend on the 5 per cent. Cumulative Preference stock for year to 30th June, 1931, less tax.

Panginga River Tin Concessions.—Final dividend of 9½ per cent., less tax, for the year, making a total of 16 per cent. for year.

Power Gas Corporation.—Payment of 4 per cent., less tax, for year. (Same.)

Rubber Regenerating.—The report for the nine months to September 30, 1934, shows that net profit was £6,662 after providing for depreciation. For the previous twelve months, after provision was made for depreciation of £13,215, there was a loss of £1,925. After allowing for the dividend of £26,566 paid on August 31, 1934; writing £11,817 off patent applications and improvements, and £2,402 off extraordinary expenses and conversion of the company into a public company, and also £1,005 off construction at Trafford Park, £1,230 remains to be carried forward.

Steaua Romana.—Final dividend of 2 per cent., less tax, on Ordinary. (Same.)

Transvaal and Delagoa Bay Investment Co.—Final dividend for the year of 4/6 per share, free of Union of South Africa ordinary tax. Total distribution for year is 6/- per share. (Same.)

Tenom Rubber.—The directors' report and statement of accounts for the year to July 31, 1934, which will be issued on Monday, November 19, show a profit for the year of £6,325 (against a loss of £1,714 in the previous year). Deducting from this the balance at debit at the close of last year—namely, £2,066—there is a balance at credit of £4,259, which the directors recommend be appropriated as follows:—In writing off preliminary expenses, £2,694; in placing to manuring reserve, £1,000; leaving to be carried forward, subject to manager's bonus, etc., £565. Though no dividend is recommended for the year to July 31, 1934, the directors have declared an interim dividend of ½d. per share (actual), less tax, for the current year, warrants for which will be posted on the day of the meeting, November 28, 1934.

Unilever Interim Dividends.—The boards of Unilever, Ltd., and Unilever (N.V.) yesterday declared interim dividends, payable on 1st December, on their respective Ordinary capital, which, in the case of the Dutch Company, is Fl. 20 on every share of Fl. 1,000. In accordance with the previous practice, £1 of stock of the English company has been taken as equal to Fl. 12, so that the equivalent dividend on each £1 stock of the English company is the sterling value of 24 Dutch cents. Converted at the rate of exchange on the day of declaration, this is equal to 7.8d. per £1 stock, or 3¼ per cent. (as compared with 7.2d. per share or 3 per cent. dividend of Dutch company).

BELFAST COLLEGE PRINCIPALSHIP

MR. HARRIS AGAIN SELECTED

BELFAST, Thursday.

The Belfast Education Committee to-day decided to recommend the appointment of Mr. John Harris, M.Sc., as Principal of the Municipal College of Technology, in succession to the late Professor John Earls, B.A. There was a full attendance of the Committee, all the twenty-six members being present.

It will be recalled that the Technical Sub-Committee recommended the appointment of Mr. Harris, and after this was announced the Ministry of Education requested the Education Committee to appoint a Principal with high engineering qualifications. The Education Committee, however, declined to re-advertise the position, but requested the Technical Sub-Committee to send forward three names for consideration. This Committee then sent forward the names of Mr. John Harris, Belfast; Principal of the Government Technical School, Jamaica; Professor Lloyd Dodd, Head of the Department of Commerce of the Municipal College of Technology, Belfast; and Mr. Henry J. Macready, Principal of the Municipal Technical School, Londonderry.

In the final vote at the Committee to-day, Mr. Harris got 14 votes and Professor Lloyd Dodd 12.

A sudden strike of the 1,000 miners employed at the Albion Colliery, Cilfynydd, Pontypridd, took place yesterday afternoon. It is alleged by the management that after some men were dismissed for filling dirty coal the remainder of the miners employed struck in sympathy with them.

In the 121 county boroughs and great towns of England and Wales the births registered in the week ended November 10 numbered 5,889, corresponding to an annual rate of 14.7 per 1,000 living. The deaths numbered 4,623, a rate of 11.6.

DUBLIN STREET SCENES

MATTER RAISED IN THE DAIL

On the motion for the adjournment of the Dail last night, Mr. Mulcahy (U.I., Dublin, N.) raised the matter of incidents on the streets of Dublin on October 20 and 21 when a collection was being made in connection with the United Ireland Party. He said that he raised that matter to give the Minister an opportunity of making it clear what he was going to do to prevent a continuance of such types of disorder. There was an incitement issued to disorder on this occasion, and that incitement was distributed in leaflet form, but the Guards did not take action to prevent any disorder on Sunday, October 21, or to deal with the persons who carried on the disorder.

Nine men and ten women were injured fairly severely, and subsequently the headquarters of the United Ireland Party organisation in Parnell square were attacked. It was the fourth attack, and windows in the building were broken by stone-throwing.

They wanted to know if the Ministry were going to allow a group of persons known to the police to issue inflamatory pamphlets and to organise persons to carry out acts of violence.

MINISTER'S REPLY

Mr. Ruttledge, Minister for Justice, replying, said that his information from the police was that there was nothing in the nature of an organised attack; the incidents were isolated, and nobody was seriously injured. From the information he had received, it was not true to say that there was no protection afforded in O'Connell street.

"I have no hesitation," said the Minister, "in stating that, so far as it lies in my power, we are going to give all protection necessary to people in doing what they are legally entitled to do."

Continuing, the Minister said that the only other matter was the statement he had made earlier—that the Government did not think any useful purpose would be served by prosecuting those people who attacked the flag-sellers. For months back they had been hearing and seeing inciting statements made on the deputy's own side.

DUBLIN CITY IMPROVEMENTS

PORT AND DOCKS BOARD'S GESTURE

The proposal to continue Amiens street through Beresford place with a short branch artery east of the Customs House again came before the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday.

Mr. T. F. Laurie, Chairman of the Board, submitted proposals from the sub-committee regarding the handing over to the Corporation of the old tobacco stores. He suggested that the Corporation should refund to the Board £2,241 odd, the amount paid to the Corporation for reversionary rights and legal expenses. The Board in their turn to assign to the Corporation the beneficial interest from the property assigned to the Board of Works at the east end of the Customs House. The Board of Works, he stated, had agreed to pay a rent of £159 12s. 8d. per annum for this ground.

"It was the intention of this Board to erect a tobacco warehouse on the suggested site to be surrendered, but as a civic gesture we propose to utilise an alternative site, at a considerable additional capital outlay," said Mr. Laurie. Continuing, he said that the Board desired to make it clear to the Corporation that they were subordinating their own needs at onsiderable financial cost.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.) said that he thought this a fine gesture by the Board. The improvements suggested would be valuable, and it was to be hoped that the work go ahead quickly. He did not think the Corporation would get such a chance again. He hoped that the Corporation would build a small block of flats on one spot in the area.

It was agreed, after some discussion, to take up the matter with the Corporation, the report of the chairman to come up at the next meeting of the Board.

FUNERAL OF MR. FRANK KERLIN

The funeral of the late Mr. Frank Kerlin, ex-T.D., and formerly of C Company, Third Battalion, Dublin Brigade, I.R.A., took place after Mass in University Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, to Glasnevin Cemetery, yesterday morning.

The coffin was draped with the Tricolour, and a firing party of twelve of Mr. Kerlin's comrades, under Mr. O. Traynor, T.D., discharged three volleys over the grave.

The chief mourners were:—Misses Bridie and Theresa Kerlin (sisters), Mr. Gerard and Mr. Michael Kerlin (brothers).

Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. Flavin, C.C., and the clergy present included:—The Rev. T. Barry, C.C. (who officiated at the graveside); Rev. L. McCann, C.C.; Rev. J. Banks, S.J.; Rev. M. Murphy, C.C.; Rev. P. Devlin, C.C.; Rev. M. Troy, C.C., and Rev. Father Senan, O.M.

An incident in which a woman was said to have smacked the face of the Hon. George Egerton, uncle of the Earl of Wilton, was described at Ipswich yesterday, when Mrs. Elsie Hollond, of Benhall, Suffolk, was fined £30 on a charge of being in charge of a motor car while under the influence of drink. Her licence was ordered to be suspended for twelve months. She pleaded not guilty, and her solicitor gave notice of appeal.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Clothes for Hunting, Hacking and Shooting

PITFALLS FOR THE UNVERSED

THE purchase of hunting, shooting, race-going or golf clothes is a pious and learned art where your natural flair for elegance will stand you in no stead at all, says an article in Vogue. With hunting clothes, for instance, so deep are the pitfalls down which the unversed may tumble that it is surprising how any girl not born with a silver bit in her mouth can screw up courage enough to take the field.

But once you have acquired the technique of being "well-turned-out" and are confident that the most carping critic cannot pick holes in your habit, the dangers of the hunting field are halved.

The first thing to do is to choose your habit, and for this you are recommended to put yourself into competent and sympathetic hands. Presuming you intend to ride side-saddle you will need a habit coat and skirt of dark blue or black whipcord, or habit cloth; both of these wear equally well, but the latter has a smoother surface.

THE COAT

Your coat will be single-breasted, fastening with one button—or two if it suits your figure better—and cut away in front. It will have diagonal pockets and two slits at the back (you may have one slit if you choose, but two are considered smarter).

With this you will wear white, fawn, or lemon breeches of cavalry-twill specially designed for side-saddle wear. (If you wish to economise and wear the same pair of breeches for hacking, have them made for astride riding and risk stretching the knees on your side-saddle; you can have "dual-purpose" breeches, but these are not recommended as they never look really smart when worn without a skirt.)

Don't forget that your breeches must have buttons inside the knee and not laces outside, or you will look like a Balkan cavalry officer.

For hunting astride, Vogue continues, your coat will be cut like a man's, single-breasted, with rounded corners and welt pockets, two slits at the back, and cut about an inch longer than a side-saddle coat. Here, again, your breeches will be in light-coloured or white twill.

BOOTS

Your boots are black calf (and not that gleaming patent leather beloved of certain of our male novelists, whose knowledge of Diana is more legendary than personal).

Hunting side-saddle, wear a bowler or top hat (according to the length of your horse's tail). The smartest bowlers have a rough surface and a narrow brim.

In choosing a coat to wear hacking you may give your fancy a somewhat freer rein. Plain brown or checked tweeds are the smartest.

Don't order jodhpurs unless you are certain your legs are your best point (this question will soon be settled for you by the tailors!).

Cashmere jersey shirts, fastening warmly over the chest and having a neck-band to hold your stock, must be the answer to any hunting woman's prayer. Over this goes a soft chamois waistcoat, or, if you are a cold-blooded person, a heavier waistcoat in pigskin, which for warmth zips high over the chest.

A DICKEY

Since pigskin will bend even the most determined pin, and you must anchor the ends of your stock to something, over the waistcoat again goes a neatly tailored linen dickey.

Gloves of white or brown skin for hunting have macramé reinforcements at vital points to prevent the bridle slipping if it rains. They are also made in chamois for hacking.

There are three kinds of women who go to shooting parties; the woman who really shoots, the devoted wife or girl-friend who trails round with the guns, and the girl asked because she is a good bridge player, who, as she is too exhausted to rise from her bed until the guns return, does not enter into this article.

If the girl who really shoots is a good shot she may wear what she likes and get away with it, and if she isn't, the other guns will be so terrified of her that they won't care what she's wearing.

SPOILING THE AIM

The person who really needs advice is the onlooker. For if, as you stand by him in the butts, your young man shoots shamefully, it is the fault of that red velvet scarf with which you enlivene the sobriety of your mouse-coloured tweeds.

His own waistcoat of screaming yellow leaves the birds unmoved; they expect that sort of thing, but a lot of dam' garish women in the butts simply terrifies them (though you'd think that their capacity for fright had already been exhausted by the racket of sticks and the beaters' cat-calls echoing through the empty woods).

If your visit is to be a success you will need, therefore, a very carefully selected tweed suit, two or three jerseys, a pair of Newmarket boots and some fleece-lined gloves.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Popularity of the New Exercise Schools

(By Mary Barry)

THE woman of to-day has so many different occupations, and there are so many calls even on her spare time, that she may be forgiven when she exclaims: "Exercise! I get plenty of that from morn 'till night."

Nevertheless, it is just the busiest woman who will derive full benefit from the regular practice of health exercises. Not the vigorously powerful type that built up most unfeminine and unbeauteous muscle, but a series of specially designed movements of tension and relaxation.

A Lystalite green fur felt hat, with a fascinating and simple line.

Dublin, at the moment, is in the throes of an epidemic of health culture. Pessimists and the lazy ones say it is merely a fad, but even if their prediction is correct, this "fad" will leave hundreds of healthier and hardier women in its wake. So good luck to those establishments in the city and suburbs which have arranged classes at all hours of the afternoon and evening to suit the convenience of the idle rich or the busy poor.

The fees are negligible and the results abundantly beneficial.

CHEAP UNIFORMS

Most teachers require their pupils to wear a uniform which can be bought for a few shillings, or made at home for even less. It is, of course, quite out of the question to do health exercises in ordinary clothes.

The ideal time for these classes is not less than one hour after meals. They should be followed as soon as possible by a hot bath, in which tired limbs can be plentifully massaged with soapy bristles or loofah.

This hot immersion is specially recommended in the early and most enthusiastic from friend to friend, saying: "Oh, my dear, you simply must join!"

THE FIGURE MATTERS

One constantly reads and hears that it is the under-garments that make or mar the appearance of a gown. Most women will agree with the utter truth of that statement.

However, since I have watched the exercises at some of these classes—where spectators seem always quite welcome—I have myself decided that the smart appearance of the most perfectly cut frock depends even more entirely on the "fitness" of the person underneath it all.

The same exercises, designed to beautify the body, bring in their swing a happy glow of enviable health even to the plainest face. No intelligent woman is likely to ignore this fact, and so the health culture classes get more and more crowded day by day.

Another Lystalite model, trimmed with beaver fur, and with two fur balls at the top.

days, before muscles become accustomed to their new positions; otherwise "growing" pains may be somewhat troublesome.

For home practice of exercises the best time is before breakfast and at bedtime. It is healthy, as well as comfortable, to begin and to end the cold winter days in a glow of heat.

UNBECOMING POSTURES

A tired body readily and quite excusably falls into postures which are in appearance unbecoming and to health most injurious. These unbalanced attitudes are not only ageing, but also they interfere disastrously with the soignée appearance that is the ideal of most women.

The dangerous part of this lack of poise lies in the fact that usually the "victim" is blissfully unconscious of her faulty carriage. The remedy to hand is to join without delay one of these "beauty" classes, and find out for yourself how your movements compare with those of others.

The first fifteen minutes will probably give one of a series of shocks, and then you will find yourself, all enthusiastic, dashing

FASHION NOTES FROM PARIS

Matching Dress and Make-up

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

"MATCH your dress with your make-up." That is the motto for the new season. And you blend the colours of your ensembles with your cosmetics. I have seen demonstrations of this, and the effect is extraordinarily good.

With the right make-up you can wear any shade you like, even the colours you have always secretly liked, but which did not suit you. But, I warn you, you will need the touch of an artist to be successful.

The only way to solve the problem, of course, is to take a thorough course of lessons in the art of portrait painting—for it is nothing less—and you can achieve a new chef-d'œuvre twice a day.

But to succeed in anything requires patience, and if you give a half-an-hour—no less—to your task of making-up you will have taken an important step towards beauty, even though it may be less than skin deep.

Life is really becoming so complicated! Not so long ago we all wore the same shade of rouge, the same shade of lipstick, and the same shade of powder for morning and evening. Then the beauty specialists in no uncertain words told us just what our daytime make-up looked like in artificial light, and vice-versa, and we shuddered and hurriedly bought the right ones.

GOOD LINES, GOOD TASTE

The true Parisienne tendency for good line, and every detail in exceptionally good taste, runs through the new dresses. Youthful simplicity and a variety of new ideas, none of which is extravagant, seem to characterise every model.

Lines are straight, though for evening gowns the fullness is generally concentrated in the back, and often tends to develop into a train. Many skirts are slit in one or more places, to enable them to retain a perfect line without any pull when the wearer moves.

There is a dignity, yet a youthful touch, to every dress. Flowing lines help to accentuate the silhouette, and the cowl backs to many capes and dresses, some of which are thrown back like hoods, often stand out stiffly from the neck, while others are caught in several loops.

Intricate handwork and neat embroidery sometimes adorn the hems of skirts, necklines, jabots and sleeves. Scalloped, petalled and other decorative lines appear on the hems of afternoon dresses.

Several of the new dresses have plastron effects. Blouses to go with costumes are carefully studied. Taffetas, organdy and embroidered muslins, very elaborately stiffened and shaped, are seen.

KNITTED DRESSES

Knitted dresses, three-piece as well as two-piece ensembles, are no longer the weird, rather bunchy things they used to be. Skirts are marvels of simplicity, fitting smoothly and snugly, and fashioned so that they can be reversed from front to back to allay any suspicion on your part that they tend to bulge after a few weeks of wear.

Tops are ingeniously designed in lacy effects, so that they look like interesting new blouses instead of the severe sweater-like affairs they used to be.

The new stitch inventors have been busily occupied developing different ideas about the "knits" you will wear and buy. They have done some audaciously distinctive tricks with the new stuffs—delightfully dizzy stripes, some wonderful plaids, and some new colours that will positively make a brilliant success as the season advances.

A double duty knit dress is interesting. With a ruffled jabot that cascades down the centre of the chest, it assumes a dress-up appearance, soft and flattering. Without the jabot it becomes a smart tailored affair for sports wear.

Other enterprising knitters have used anything and everything they could find for yarn or thread. For instance, there is a linen thread which makes into charming dresses. There is a Scotch, with criss-cross colour stripings, that achieve a hearty plaid. It is the gayest, smartest, new knit you can possibly see.

PANCAKE HATS

The new hats will be responsible for the change in hair-dressing. Long hair is coming back. Nearly as flat as pancakes are these new hats, often with the merest semblance of a crown and tilted forward on to the nose, leaving the whole of the back of the head completely exposed.

TO DEEPEN WEXFORD PORTS

NEARLY £200,000 NEEDED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WEXFORD, Thursday.

Wexford and New Ross have formulated ambitious schemes for the improvement of their respective harbours.

In the case of Wexford it is proposed to expend £170,000 on the deepening of the harbour, to enable it to admit large vessels. It is stated that the Government will contribute a large proportion of this sum. The Corporation has promised to strike a rate of 1s. in the £, and it has been suggested that the contribution by the Harbour Board should be at least £2,000 a year. In addition, the County Council is being asked to contribute the proceeds of a rate of 2½d. in the £.

For deep water jetties and the provision of an abutment, New Ross Harbour Board asks £20,000. A rate of 1d. in the £ has been suggested as being required from the County Council.

The claims of both harbours have been placed before the County Council, and will be discussed at a special meeting next week.

Milk Deficient in Fats—At Lucan District Court yesterday Henry Giltrap, Lucan, was fined £1 with £1 1s. costs for having sold milk which on analysis was shown to be deficient of 15 per cent. of fat.

People like this man who get fagged and worn out don't realise that all night long they are using energy — even while they sleep. And unless this energy is replaced as they use it, they wake up tired — "Night-Starved."

Horlick's taken regularly at bed-time guards against "Night-Starvation"—replaces energy as it is used. The flavour is intriguing, fascinating. Horlick's is real economy — it needs no milk. Just add water. Prices from 2/3d. Also the Horlick's Mixer, 6d. and 1/-.

Do you know these amazing facts about Night-Starvation?"

(1) The average person stirs once every 10 minutes during sleep. The body shifts first this way and then that in order to rest all the muscle groups in turn.

(2) During an 8-hour night, you expend 20,000 muscular efforts just to breathe!

(3) All night through, your heart has to beat and pump blood—about 35,000 beats between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

(4) Unless this energy is replaced during the night, you suffer from "Night-Starvation." Actual tests show that Horlick's, because it is so easily digested, restores lost energy while you sleep.

HORLICK'S GUARDS AGAINST NIGHT-STARVATION

This means you sleep soundly, wake refreshed, and have extra energy all day

FREIGHT CHARGES FROM DUBLIN

ANXIETY TO HELP EXPORTERS

Mr. David Barry, General Manager, British and Irish Steam Packet Company, attended a meeting of the Council of the National Agricultural and Industrial Development Association with reference to the question of freight charges, particularly in connection with the development of an Irish export trade, regarding which an instance was recently given by a Dublin firm, who are members of the Association, as to a lost order for Alexandria. Mr. Barry stated that at any time he is prepared personally to go into the matter of freight charges, and to do all in his power to help to develop Irish industry by making special rates, where necessary, to enable Irish manufacturers to compete on equal terms in the world's markets. In the instance given he was not prepared to accept the statements made. If the case had been represented to him he was fully convinced that the exporters would have been satisfactorily met.

Mr. Barry pointed out that different rates prevailed for the same class of goods, according to whether they were space rates or weight rates, and great economies were possible under one rate or the other for specific goods. A mere inquiry for rates addressed to a shipping company was not sufficient, and apparently this was all that transpired in the instance cited. Mr. Barry stressed his anxiety to help the exporting members of the Association, and any inquiries addressed to him by the Association, or by any of its members, would have his sympathetic attention, and he could promise that any Irish manufacturer doing a substantial export trade would have every facility given him.

On the general question of freights Mr. Barry pointed out that shipping companies' outgoings are now 400 per cent., at least, over pre-War expenditure, while daily the cross-Channel trade is declining. Imports of flour, sugar and feeding stuffs, to mention only three items, were now virtually nil, while exports of cattle were very small. That meant a decrease in the revenue of the shipping companies, while they have had to increase their store accommodation to provide Customs facilities.

The President thanked Mr. Barry for his attendance and for his courteous and cogent statement, and withdrew without qualification the statement made on behalf of the firm of exporters who complained to the Association.

Mr. Coghlan made a statement on behalf of the Clyde Shipping Company and its rates between Dublin and Cork.

The annual dinner of the Association was arranged to be held on 15th January, 1935, at the Shelbourne Hotel. Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, accepted the invitation to be present, and it was reported that arrangements had been made for the broadcasting of the function.

FASCISTS SENT FOR TRIAL

AT Worthing, yesterday, Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Union of Fascists; William Joyce, described as director of Fascist propaganda; Captain Charles Henry Bentinck Budd, described as a Black Shirt officer for the West Sussex area, and Bernard Mullans, stated to be a member of the Black Shirt movement, were committed for trial at the Sussex Assizes, at Lewes, on summonses alleging riotous assembly following a Fascist meeting at Worthing on October 9th.

Mullans was also summoned for assault. All four denied the charges.

They were allowed bail in their own recognisances of—£100 for Sir Oswald Mosley and of £50 for each of the other defendants.

The magistrates on Wednesday announced that they were agreed that the charge of assault against Sir Oswald Mosley should be dismissed.

At the close of the defence yesterday Mr. St. John Hutchinson argued that there was no case to go to a jury. He spoke of the "aggressiveness" of the prosecution, which, he said, might account for Sir Oswald's feeling that this could not be an ordinary police prosecution, and he described the charges as fantastic.

Mr. Flowers, K.C., for the prosecution, asked why did the Fascists come down to Worthing with bodyguards, or escorts, and with ambulance men? According to their own account, he said, it was to meet violence with violence, even if they were not going to start it.

WIFE MURDER CHARGE

CLOTHES SOAKED IN PARAFFIN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

STRABANE, Thursday.

JOHN JOSEPH McKENNA, Post Office overseer, was charged on remand this evening with the murder of his wife, Mary Elizabeth McKenna.

Mr. R. S. Magee defended.

Head-Constable Blevins said that on Wednesday, 24th October, Constable Gibson, barrack orderly, handed him a bunch of keys and said, pointing to the prisoner: "This man says that he has killed his wife, and she is lying in his house at Curley Hill." He noticed that the prisoner looked excited and his face suggested that he had drink taken. Witness went immediately to McKenna's house, which was in complete darkness and the doors locked. On entering he noticed a very strong smell of paraffin oil. In the bedroom upstairs he found the dead body of the woman lying across a bed and covered from neck to ankles with two curtains and a blanket. The body was cold and stiff and appeared to have been dead for a considerable time. There were bloodstains over the head, face, chest, arms and hands and over both feet. The skull was very badly battered and had two deep wounds on the forehead.

On the wall at the head of the bed were a number of bloodstains. Two pillows at the head of the bed were also covered with blood. The bedding generally smelt strongly of paraffin. There was a man's shirt soaked with paraffin lying on the bed. On the floor was a ten-glass bottle which appeared to have contained paraffin and a brown substance. Downstairs he found a mat saturated with paraffin and what appeared to have been an attempt to burn it. In the scullery he found a hammer.

From the kitchen he took possession of a receipt for £1 -7s. 9d. on a fire insurance policy. He examined the hammer found in the scullery, and found it bore traces of hair and blood, despite the fact that it had been subjected to fire.

In a small room beside the hall and from underneath the stairs he took seven coats of various descriptions, all of which were saturated with paraffin.

Daniel F. Ryan, Main street, Strabane, agent of the Royal Exchange Assurance Co., said that the prisoner had a fire policy with his company for £1,250. This policy was in force since 1927.

The hearing was adjourned till to-morrow.

INDOOR GARDENING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Generally speaking, the present month, since its opening, has proved a very trying time for plants under glass, the sunless days and intense cold and long nights being conducive to wholesale damping off, unless counteracted by judicious heating and ventilation. Primulas, Cinerarias, Zonal Pelargoniums, Arums, and, in short, all winter and spring flowering plants will require a drier atmosphere than heretofore, and all watering necessary should be performed in the early portion of the day. Should any of the plants mentioned be still in the frames, move them indoors at once; do not wait until frost has done harm. Green fly is sometimes active on plants brought into a warmer atmosphere from the frames. If this pest is detected, fumigate at once.

GREEN FOOD IN WINTER.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Those who keep poultry in small gardens can often supply them with more green food than can the large poultry farmer, unless he has had the foresight to plant green food for the poultry to supply them when the grass becomes poor in winter.

Perpetual kale is a very satisfactory crop to grow for fowl. It can be grown from cuttings, and crops all the year round, and when it is established will yield for two years or more. Once it is in the place another crop can be planted by inserting the cuttings at any time there is growth. The crop is obtained by cutting off the shoots, in the place of which others then grow.
